

Garbage Disposal--What It's Costing Suburbs And Why

(America is suffering from an ailment. Its people are vast consumers, and more than they use they throw away. It is a national predicament of which few consumers are aware. Americans have learned that to throw something away makes it disappear forever. Now there are disturbing examples of a fact: nothing really disappears, it just becomes converted into smoke or a putrid dump if not handled properly.)

In this series, two Herald writers examine the state of waste disposal in the Northwest suburbs, beginning with the scavengers who collect the trash. Following segments will deal with the various nationwide attempts to handle solid waste, and the controversial incinerator plan for Arlington Heights.)

First of a Series

Homeowners and apartment dwellers in the Northwest suburbs are paying wildly divergent prices and receiving service ranging from indifferent to elegant as the result of a piecemeal approach to the crucial demands of garbage collection.

Although details of scavenger service in the suburbs differ greatly from community to community, the total picture of the scavenger industry shows a largely unregulated and self-protective conglomeration of companies largely dealing as they please. Aside from pockets of strict governmental controls or areas where the municipality itself handles its garbage, suburban residents are often left on their own to comply with requirements set by the scavengers.

A Herald survey of the scavenger business in the Northwest suburbs shows that homeowners may pay as much as twice the amount for garbage collection as those in adjoining towns, and apartment dwellers may pay much greater amounts through their rents as do homeowners for comparable service.

SCAVENGER SERVICE in the suburbs is diverse and reflective of each community's willingness to get involved in the question of waste disposal.

In suburban villages and cities where strong municipal intervention in garbage collection prevails, prices are generally lower.

Where no government influence applies, prices can be twice as high, or the prices are low but the scavengers set aside exclusive areas for themselves. Sometimes price differences can vary between adjoining communities serviced by the same company — or even within the same community.

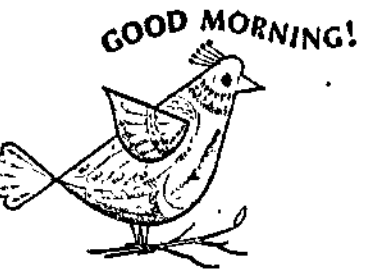

Barrington Trucking Co. collects garbage in Palatine for $2.25 per month under village license. In adjoining Inverness the firm operates also under exclusive village permission, but residents report they pay prices ranging from $4.75 per month to $7.25 per month for various types of service. In the area of residential versus apartment scavenger service, the disparities in prices are more evident.

Comparisons of apartment service prices between suburbs also show dramatic differences, sometimes amounting to six or seven times the price per apartment unit from suburb to suburb.

Oasis Expansion Proposal

County Zoning Board OKs Hearings For Trailer Park

The Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals granted a public hearing Wednesday on the proposed expansion of the Oasis Mobile Home Park on Elmhurst Road in unincorporated Elk Grove Township.

Paul Marcy, secretary of the board, said the board and the state's attorney's office decided that the petition was a "borderline case," and a public hearing was needed to get all sides of the story. The zoning board of appeals had been uncertain whether it had the jurisdiction to hear the case.

He said it would be at least September before a hearing could be set in the Elk Grove Village Hall because no hearings were being scheduled for July, and the docket was full for August.

Oscar Brotman, owner of the trailer park and the neighboring Oasis Drive-In Theater, is seeking to expand the trailer park to property now occupied by the drive-in theater, which would go out of business at the end of the summer. The land must be rezoned for the expansion.

He said the 20 acres occupied by the theater would provide space for about 170 trailers in addition to the 370 trailers now in the court.

BROTMAN HAD requested a rezoning hearing before the zoning board of appeals earlier this month. At that time he said a delay in holding the requested hearing until fall would seriously hurt his development plans.

He threatened two weeks ago to take his case to court if the zoning board of appeals refused to hear the case soon. Brotman was unavailable for comment Thursday on how a fall hearing date will affect his plans.

The board of appeals earlier had refused to hear the case because it was not within its jurisdiction. This was based on the fact that Brotman had obtained permission for the trailer park and theater through a series of court orders that overturned board rulings.

Marcy said Thursday that the board had reviewed the case and felt that it was within its jurisdiction.

THE VILLAGE OF Mount Prospect has opposed the expansion request on the grounds that the population density was already too high and adequate measure for fire protection have not been taken. The park is served by the Mount Prospect Fire Department.

Mount Prospect Village Atty. John Zimmermann said he did not see how the zoning board of appeals could have the jurisdiction to hear the case since, in prior decisions of the court, the judge spoke of the court's retaining jurisdiction in the matter.

However, Zimmermann said if a public hearing were held, he probably would appear to protest the trailer park expansion unless the village board gave him other directions.

Nature Center Near Start?

A project to establish a 221-acre nature center in the Schaumburg area adjacent to Elk Grove Village may get under way this year.

It is possible that land acquisition negotiations "can be started by the end of the year" depending on federal cooperation, according to Ellsworth Meineke, chairman of the Spring Valley Nature Restoration Committee.

About 221 acres are included in the present plans. There is a possibility, Meineke said, that an additional parcel of land in the Elk Grove area of 100-150 acres might be included. The Elk Grove Village land is adjacent to the site.

There are problems still to be resolved in securing the additional acres which make it impossible to include it in the first phase of development, he added.

Meineke unveiled a report outlining the nature restoration project at Tuesday's meeting of the Schaumburg Village Board. Included on the seven-member committee who prepared the report are Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher and Paul Dorda, director of the Schaumburg Park District.

The nature tract extends about a mile along the west branch of Salt Creek and sits on the north and south sides of Schaumburg Road. Most of the land, about 170 acres, is south of Schaumburg Road, Meineke said. All the land is in the Schaumburg Park District.

TO ASSIST IN purchasing the 221 acres, currently privately owned, the committee is hoping for federal matching funds, preferably from the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation (BOR). Meineke said he will shortly be preparing an application for the matching funds.

Though anticipating an "awful lot of red tape," Meineke said, if federal reaction is speedy and favorable, the negotiations could begin in five or six months.

An especially good aspect of the BOR funds is that, if the village can encourage owners to donate some of the 221 acres, BOR will match the cash value of the donation, Meineke said. He added there is an "indication" some of the land may be donated.

As now planned the park district would hold title to the land and do all the developing, it was stated in the plan presented by Meineke. The chairman added that details of local financing to match the hoped-for federal funds must still be worked out.

The nature preserve will "have a quiet, secluded place for the study of plants, animals and birds in their natural habitats," the report stated.

"It is a bird sanctuary now which is visited by Audubon groups," the report also stated. Additionally there are various kinds of wildlife there. "Over fifteen species of trees and many wild flowers grow in the valley."

"Other uses will be hiking, nature photography, geology and enjoyment of the beauty of nature, songs of birds, sounds of animals and the scent of trees and flowers," the report continued.

"When restored, it will be possible to walk through wooded areas and prairies as they were when the first settlers arrived about 140 years ago," the report said.

A SPECIAL feature of the nature center is a large gravel pit formed by glacial movements millions of years ago. The pit is large enough for geologic study, a fair size recreation lake and an outdoor bowl for shows, pageants, concerts, etc.

As contemplated, the nature area will be a cooperative project with the village of Schaumburg assisting in obtaining the land and helping the Schaumburg Park District in working with adjacent land developers to get proper access to the nature trails and landscaping.

SIX PIECES of sculpture were donated to the Elk Grove Village Library by the village women's club to start a circulating sculpture collection. Starting July 1 the pieces will be loaned for $1 a month with a

Area School Suit Awaits U.S. Ruling

A class action suit challenging alleged underassessments at Cook County racetracks is pending a ruling on a similar but broader suit filed in U.S. Federal Court.

Ten Chicago area school districts affected by alleged racetrack underassessments have joined the Joint Service Program, a subgroup of the Illinois Association of School Boards (IASB) to file a class action suit against Cook County Assessor P. J. Cullerton.

Ron Booth, director of IASB, said the Joint Service Program was ready to file the suit but was awaiting the outcome of a similar suit filed in Federal Court on behalf of Donald Page Moore, an unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic nomination for Cook County state's attorney.

The Moore suit also alleges misassessments of properties but does not stop at the racetracks. The Moore suit asks the court to appoint an assessor to correct misassessments throughout Cook County.

Thomas Melles, one of Moore's attorneys, said a hearing in the case is scheduled for the first week in September.

"WHEN THE hearing takes place we will file our own suit or intervene on behalf of the districts," said Booth. "If the suit (Moore's) is successful and an immediate reassessment of property is called for, we will have avoided the cost of a separate suit and be able to return fees to the districts involved."

The class action suit was prompted when the Citizens Action Program (CAP) released figures they had compiled on alleged underassessments at the racetracks last fall.

Four local school districts encompassing Arlington Park Race Track have allocated funds to join the suit. They are Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15, High School Dist. 211 and 214 and Harger College Dist. 512.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

President Nixon said that if Congress fails to approve the new offensive weapons systems he has recommended it would virtually eliminate all chances for a broader nuclear arms limitation agreement with the Russians.

Sen. George McGovern fought in court to keep from losing some of his 271 California convention delegates to candidates he defeated in the state's winner-take-all presidential primary June 5. California campaign chairmen representing four losing contenders filed a lawsuit seeking to split up the delegation and give each Democratic candidate a proportionate slice.

With the Nixon-appointed bloc in solid opposition, the Supreme Court barred state and local governments from setting up new school zones if the redistricting impedes desegregation. The court also ruled, 6 to 2, that unions may legally make political contributions if they come from voluntary donations.

The World

The militant Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army said it will suspend offensive operations in Northern Ireland as of midnight Monday if the British Army declared a cease fire in return. The British government accepted the offer.

U.S. Diplomatic sources in Hong Kong said they are convinced that both the Soviet Union and China want to see serious negotiations to reach a Vietnam settlement, but that the rivalry between Moscow and Peking restricts the amount of pressure either can bring on North Vietnamese leaders.

The State

The Illinois Senate broke a partisan deadlock and approved two compromise plans to provide personal property tax relief for taxpayers.

Gov. Ogilvie's capital development bonding program ran into trouble in the Senate, where it was amended to give the voters the final word in a November referendum. The effect of the change would be to postpone the inauguration of the new financing plan until after the election.

Angelo Geacaris, Illinois campaign manager for Sen. Edmund Muskie's drive for the Democratic nomination, said that from 15 to 45 of the 50 Illinois delegates pledged to Muskie may switch to Sen. George McGovern if they were freed to do so.

The War

A North Vietnamese infantry regiment backed by Russian-built tanks crossed South Vietnam's northern defense line and battled government paratroopers 20 miles north of the imperial capital of Hue.

Hunt For Teen Lost In Lake Is Called Off

Authorities have given up the search for a missing 16-year-old boy who reportedly drowned in Beck Lake northeast of Des Plaines Monday afternoon.

The search for William Schultz of Chicago, whose home town was previously given by sheriff's police as Glenview, ended late Wednesday night. The entire lake was searched by teams of divers from suburban fire and police departments during the daylight hours Monday afternoon, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Des Plaines fireman Ken Baumann who participated in the rescue operations, told the Herald there was nothing more the divers could do at this time.

"We must have searched 99 per cent of that lake and if the body was in the other one per cent it could have been seen from shore," Baumann said.

The search operations are now in the hands of Cook County officials, who will decide when the search will continue, according to Baumann.

HE SAID SEARCH efforts might continue in a few days after the water in Beck Lake became less murky, increasing the visibility for divers. Some of the divers told the Herald Tuesday the visibility under water was only six inches to two feet.

Schultz disappeared Monday afternoon after he and a companion swam to an island in the middle of the lake about 100 yards from shore. The companion told police he had to leave and that young Schultz told him he was too tired to make the return swim.

The companion, whose name was not released, told police Schultz was still on the island when he left. No one has seen the missing youth since.

A 12 man tactical unit from the Cook County Sheriff's police along with a group of 10 volunteers from the Glenview Naval Air Station combed the woods in the forest preserve Wednesday night since no one had seen the Schultz boy actually go under water.

Amendment Could Kill Paramedic Legislation

An amendment that would serve to virtually kill the paramedic bill pending in the Illinois House is expected to be offered when the bill comes to the floor for a third reading. But supporters of the bill in the House said the amendment is not likely to be accepted.

As currently proposed, the bill is designed to remove liability from specially trained paramedic administering emergency treatment to the injured and the ill. Doctors also would be covered for liability except for damages resulting from "willful and wanton" acts.

The amendment, expected to be offered by Rep. Arthur L. Berman, D-Chicago, would provide that doctors be held responsible for damages resulting from ordinary acts of negligence.

Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, who is handling the bill in the House, said he is "cautiously optimistic" that the Berman amendment would not be adopted.

Schlickman said he based his optimism on conversations with House leaders.

He said if the amendment were added to the bill, it would virtually kill the legislation.

"There's no doctor that would put his career on the line for something like that," Schlickman said.

He said the amendment is supported by a trial lawyers association.

The bill in its present form was adopted recently by the Illinois Senate under the sponsorship of Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington. It is not certain when it will come up for a vote in the House.

The bill has the support of Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie.

It is intended to enable a mobile emergency treatment unit to operate in the Northwest suburbs, based at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

Expected to participate are Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Hoffman Estates, Inverness, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Rolling Meadows and Schaumburg, and possible Wheeling.

Condominium Truth-In-Selling Amendment OK'd

A truth-in-selling amendment to the Condominium Property Act passed the state Senate Wednesday.

Earlier approved by the Illinois House, it was introduced in the Senate by Sen. John Graham, R-Barrington, and was reported out of committee early this month.

The bill basically requires sellers of condominiums to provide potential buyers with a written disclosure of full details on the declaration of sale, articles of incorporation of the homeowners' association, bylaws of that association, deed to underlying ground and management contract.

A PROPOSED operating budget for the unit, a floor plan of the unit and a commitment for a specific location for the unit are also required by the bill.

Richard Regan, chairman of the Hoffman Estates Plan Commission wrote the original guidelines along which the bill was written.

Regan wanted the bill to protect young couples or persons previously living only in single-family homes from the misunderstandings and pitfalls of which they might not be aware.

The bill requires all information concerning expenses, responsibilities and privileges connected with condominium ownership be clarified in writing before the sale.

Chicagoan Must Answer Forgery, 'Pot' Charges

Douglas Yella, 21, of 3937 Southport Ave., Chicago, is scheduled to appear in Elk Grove Village branch of Cook County Circuit Court July 12 to answer charges of forgery, possession of stolen credit cards and identification and possession of marijuana.

Elk Grove Village police arrested Yella June 15 after he attempted to open a checking account at the Bank of Elk Grove, 601 E. Higgins Rd., using allegedly stolen identification.

Authorities said Yella told a bank clerk he wanted to open an account and was given an application form to fill out. Police said when the clerk asked for the man's driver's license, Yella said he did not have a driver's license but produced other identification.

According to police, the clerk and the man acted suspiciously and when the clerk called a security officer to investigate, Yella tried to run out the door.

Yella was apprehended while attempting to escape and in apprehension was found with stolen possession, police said.

He has been released on $100 bond.

Other new officers are Andre Dolle, executive vice president; Jim Roter, vice president; Bill Delis, treasurer; Chuck Gunn, secretary; and Bob Arr, Larry Herforth, Bob Decore and Art Rommel, directors.

Bob Sturgeon, national director of the North Region Illinois Jaycees, will be the featured speaker of the evening.

EVERYONE LOVES a parade. Arlington Heights will have its Independence Day Parade Saturday, starting at 9:30 a.m. at the main gate of Arlington Park Race Track and follow the route outlined in the map above.

'4th' Parade Comes Early

Fourth of July will come early this year in Arlington Heights, as the annual parade, 70 units strong, marches through the village Saturday.

Eight floats and nine bands will be included in this year's parade, which will step off from the main gate of Arlington Park Race Track at 9:30 a.m.

The parade, which is sponsored by the Arlington Heights Jaycees, is traditionally well in advance of the Fourth because it avoids conflicts with other parades in obtaining parade units. This year, bands and other special units come from all over the Chicago metropolitan area.

Though no local high school bands will participate, there will be seven drum and bugle corps along with the Catholic Youth Organization from LaGrange and the Spartan Youth Cadettes from the South side of Chicago.

Floats will represent Wheeling Township Teenage Republicans, the Regular Wheeling Township Democrats, the First Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights, Creative Cabin, Northpoint Shopping Center, Job's Daughters and Paddock Publications.

Floats will be judged in front of the Arlington Heights Memorial Library, 500 N. Dunton, and a trophy will be given to the winner.

Dignitaries to be included in the parade will be Illinois' Junior Miss, Barbara Jean Gorgol of Des Plaines; George Halas, owner of the Chicago Bears, and Leah Poulos, Olympic speed skater.

The theme of this year's parade will be "Liberty — America's Blessing."

Environmental Plan To Be Considered

Establishment of a no-cost total environmental program for Hoffman Estates will be explored Tuesday night by Richard Young, editor of Pollution Engineering Magazine.

Young, a consultant for the federal Environmental Protection Agency, serves as environmental control officer in Crystal Lake and Bensenville, where he has set up similar programs.

According to Trustee Diane Jensen, chairman of Hoffman Estates Environmental Concerns Committee, Young's proposal involves use of present municipal employees.

The meeting, open to the public, will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the new village hall, 1200 N. Gammon Dr.

Schlickman Sees Quick Release Of Creek Funds

Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie will release funds for the McDonald Creek improvement project as soon as the Illinois General Assembly passes the legislation, according to Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights.

The $180,000 appropriations for a new Soo Line R. R. bridge over McDonald Creek in Prospect Heights is included in a bill for creek improvements appropriations throughout the state.

"I have an appointment with Gov. Ogilvie Friday (today) for him to commit the release of funds for McDonald Creek as soon as the Legislature passes the bill," Schlickman said yesterday.

Schlickman said Ogilvie's action was unprecedented. In the past, money for such projects never had been released immediately after the legislation for the money was passed, Schlickman said.

SCHLICKMAN is optimistic the bill will get to the governor for his signature next week. The Senate has approved the bill, but the house approved the bill with two new amendments. The Senate must concur with the House on the amended bill.

Because Ogilvie plans to release the funds for the work immediately, work on the project should start within the next 40-60 days, Schlickman said.

Earlier this week Schlickman and John Guillon, chief engineer for the Illinois Division of Waterways, toured part of Prospect Heights flooded by Monday's heavy rains. Schlickman met with representatives of the governor following his tour.

Prospect Heights residents attribute many of their problems with flooding to the poor McDonald Creek drainage at the Soo Line bridge. The improved bridge will give the creek greater drainage capacity.

Our Man On Road With 'Operation Vandalism'

Editor's Note: During the weekend of April 28, more than 10 separate cases of vandalism were reported in the south part of Mount Prospect.

Police, fearing the outbreak was a harbinger of things to come, set up "Operation Vandalism," a police task force designed to curb vandalism on weekends.

Under the plan, extra policemen working overtime patrol weekend nights, concentrating themselves only with vandals or potential vandals. Arrests have been frequent, most were curfew violators. Others were charged with more serious offenses.

The task force has been operating for the last six weekends. Recently a Herald reporter spent several hours with two of the task force patrolmen.

by TOM VON MALLER

The patrol began at 11 p.m. for members of the task force. Mount Prospect Police Sgt. Ralph Doney, a 12-year veteran and the man chosen to head up the special force, is in the police locker room, which at a double as the roll call room.

He gives the five other officers instructions on how "Operation Vandalism" operates. Forms are to be filled out on all persons who are stopped, even if they are not charged.

Those on the task force for the first time are told: "Not only are we interested in stopping vandals, we're also interested in making good pinches. But make sure they are good."

The men are assigned two to a police vehicle, with Doney and his partner, Ronald Kotch, taking Car 129, the unmarked vehicle.

Kotch recently joined the department. He had been a mechanic for many years but decided on a change because he had been bored. He feels police work is interesting and challenging.

Before leaving, Doney reads an address to the men. "The police learned a party is being held there, and the area will be watched more carefully than usual."

The first stops for the task force are the village's parks. Vandalism has been severe at park property recently, and park ordinances call for an 11 p.m. closing hour.

LIONS PARK is first for Doney and Kotch. Driving on Maple Street, Doney spots a car without lights in the Lions Park lot. He pulls in, expecting to find a pair of youthful lovers.

Instead, as he jumps out of the car, Doney sees a girl behind the steering wheel and a boy slumped over in the passenger's seat. As Doney orders them to get out, he sees the boy eat something from a plastic bag.

The boy, 16, and the girl, 17, are informed they are under arrest for violation of the park curfew ordinance and for possible possession of marijuana. The car is searched thoroughly, the boy handcuffed and the police van sent for.

Back in the station, a lab test proves the substance in the bag was marijuana, of a fine quality. But there is not enough to make an arrest for possession. The two are booked for the violation of the park ordinance and the boy's mother is sent for.

After 30 minutes at the station, Car 129 is back on the streets. Again they go by Lions Park, and this time spot a car in the South Community Baptist Church lot. The pair in the car are doing nothing wrong, and since they're both 18, are let go. (The village's curfew law applies only to persons under 18.)

DONEY GETS A call to go back to the station. Another car has picked up four youths on Council Trail. Their truck was parked the wrong way and when police investigated, they found a bottle of wine in it.

Another half hour of questioning at the station and three of the youths are sent home. The fourth is charged with illegal parking and having open liquor in his vehicle.

The two patrolmen return on patrol. The night is quiet. They go by Meadows Park, the telephone company, Hallen Avenue, Sunset Road and then to Huntington Commons. Here a young couple have stopped to admire the retention basin and are told to move on. Both were in their twenties.

A quick check is given to the Circus Internationale grounds and a possible abandoned car is checked out. When an accident is reported on Euclid Avenue, Doney drives to the scene. No one is injured. The accident is handled by Cook County Sheriff's Police.

After checking the Randhurst lot and the Holiday Inn, Kotch notices one speeder and then another. Doney gives chase.

THE SECOND CAR turns out to be a police car and Doney continues their patrol. In the Chicago and North Western Hwy. lot, they spot a youth who had been hanging around for some time. When told by the youth he was waiting for friends, the police advised him to wait in a nearby donut shop.

A short time later, his two friends apparently turn up — staggering along Maine Street. They are stopped and they begin swearing at Doney and Kotch. Brought into the station, they are booked for curfew violation and disorderly conduct.

At this point, it was 2:30 a.m. and Doney called it a night. He had reports to fill out.

About a half hour later, another squad stopped three youths in a car for curfew violation and charged one with possession of marijuana. He had thrown a plastic bag with the drug out the car window while police were following the car, police said.

In all, there was only one case of vandalism reported that weekend. Paint had been thrown against the garage of S. D. Holbrook, 1201 Glenn Lane.

Two Charged In Bookie Phone Line

Two Michigan men have been arrested by Arlington Heights police and charged with illegally transmitting betting information on races at Arlington Park Race Track to a Detroit bookmaker.

Police detectives said that walkie-talkie radios were used by the pair to relay betting odds and early race results from inside the race track to one of the men who would be stationed at a pay telephone near the Arlington Park Shell service station at the corner of Wilke Road and Euclid Avenue.

The telephone was used to relay the racing information to a Detroit bookmaker, police say.

John Patrick McGee, 22, of Detroit, was apprehended by officers of the Illinois Bureau of Race Track Police Tuesday after they observed him with the walkie-talkie inside the track.

McGee later was turned over to Arlington Heights police.

A SECOND MAN James Riggio, of Grosse Pointe Woods, Mich., who allegedly worked with McGee in the information relay network, was arrested by Arlington Heights police a short time later as he was leaving the track grandstand.

Detectives say they had been observing the pair several days prior to their arrest.

Both men also were charged with possession of amphetamines after a police search of their car reportedly turned up a bottle of pills later identified as amphetamines.

Bond for the men was set at $5,000 each with a preliminary court date scheduled June 23.

Salt Creek Overflowing Closes Pool

The Lions Park swimming pool on Kennedy Boulevard in Elk Grove Village was closed this week because of heavy rains that caused Salt Creek to overflow its banks, dumping mud and silt into the pool.

Jack Claes, Elk Grove Park District director, said yesterday that so much dirt was dumped in the pool that the filter system couldn't handle it. He said that to prevent structural damage park crews were gradually filling the pool with clean water and pumping out the dirty water.

He said it will take a few days of vacuuming and pumping to clean the pool but hopefully the pool could be back in service Sunday or Monday.

Although the creek rose to a point that water completely covered the swimming pool, Claes said the pumps and the filtration systems were not damaged. He said the same situation occurred six years ago when Salt Creek also flowed into Lions pool.

Claes said the Disney outdoor swimming pools at Lively Junior High School on Leicester Road were not affected by this week's storm and are in full operation.

3 County Strike By Carpenter Council Set Today

by LEATONKIN
A three-county strike by members of the Chicago District Council of Carpenters was scheduled to start this morning. This announcement followed a contractor announcement yesterday afternoon that an area-wide lockout of cement masons and carpenters will begin Monday morning.

Irwin Klass of the Chicago Federation of Labor News said Carpenter picket lines will be set up this morning at construction projects of approximately 450 Chicago area contractors. A Cement Masons Local 502 representative said late Thursday that additional action may also be taken by his organization as a result of the planned lockout.

The lockout of carpenters and cement masons will start Monday at 12:01 a.m., barring an unforeseen settlement between these trade groups and contractor associations.

This action, in response to the strikes and selective picketing by members of Cement Masons Local 502 and the Chicago District Council of Carpenters, was announced yesterday afternoon by the Mid America Regional Bargaining Association (MARBA).

An area wide strike-lockout will shut down approximately $2½ billion in area construction projects and idle nearly 100,000 construction workers. It will also mark the first cooperative effort by a regional contractor group to resist the crippling effects of selective strikes, according to MARBA chairman Robert E. Nielsen.

"OURS IS A fair, legitimate response which we are using for the first time," said Nielsen. He sees the fledgling contractor association's move as a step toward a new pattern in labor negotiations. MARBA, formed in 1971, is comprised of 1,000 contractors who are members of 14 affiliated organizations.

Contractors have been helpless in the past to retaliate against the unions' selective strike tactics, according to Nielsen. Now, instead of the employers' knuckling under to union demands in the final settlements, says Nielsen, the contractors can refuse work to members of the striking trades in an effort to match their collective strength.

"We also expect that members of Local 502 of Cement Masons will have difficulty finding other contractors to work for outside of Cook County and the same applies to striking carpenters from Cook, DuPage and Lake Counties," Nielsen said. "Our member associations are united in support of our stand."

Over 2,000 members of the Cement Masons Local 502 have been on strike since Monday of this week. The organization set up picket lines at selected construction sites on Wednesday.

THE CEMENT Masons had agreed to a 53-cent-an-hour increase in wages and benefits offered by MARBA. This would bring their pay to $10.24 an hour, a 5.5 per cent hike. MARBA says its offer still stands, but is no longer retroactive to June 1 as it was not accepted by the June 17 expiration date. The unions did not accept a contractor proposal for a flexible lunch hour.

Approximately 2,000 members of the 30,000 member Carpenter Chicago District Council went on strike Wednesday morning Major Loop sites and a parking garage at O'Hare International Airport were among the projects affected by this action.

Both wages and work rules are at stake in the carpenters contract negotiations. A 91-cent-an-hour increase in wages and benefits plus work rules was offered by the MARBA. It is no longer retroactive to June 1 since it was not accepted by the June 19 expiration date.

The Chicago District Council of Carpenters seeks a $1.45 an hour increase in wages and benefits and does not accept the proposed work rule changes.

The contractor proposal, if accepted, would bring hourly wages to $9.56, a 10.5 per cent increase over the present $8.65 rate. The union proposal would increase wages 15.7 per cent, in addition to changing certain work rules which the MARBA representatives have not accepted.

A Will County Carpenters settlement contract was signed this week.

Finch To Represent Nixon At Rally

by JEAN CAFARELLA
The White House announced today President Richard Nixon will definitely not be coming on Monday to the National Association of Student Councils (NASC) annual convention. Replacing the President will be Robert H. Finch, a presidential advisor.

Warren Hendricks, a member of Finch's staff said Finch "definitely is" going to address the 750 student council representatives meeting at Forest View High School, Arlington Heights, and President Nixon "definitely is not coming."

advisor, Finch was in charge of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare in 1969. He was lieutenant governor of California from 1967 to 1969, and from 1963 to 1966 was an administrative assistant to Vice President Nixon. In 1960, Finch acted as Nixon's presidential campaign director.

Arlington Heights Police Capt. Maury English said he has no information on Finch's arrival. Last year when Nixon visited Prospect High School, the police were informed so they could begin making arrangements a week ahead of time. Hendricks said security measures would not be anywhere near what the president receives which is why the police haven't been given notice.

English said it's possible Finch will arrive at the convention via helicopter. Hendricks, however, said Finch will probably take a car to the school.

Conference Chmn. Burton Showers, director of student activities at Forest View High School, said this is the first time any top level national leaders are expected at an NASC convention.

The 750 student council members and their adult advisors are arriving from all over the country this Sunday for their 36th annual meeting, which will run Monday through Thursday at Forest View High School. The students will stay in local homes, and the adult advisors will room at Arlington Towers Hotel. The students represent some 30,000 student councils across the nation.

Tax Funds Near $786 Million

Hendricks said when Finch arrives, he will probably hold a press conference before his 11 a.m. talk at the NASC convention. After he addresses the convention, he will go to downtown Chicago to be filmed for the Kennedy and Company show and leave Chicago the same day.

Nixon was invited to address the student council members, however the White House staff would not confirm his appearance until 48 hours before his expected arrival. Yesterday conference officials speculated there was a 50-50 chance Nixon would keep the engagement. However, Finch's staff ended the rumors with the announcement that the presidential advisor will attend the conference.

BEFORE BECOMING a presidential

Cook County Treasurer Bernard J. Korzen said yesterday his office has collected and distributed $785,826,583 in real estate taxes.

This figure represents 50 per cent of the county's total real estate tax billing of $1,494,570,760, Korzen said. The first installment of the real estate taxes was due June 1. The second installment is due Sept. 1.

Of the monies collected, $425,896,560.27 was paid by taxpayers in the City of Chicago and $358,932,022.33, was paid by taxpayers in suburban Cook County.

Korzen said his office has also collected and distributed $176,004,534 in corporation personal property taxes. Personal property tax payments were due in one payment June 1.

Korzen said that through the use of modern electronic equipment and computers, his office was able to make daily distributions of the collected tax monies to the various city and suburban taxing bodies.

He urged taxpayers to make their Sept. 1 installment payments as soon as possible so that further tax distributions can be made. This enables the various county taxing bodies to retire their tax anticipation warrants early, thus realizing a savings to the taxpayers.

THE THEME of the convention is Youth in Action. Finch's talk will deal with youth's role in the federal government. Youth and their community will be the topic of Tuesday's discussions, and the delegates will go to McCormick Place where they will be addressed by Mayor Richard Daley.

On Wednesday, seven representatives from Amoco Chemical, Chemical Industrial Council, Commonwealth Edison, United Air Lines, Union 76 Oil Co., United States Steel, and Weyerhaeuser Company to discuss what they are doing for ecological improvement. Among other topics that will be covered next week are women's rights, the student press, the 18-year-old vote, students' rights and the law, and the American Revolution, 1976.

Garbage Disposal--What It's Costing Suburbs And Why

EVEN THE ONE-TIME favorite chair eventually joins the trash heap. Out-of-house, out-of-mind, for the resident. But for the solid waste expert, that chair's life could be just beginning. It's fabric and wood may become paper, its springs a soup can. It could be burned for heat value, or buried to decompose.

federation of apartment owners, the price of scavenger service per apartment unit ranges from 95 cents per month in Carol Stream to one apartment complex in Arlington Heights where the owner claims he pays $6.33 per unit. In Arlington Heights, the apartment rates are set by the cubic yard of garbage, while in many other communities the rates are set by the stop.

According to council figures, municipalities which allow negotiation between the apartment owners and a variety of scavenger services mean lower prices to the tenants as compared to towns where exclusive garbage contracts are the rule.

For example: Illinois communities where apartments contract for their own services:

Illside: 90-cents per apartment per month.
Carol Stream: 95-cents.
Hoffman Estates: $1.30.
Seger: $1.10.
Joliet: $1.25.
Moline: $1.10.

Communities where apartments contract with exclusive franchise scavengers:

Hanover Park: $2.25 per apartment per month.
Palatine: $2.25.
Buffalo Grove: $2.50.

Lisle: $2.73.
Addison: $2.96.

In effect the apartment owners, through their organization, are complaining that scavengers are discriminatory toward apartment dwellers in higher rates and they are particularly so in communities where operators of large apartment complexes may not negotiate among several scavenger firms.

So flexible are scavenger prices the apartment owners claim, that one longtime apartment executive relates a story about his meeting with a scavenger service operator before both men were to appear before a village board.

"Let's not drag this out before the board," the scavenger spokesman said. "I quoted a price of $2.25 per apartment, but I'll come down to $1.50 per month if we can shake on the deal right now."

Such deals are often made, the apartment owners contend, and the price of garbage goes up or down with the amount of competition — or control — allowed by the local municipality.

AS AN INDUSTRY, the scavenger services in the Chicago metropolitan area are heir to a free-wheeling, more casual era when garbage contracts were highly lucrative and sliced up like watermelons among a relatively few truckers.

It was a largely family-oriented industry with a tendency to stop short of the line of open competition since there was enough for everyone if it was divided up properly.

Finally, in April, 1971, the apparent cooperation among scavengers became so blatant that Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott threatened suit against the association of Chicago and suburban refuse collectors and finally obtained a consent decree against some 136 refuse collectors in the Chicago area. The decree charged price fixing, controlling the supply of service and allocating the dividing customers, territories and markets.

In total, the Scott action said the scavengers were conspiring to control the commerce of their industry, and in reaction, the scavengers agreed to comply to a court decree telling them not to do so. The scavenger association also paid a $50,000 fine as part of the agreement. Scavenger companies must now file quarterly reports with the Attorney General's office reporting on their actions and bidding procedures. As one insider put it, "Scott's threatened suit shook them (the scavengers) up a little. Nothing like that had ever happened to them before."

YET WELL OVER a year since the state's action against the refuse collectors, persistent doubts about the collective will of the collectors to regulate their industry remain.

Probably one of the most tightly controlled private collectors is the Henry Laseke Co., which operates exclusively in Arlington Heights. The village board treats the Laseke Co. like a utility, examining its books, setting its rates through negotiation and in general, supervising its actions and providing the company — and thus the village — with a municipal landfill site with rates to Laseke far below the normal rates of surrounding private landfills.

Yet this exclusive arrangement between Laseke and the village developed out of the village's frustration years ago in seeking other collectors. Although the village advertised for rates, not one other reliable scavenger service bid on the job. Whether intentionally or not, other scavenger services would not bid into Laseke's territory.

THE SAME FACT of municipal life exists in other villages and cities throughout the metropolitan area. And where multiple services exist, communities are divided up so that subdivisions are often serviced by only one company.

The high bodied garbage truck with its screaming hydraulic compressor is an aspect of trash removal directly linked to the days when horse drawn wagons would come to pick up garbage to feed to the hogs.

But now, the collection of garbage — or solid waste in the new parlance — is becoming a bigger and more complex problem. And as stratified and as insular as the scavenger industry is, it is an unalterable link between the kitchen trash bucket and the eventual disposal of our trash in the ground, the air or the water.

(Next: The state moves to establish environmental controls over waste disposal, and the Metropolitan Sanitary District comes up with an idea to bring a mountain to Illinois.)

'Dutch Mafia' Fades Into Nostalgia

With a smile and a wink, people still talk about the Dutch Mafia.

Once the ruling organization that controlled the disposal of trash and garbage throughout the Chicago area, the Dutch Mafia seems to have fallen on gentler times and oldtimers now regard the term with nostalgia rather than dread.

Although the phrase conjures up images of organized crime and other nefarious purposes, the term Dutch Mafia was used to describe a mutually beneficial group of families — all of Dutch descent — which collected Chicago's garbage and divided the territories among themselves.

Although the remnants of the strong family and interfamily Dutch control over trash collection still remain on the nameplates of hundreds of garbage trucks, reports vary as to the continued strength of the families.

TO ONE OBSERVER the Dutch Mafia is just a shadow of its former self, and even the original version was not so bad.

"The Dutch Mafia is what we called them," the veteran of the garbage wars said, "but they were really a group of Dutch families — and very good people — who had intermarried among themselves and happened to have strong family ties to each other. It really wasn't as bad as the name implies."

But to other observers, the Dutch Mafia was a little more than just a cute term to describe ethnic domination of an industry.

Reports still circulate among small independent scavengers that garbage trucks are set afire if the territorial imperative of the ruling families is challenged.

Whispers of collusion, implications of fraternal allegiances and rumors of mutually beneficial bidding still surround the scavenger industry. Yet as more and more municipalities move toward government operated service, the legends of an ominous Dutch Mafia seem more myth than reality.

In fact it is hard to believe today what one man, close to the business for 30 years, said of the goon-like tactics of a different era.

"Brother," he said, "you just don't know what getting pinched is like until your fingers get stepped on by a man wearing a wooden shoe."

Garbage Disposal Jargon

Like all aspects of technology, garbage disposal has a vocabulary all its own. For the uninitiated, here's a sample of the terms used in the trade:

Solid waste: Anything from kitchen scraps to "white goods," things like a discarded refrigerator. Solid waste is differentiated from liquid wastes of sewer lines and gaseous waste from smoke stacks or any open burning.

Landfill: Unlike a dump, a landfill site is an area where garbage is laid out and covered with at least six inches of dirt every day. Landfill sites are now being used for a variety of purposes, including parks.

Incineration: Burning within a closed container and trapping the residue.

Pyrolysis: Incineration without air at extremely high temperatures. The process is still in the experimental stage, but its advantage is that it leaves virtually no residue and very little emission.

Composting: Same as a compost heap in your back yard. Waste is allowed to degenerate into a compost (with or without air) and the resultant soil conditioner has certain uses. The process is somewhat limited to Southern states where good weather prevails and it is also limited by the market for compost. Two operations in Florida are doing poorly and the Japanese used the method for some time and found they had too much compost for any practical use.

Leach-Transfer system: A compaction system whereby garbage trucks pull up to a compacting device which pushes the garbage onto a bigger truck but in a highly reduced volume. The bigger truck then takes the load away to a more distant landfill site. A Japanese firm has come up with a way of compacting garbage into bales, using hydraulic hoppers. The federal Environment Protection Agency is reportedly not impressed with the durability of the bales.

Both Sen. Charles H. Percy and Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III voted last week to delete funds for continuation of the Subversive Activities Control Board after nearly 30 years.

The funds were deleted from an appropriations bill that was among several acted upon in a busy voting week in the Senate.

The House also devoted most of its attention to appropriations.

Following is a summary of the voting records and other activities of Percy and Stevenson, and Northwest suburban congressmen Harold R. Collier, R-10th, Philip M. Crane, R-13th, and Robert McClory, R-12th.

PIANOS AND ORGANS MUST GO

Now, be the first to see and play the newest of the new. Karnes Music Company has purchased dozens of pianos and organs from National Music Exposition at McCormick Place. Not just ordinary models, but prized buyers' samples. This means that each and every one has been meticulously checked out mechanically and cosmetically. They are as near perfection as is humanly possible because buyers from all over the world made their yearly purchasing commitments on the basis of what they saw at the National Music Show just ended in Chicago.

Because Karnes has removed these samples from the showroom floors and has saved repacking and reshipping charges, because Karnes has purchased in large volume; and because these are floor samples, YOU CAN SAVE HUNDREDS OF DOLLARS if you act now.

Eye Low Cost Housing Foe For Panel

The president of a Des Plaines group opposed to low and moderate-income housing will be considered for appointment to the city's special housing commission, created in February to examine local housing problems.

Joseph Botte, president of Des Plaines Citizens Opposed to Low and Moderate-Income Housing, joins 12 other residents now being considered for the commission. The seven-member panel will consist of an attorney, a licensed contractor, an expert in mortgage finance and four other residents.

Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel has not indicated how many more residents may be added to the consideration list. He has not said when he will submit his own final recommendations, or when he will ask for final council action on the appointments.

Botte's name was added to the list Monday night, after Mayor Behrel read a letter signed by Botte asking to serve on the commission.

A motion was made by Ald. Joseph Szabo (1st) and seconded by Ald. Robert Sherwood (2nd) to include Botte among those being considered. These actions, according to council procedures, made Botte a candidate for appointment.

Behrel had stated soon after creation of the commission last winter that he had received letters from both Botte and the Rev. John Peterson, who had led a group in favor of low and moderate-income housing. Both asked to be appointed to the commission.

BEHREL INDICATED that he did not want to appoint residents who already had formed unalterable opinions on housing issues.

Behrel did not submit Botte's or the Rev. Mr. Peterson's name in the first list of possible appointees presented last month to the council. However, he did include names of residents who had stated publicly that they either favored or opposed low and moderate-income housing.

Botte wrote letters to the Herald and to Behrel asking that his name be added, and Behrel agreed Monday night to read a letter from Botte to the council.

The Rev. Mr. Peterson was unavailable for comment yesterday.

In his letter, Botte wrote that "the wishes of the majority in Des Plaines must have a strong voice in the Housing Commission. I can and will serve that purpose."

He stated that "shortly after the formation of the housing commission, I expect every social agency in this area to inundate the commission with tons of loaded statistics attempting to prove why low-income housing must be recommended immediately. I would be able to successfully rebut their arguments; others may not."

According to Botte, about half of the names included in the list under consideration have been associated with groups that favor such housing.

THE 13 under consideration include Botte, Raymond Schuepfer, former building commissioner; Jerry Perkins, 1179 Margret St., an officer of the Des Plaines Citizens Opposed to Low and Moderate-Income Housing and also a member of the John Birch Society of Des Plaines; Mrs. Alan Lapides, who headed a League of Women Voters Study group which recommended construction of low and moderate-income housing in Des Plaines.

Others are George Mott, 1736 Stockton Ave., former chairman of the city's human relations commission; Anne Evans, 988 Jeannette St., former Constitutional Convention delegate and chairman of a citizens group for reelection of Gov. Ogilvie; and George Olen, 1242 White St., chairman of the human relations commission who spoke against low and moderate-income housing at a public hearing last fall.

Also Stuart Edinoff, 1267 Earl Ave., an officer of the Des Plaines Jaycees and a real estate salesman; Bert Thompson, 421 Beau Dr., a former Racine, Wis. alderman and attorney for a large insurance company; Robert Nebgen, a Park Ridge teacher who has written letters to the Herald favoring low and moderate-income housing.

Also Drake Mertes, 1524 Sixth Ave., a 21-year-old Northwestern University student who has written a study on Des Plaines housing problems; the Rev. Donald Hallberg, former associate pastor at the Trinity Lutheran Church, 567 Algonquin Rd.; and Lee Marconi, 464 N. Cambridge Ave., a contractor.

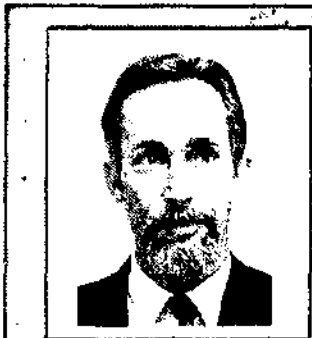

As proof that some on the list favor low and moderate-income housing, Botte indicates in the letter that four are associated with the League of Women Voters, which has said low and moderate-income housing is needed in Des Plaines.

THOSE ASSOCIATED with the League are Mrs. Evans and Mrs. Lapides, who are members, and Edinoff and Thompson, whose wives are members.

Botte does not indicate how Rev. Hallberg is identified with pro-low and moderate-income housing. Rev. Hallberg, a board member of the Maine Township Mental Health Association, is now employed by a welfare agency.

The Lighter Side

by Dick West

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the presidential campaign this year, many of the routine chores traditionally performed by volunteer workers have been taken over by computers.

There are computers that crank out "personalized" form letter soliciting contributions or votes.

Other computers make follow-up telephone calls featuring recorded messages from the candidates.

Some computers even operate on the policy level, supplying the candidates with information on voting trends and population shifts.

This helps them avoid technical mistakes, such as sampling the wares of a sidewalk pizza vendor while campaigning in a Polish neighborhood.

AND I'm sure it must have occurred to several of the candidates that a computer would make an ideal vice presidential running mate.

Perhaps the electorate isn't yet ready to accept an automated veep, but the advantages it would offer are readily apparent.

It is no secret, for instance, that one or more candidates for the Democratic nomination would like to have Sen. Edward Kennedy on the ticket.

Kennedy, however, has launched a vigorous campaign to avoid being tapped for the vice presidential slot.

Earlier in the year, you'll recall Kennedy was spending about 65 per cent of his time not running for president. It now appears that pursuit of vice presidential unavailability will be equally demanding.

Assuming he succeeds in staying out of the race, this would be a perfect spot for the computer.

A COMPUTER could be programmed with all of the traits that presumably endear Kennedy to certain voters. But it would not be held accountable for things Kennedy might have done that offended certain other voters.

Dr. Luigi V. Populi, the noted political analyst and watering tycoon with whom I discussed this matter, believes a computer would be an asset to the Republican as well as the Democratic ticket.

"Nixon could program his computer along John Connally lines," he pointed out. "That would appease the 'dump Agnew' crowd without raising a party-switching issue."

But Populi feels the main advantage of having a computer for a running mate would be the post-election convenience.

"With just one simple adjustment, the President could prepare the computer to carry out the duties of the vice president."

"All he would have to do is pull the plug."

RAND RAMBLERS
Jim Stewart will be calling the squares tomorrow night for the Rand Ramblers, at the Boy Scouts of America Building, 1622 N. Rand Rd., Arlington Heights, beginning at 8:30 a.m.

Round dancing begins at 8 p.m. with Gene and Edna Arnfield and dancing will continue until 11 p.m. Every one is invited... The center is air conditioned.

The Rand Ramblers will hold an "advance ticket dance" on July 8th with Jim Stewart and Jerry Haag calling the squares. Since this is an advance ticket dance there will be no tickets sold that night at the door. For tickets please call Ken Odenwald at 520-7354.

HAPPY TWIRLERS
Happy Twirlers will be dancing tonight at the Congregational Church, Graceland and Marion streets in Des Plaines, with Char-Lee Weiders calling the squares, beginning at 8 p.m.

Two more Friday square dances will bring to a close another season for the Happy Twirlers. Their program will continue, however, every Friday night through July and August with round dancing, giving members an opportunity to learn round dance fundamentals and review the "easy rounds" of the month that were selected since last September. Should a "cold" evening happen along, several square dances may be "thrown in" to keep Twirlers from becoming "rusty" during the summer.

All square dancers who aspire to becoming round dancers are welcome to participate in this program. More information can be obtained by calling 824-1464.

Jesse Jackson On His Own At Last

by DAVID SMOTHERS
UPI Senior Editor

In a way, Rev. Jesse Jackson is on his own at last. But not quite. Upon his chest he wears a medallion as big as a medium-sized pie pan bearing the image of the late Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

The evocation of Rev. King seems to be about Rev. Jackson always. Rev. Jackson does not let you forget it.

He hopes, he believes, he has Rev. King's gift going for him — to find and grasp what Rev. Jackson calls "the transcendent issues."

To Rev. Jackson, the transcendent issue for blacks in 1972 is no longer civil rights in the traditional sense. As he preaches the case now, "It's the economic time of day." Economic power achieved through pressure. Political leverage achieved by pressure. Jesse Jackson personally applying pressure upon the mighty of the land.

It seems a tall order for a young black minister of 30 who has just cut himself loose from the organization Rev. King loosed from the organization Rev. King early power and prestige, not to mention publicity.

BUT JESSE Louis Jackson has been around. He has been a man to be reckoned with for some time and only the next year or two can determine whether he is still one.

In a sense, tragedy made Rev. Jackson a man to be reckoned with. He was one of the inner circle of those who were with Rev. King when he fell on a motel balcony in Memphis in 1968. He helped pick up the pieces of Rev. King's movement. The Chicago-based Operation Breadbasket, which he headed, became the most visible manifestation of Rev. King's Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

The commanding, somewhat glowering face of Rev. Jackson made the cover of Time magazine. He all but twisted the arms of Chicago power brokers to grant Negroes better employment opportunities. Hardly a man in the civil rights movement was not eager to join the young preacher in the mad getup at his weekly meetings in a converted South Side movie theatre.

Rev. Jackson was instant press, sure shot charisma. Then, last December, he the SCLC split. The stated reasons why bog down in details of organizational bickering. The main cause appears to be SCLC leadership's reluctance to let Rev. Jackson run his own show and Rev. Jackson's insistence on doing so.

For better or for worse, that is what Rev. Jackson is running now. Since every organization lately seems to be known by artfully contrived initials, Rev. Jackson's operation is called PUSH, for "People United to Save Humanity." "We thought first of calling it Help," Rev. Jackson says. "But that sounded too subservient, like begging. Still, everyone needs help."

WHETHER PUSH can push anyone

SPLIT IN THE SOUTHERN Christian Leadership Conference was formalized with the ouster of Rev. Jesse Jackson, left, leader of Operation Breadbasket in Chicago, by the Atlanta headquarters of Rev. Ralph and become the national organization it aspires to be depends to a great degree on whether Rev. Jackson can pull his people along with him.

Abernathy, right, successor to Martin Luther King as SCLC president. Jackson is establishing a new Chicago-based economic and political organization called PUSH (People United to Save Humanity).

On two cold days in Chicago late last month, he appeared to be doing quite well.

Eight-hundred of a Saturday morning at the corner of 48th Street and Dorchester on the South Side. The temperature is 26 degrees and a north wind whistling down the lake front brings the chill factor to 3 below. Rev. Jackson's people are gathering at the Shiloh Missionary Baptist Church for the weekly meeting of PUSH. They know they won't see him for more than two hours, but they're willing to wait.

The wait is worth it. There are two rock combos below the pulpit and when their throbbing melds with the voices of Rev. Jackson's people's choir it makes a joyous sound. Then, consternation. It is five minutes before PUSH goes on the air over radio station WVON ("Voice of the Negro") and the public address system goes off.

A young minister shouts from the pulpit. "We've lost our power in this room, but we've got power in our hearts and there's power in this microphone." A man at the back of the room comments, matter of factly.

"We've got soul power." Right on cue at 9 a.m. the voices of the people's choir swell and they don't need a public address system. Five minutes later, the power returns and the sound is more joyous than ever.

TOM TODD, the Northwestern University law lecturer Rev. Jackson has enlisted as his vice president, tells the congregation they are united "behind that great young force and that great old force, Jesse Louis Jackson."

"I consider myself an organizer," Rev. Jackson says. "I don't have the leader complex. I can't stand all those introductions. I say I'm a country preacher."

Rev. Jackson is barely 20 feet away from the pulpit, in a cramped room where a guard stands inside the closed door and WVON blares the service before Rev. Jackson tunes it down.

In bell-bottomed pants, gray T-shirt and the silver King medallion bobbing, he shuffles yellow foolscap, answers the telephone, perches on a table to talk to aides.

CREMATION IS SELDOM used as a form of burial in this one at the Memory Gardens Cemetery in Arlington Heights. However, if the cremated form is chosen, the remains are placed in mausoleums like

Formerly Viewed As Impious Practice

Cremation Gaining Acceptability

In years past, cremation was viewed by many Protestants and nearly all Catholics as an impious practice.

Today it is rapidly gaining acceptability among Christians. Some clergy men strongly recommend it to bereaved families.

Several things have helped to bring about this change.

First is the realization that there never have been any valid theological grounds for preferring burial to burning as a means of disposing of a human corpse.

The traditional opposition of the Catholic Church to cremation arose not out of doctrine but out of historical circumstances which are now long-forgotten and completely irrelevant to our own times. The Church frowned on cremation because, a few centuries back, cremation was advocated by unbelievers as a defiant manifestation of their disbelief in immortality.

BUT THE CATHOLIC Church has always taught that cremation is not wrong in itself and in countries such as Japan, where cremation is a virtually universal custom, Catholic parishes routinely conduct funeral rites which culminate with final absolution at the crematorium.

One reason why both Protestants and Catholics have shied away from cremation in the past is that popular imagination tends to envision resurrection in terms of a resuscitated corpse rising from a grave.

But even brief reflection will discredit this idea. In the first place, a body buried in the ground even though it has been embalmed ultimately will suffer the same total dissolution that is accomplished instantly in cremation — a fact recognized in a scriptural passage often read at interments: "All are from the dust, and all turn to dust again."

Some contemporary theologians feel cremation is spiritually instructive because it compels people to abandon childish concepts of resurrection and learn to think of it in the mature Christian imagery employed by the Apostle Paul.

PAUL SCOLDED the early Christians at Corinth for morbid curiosity about the physical processes that might be involved in resurrection of a decomposed human body. "When the body is buried, it is mortal, when raised, it will be immortal," he said. "When buried, it is a physical body; when raised, it will be a spiritual body."

Having discovered there are no sound religious grounds for opposing cremation, a growing number of church members are finding it an attractive option for two reasons.

First, it vastly reduces the high cost of dying — especially if the bereaved family steadfastly resists any suggestion that the corpse should be placed in an expensive coffin to be burned.

Second, when a body is cremated rather than buried, there is no point in holding the conventional type of funeral service at which attention is morbidly focused on the corpse-in-the-casket. Instead, family and friends can gather in church at a suitable time for a memorial service in which the accent is on the Christian conviction that death is but the gateway to a larger life of eternal joy.

In any room, he is the man who cannot be ignored — the supple leanness of a football quarterback (which he was at Tennessee A & I), the startling eyes, almost Oriental in repose, jack-o-lantern otherwise, the soft voice, almost whispering, compelling attention because it is so soft.

But he doesn't want to talk. He has to go out to the pulpit and then catch a plane to meet his board of directors in New York.

THE TALK MUST wait for an afternoon in the Parkway ballroom on the slush-mired corner of 45th Street and Martin Luther King Drive.

Rev. Jackson is winding up a lunch of PUSH's commercial division — 150 or so black businessmen and their wives along with an incongruous array of white naval officers up on the speaker's platform.

In black, high-collared suit, pink shirt, light suede boots with high heels and the King medallion, he lays the Jackson stare upon the audience while Todd, a burly, bearded man, exhorts them to "follow the leadership of Jesse Jackson in the image of Martin Luther King."

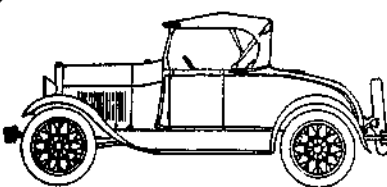

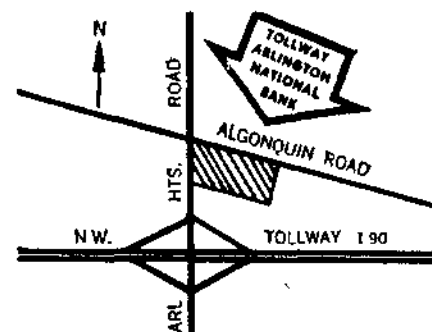

"Brother Todd is a frustrated preacher," Rev. Jackson joshes a few moments later.

SPECIAL OF THE WEEK

'Misses' Look For 'Honest' Candidates

That politician who seeks the youth vote is best advised not to speak from both sides of his mouth, a group of outstanding new high school graduates from six states said this week.

Lydia Anne Hodson, Lexington, Ky., America's Junior Miss for 1972, and five of the Junior Miss Pageant's state winners agreed on few issues during a free-wheeling news conference sponsored by the pageant to show off some of "the cream of America's youth."

All six girls, all but one of them members of the National Honor Society, agreed, however, that they look for honesty in candidates for public office.

Diane Lynn Jole, Brown Deer, Wis., brought nods of agreement from the other five girls when she said, "I look for honesty in a presidential candidate. They seem to make promises and then not fulfill them."

BARBARA JEAN Gorgol, Illinois' Junior Miss from Des Plaines and third runnerup in the national contest, added: "Politicians can say things almost opposite to two different groups and that's the kind of thing turns me off. It seems so often that they're not speaking truly from their own heart."

Cathy Sue Dey, St. Joseph, Mich., said she surprised judges at the Junior Miss finals in Mobile, Ala., in May when she told them she might vote for Alabama Gov. George Wallace even though she doesn't agree with all his beliefs.

"Candidates are so wishy-washy," Cathy, who was second runnerup in the national contest, said. "Wallace is firm in his beliefs. I don't agree with all of them, but he says what he believes."

Darlyn Thornberry, Clayton, Ind., said she looks for a candidate who shows concern for the country. "Too many are out for me, myself. People in the United States need someone they can trust, who is honest, and who is looking out for the good of the country."

MISS HODSON said she felt it is the responsibility of citizens to be active in politics and government, even if only at the community and neighborhood levels. She said she thinks 18-year-olds are taking their responsibilities as voters seriously. Reminded of surveys that indicate 18 to 20-year-olds are not registering to vote in heavy numbers in some areas, she quickly replied, "That's true of every age."

Two of the girls — Miss Hodson and Jody Ann Walker, Milford, Iowa — said they support the presidential candidacy of Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., and Miss Gorgol said she intends to vote for President Nixon. The other three indicated no preference in the presidential election.

They all seemed to feel that young people think voting is a serious business and that voters under 21 do not necessarily prefer more liberal candidates.

Miss Gorgol said, "I know a lot of kids really feel the responsibility of the vote and they really study the candidates."

Miss Walker added that "since Nixon has really done what he said he would in bringing the troops home from Vietnam," she feels the majority of the young voters will make decisions based on the economy.

MISS WALKER said college students should be allowed to vote in the communities where they attend school because they are directly affected by that city. Most of the other girls agreed, providing the student lives on campus or in the campus community.

The Junior Miss Pageant is a nationwide scholarship program for high school senior girls. In local, state and national judging, the girls are evaluated on poise and appearance, fitness, scholastic achievement, creative and performing arts and an interview with the judges. The interview alone accounts for 35 per cent. The six girls here Wednesday won 124,000 in scholarships between them from the contest.

The local pageant, held each fall, is sponsored by Padlock Publications

Drivers Facing 'Card Charge'

Pity the poor gas station operator and the automobile owner!

Buffeted by a continual price war which forces large numbers of owners out of business every year, and threatened at night by robbers, the gas station owner faces today a new threat, a possible "service charge" for credit card losses.

The other victim, of course, will be any person who drives a car. And the culprit — the only culprit, at this writing — is the Shell Oil Co.

Most recently, Shell officials announced that gas stations in the Chicago area would raise prices 1 per cent, cash and charge alike, to cover a 1 per cent operational charge for handling credit cards.

It seems that credit cards, which now account for the majority of purchases of gasoline, have been an easy target for theft, and it has cost Shell and other gasoline companies millions of dollars.

So, last week Shell announced it would charge all credit card customers 1 per cent for the use of cards. On purchases made with non-Shell cards the charge would be an extra 2.2 per cent.

Now, however, the Justice Department and the Federal Trade Commission have notified the Illinois Gasoline Dealers Assn. that the 1 per cent charge on credit cards alone would be illegal. Instead, it must apply to all purchasers, they reported.

Shell is the only company to move for the 1 per cent charge. In a survey by Lea Tonkin, Herald business writer, other major oil companies would not commit themselves to what steps they could take in the future.

However, there's a good chance the practice could catch on. The customer would suffer and the gasoline station owner — especially Shell operators, if the competition does not match the 1 per cent charge — would lose business.

The answer to the problem is not to sock the station owner or the driver with a 1 per cent charge. The problem is that Shell is experiencing considerable credit card theft and illegal usage, thus accounting for the loss figure.

In part, Shell is a victim of the credit card craze, in which cash in some situations is no longer an acceptable means of purchasing goods and services.

Today, if you are a driver you probably have a pack of credit cards which almost fill your wallet or purse. The chances are good, too, that one or two of these cards came with little effort. Perhaps they arrived unsolicited through the mail.

That's where the problem begins for credit card distributors. But if they're seriously interested in curbing card theft, there are several ways to protect themselves.

—Requiring photo identification on cards (Master Charge does it, why can't Shell?)

—Requiring persons to pick up credit cards at gasoline stations, thus eliminating part of the threat of mail theft.

It doesn't make sense for the consumer to have to pay for a gasoline manufacturer's errors and carelessness. Shell should police its own house: if it doesn't its business and the welfare of its station operators will suffer an economic loss.

Happier News Needed

What's black and white, and alas, sometimes in the red? The daily newspaper, a 3-cent version of which you can't buy anywhere in the United States today, reports Editor & Publisher magazine (although there's one selling for 4 cents in Illinois).

Ten years ago six dailies were still quoted at 3 cents in a compilation made by the American Newspaper Publishers Association. Only 532 had gone to 10 cents and four to 15 cents. The largest group, 695, held to 5 cents.

Wall Street Panic

Those so-called bulls and bears on Wall Street sometimes act more like turkeys — flightless but flighty fowl who, as any turkey farmer knows, succumb to mass panic at the slightest provocation.

Witness the seven-point drop in the stock market at news of Sen.

Today, the nickel group has dwindled to 29 while the 15 cent papers are catching up in number with those holding at a dime. The figures are 1,277 of the former and 1,394 of the latter.

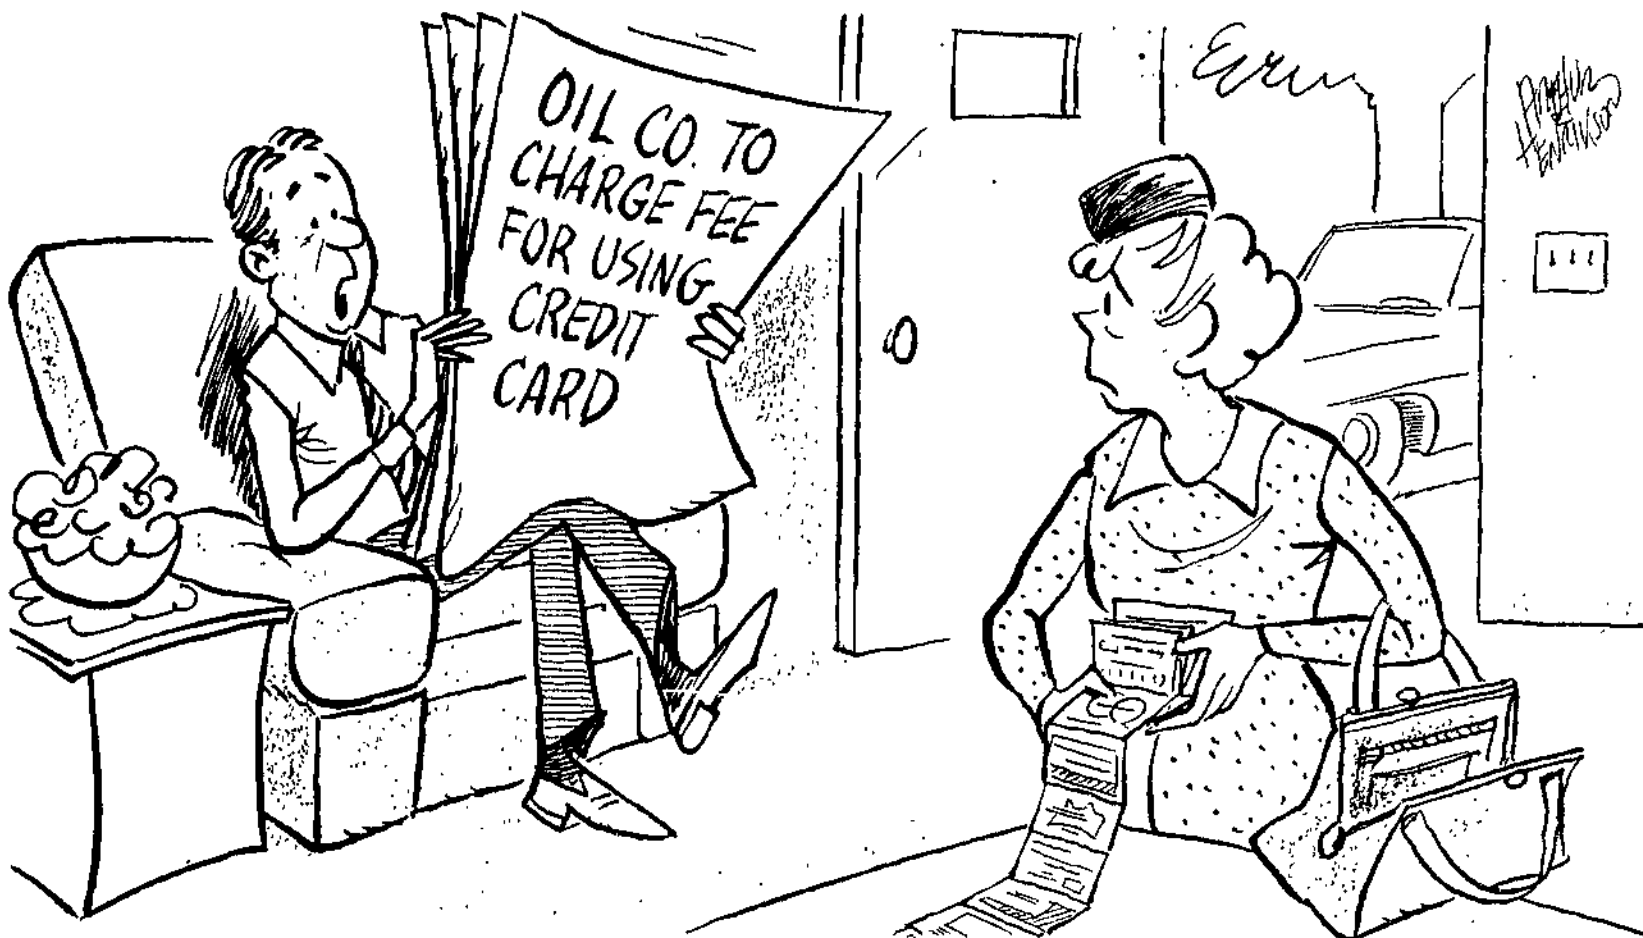

Four dailies have gone to 20 cents, one to 25 cents and one to 30 cents, a newstand copy. The normally thicker Sunday editions are also proportionately higher.

Wouldn't it be nice if the news they publish had become correspondingly more pleasant to read?

George McGovern's win in the California primary, McGovern, of course, is a nasty, nasty man who talks about wielding the ax of economic reform if he's elected president.

That's a long way off and an iffy prospect, but a mere shadow's enough to frighten turkeys.

This Is Liable To Bring Back Money!!

County Line

Will Voting Machines Be Ready?

by ROGER CAPETTINI
Metropolitan Editor

When the county board approved an $891,765 contract for 447 more voting machines Monday, they said the purchase would ensure there will be voting machines in every precinct for the November election.

I wouldn't bet a lot of money on it. Or, more specifically, I wouldn't gamble that the machines will be worth anything, even if they are at the polling places.

You see, even if the county has 3,800 machines in almost 2,000 polling places in time for the election, it won't mean much if the machines don't work.

And as slim a possibility as that may be, it does exist.

The potential problem stems, as most problems do, from a shortage of money and manpower. In this case the deficiency may exist in the election division of the county clerk's office.

The problem first began to take shape back in January when County Comm. Floyd Fulle of Des Plaines was successful in having 23 of 27 full-time voting machine mechanic positions cut from the county payroll. Fulle said there was no need for that many mechanics, adding if they were cut, the county would save $174,000 a year. The cutback, ordered in the wake of widespread allegations of mismanagement and waste in the county operation, included a provision enabling the election division to hire 24 men for a total of one month a year. The thought was they would be hired to work a week before and a week following both the primary and the November election.

But that entire 24-man-month has already been used up.

In order to get all the machines ready for the primary, the election division had to hire back some of the men they had fired. Additionally, to save suburban voters from paper ballots, the clerk's office had to bring in voting machine experts from the Shoup Voting Machine Co.

As the situation now stands, the election division has four men to prepare for the election the 3,353 voting machines the county has in its possession. The same four men will have to work on the 447 new machines, expected to begin arrival in lots of 27, but not due, technically, until Sept. 15.

And, the same four men will have to keep the 3,800 machines operating during the hours the polls will be open.

Of course the county board could pass some kind of emergency appropriation so the clerk can hire part-time help, but the question is who would he hire?

Most of the men who used to work on the machines have gone out and found other jobs. And don't count on bringing those Shoup workers back, either. That company has gone bankrupt, or is on the verge of doing so, depending on which version you happen to hear.

That company's successor, the International Elections Systems Corp., apparently has said it may be able to supply a few men, but unlike the March primary in Illinois, the next election date is a national event. It would be safe to assume that International will be requested to supply men all over the country, and not channel all their efforts into Cook County.

The election division already has started looking for experienced voting machine mechanics, but reports the outlook isn't exactly bright.

Roger

After all, you just don't find voting machine mechanics standing around on street corners. And a call to your local, friendly day labor office isn't likely to produce significant help.

The bedlam which resulted from the last election in Cuyahoga County, Ohio, could be surpassed here if someone doesn't find a way out of this mess.

In case you're interested, part of the $174,000 "saving" was eaten away with the hiring of the Shoup men and the rehiring of some of the county workers.

Monday the county board approved the payment of more than $30,000 to the Shoup company for the 15 men they sent out to prepare the machines and the 15 men they sent to help out with machine failures election day.

The bill from Shoup broke down this way: Salaries, $18,732.50; Meals, $2,250; Hotels, $3,367.52; Air fare, $3,925; Transportation, $1,727.59; and Miscellaneous, $410.50. Total: $30,413.11.

And that doesn't take into consideration the money it cost to hire back the workers the county fired a few weeks earlier. It also doesn't include the money it is going to cost to guarantee a smooth election in November.

Kind of makes you wonder what was accomplished, aside from putting about 20 men out of work.

ERA's 'Time Has Come,' He Says

This coming week the House of Representatives of the Illinois legislature is going to reconsider the Women's Rights Amendment.

As an independent candidate for Governor of Illinois, I wholeheartedly support this amendment, and I strongly encourage all of your readers to contact their legislators so they too will support this needed amendment.

The equal rights amendment has been the center of a storm of controversy, and the subject of many misconceptions and misrepresentations. As one who has been in public life for nearly a decade I have been shocked and dismayed by some of the tasteless and improper statements by representatives in the legislature. Given the circus-like atmosphere of the legislature, the utter shambles in Springfield, and the contemptible work product of the General Assembly, the state legislators are in no position to preach holier than thou to anyone.

The equal rights amendment would recognize a simple fact of life. All citizens are entitled to equal rights and equal responsibilities under the law. A society in which all citizens share rights and responsibilities, is a stronger society than one in which there are separate classes of citizens.

Many working women are the subject of discrimination. They are the subject of employment discrimination, salary discrimination and promotion discrimination. Many of these women are heads of households, and they are forced to work at reduced and often inadequate salary levels because of a society which systematically discriminates against women. The equal rights amendment would end this discrimination. Women would be entitled to equal pay for equal work. I do not see how anyone can be against such a sensible proposition, and how the legislators who are opposed could have made the senseless, vicious statements they did.

Two years ago I was one of the originating parties in a landmark case still pending before the Federal Communications Commission to investigate job discrimination against women and others. The still incomplete results of this case have documented shocking employment abuses. These abuses could be documented and redocumented in any big organization which employs a large number of women.

One of the reasons I was motivated to enter the race for Governor of Illinois was my belief that both major party candidates are lukewarm in their support of equal rights for women. They are publicly on record in support of women, but that is all they have done and all they are likely to do. Neither Dan Walker nor Governor Ogilvie are strong supporters of appointing women to high positions of executive responsibility in government. I favor such appointments.

Many are under the misconception the women's rights amendment is the end of the road. It is not. It is in effect the beginning. Armed with the constitution as a new tool, we will be able to attack, and ultimately eliminate, all forms of discrimination. As Governor of Illinois I would work toward this goal, and as a candidate I support the equal rights amendment.

French philosophers once said, "Nothing is so powerful as an idea whose time has come." The time for equal rights for all has come.

Jaycee Wives Applaud Coverage

I want to take this opportunity to thank your entire staff for the great cooperation they have given the Hoffman Estates Jaycee wives this year. Without your great publicity, our projects would not have been as successful as they were.

Through our numerous Ways and Means projects we were able to donate a $444 16 MM. movie projector to the Hoffman Estates Park District, a $220 park bench for the Hoffman Estates Municipal Building, and a $250 check to the Alexian Brothers Medical Center's fund for a pediatric intensive care unit. Our Service projects have included a baby-sitting clinic course, the Boy's Club Homecoming Queen Pageant and participating in Project Help.

The entire membership is grateful for your help.

'We'll Act On Ecology'

I would like to take exception to the opinion you expressed in your June 15 article on air pollution. Despite the small turnout at the subcommittee meeting of the Environmental Control Commission I can assure you that many citizens are deeply concerned about pollution both present and future. One of the four citizens who attended the meeting represented the Berkeley Square Civic Association; the Berkeley Square area contains in excess of 750 homes. We are concerned about our natural resources and anything that may pose a threat to them.

The time to act is now, as several important decisions will be made soon affecting our water supply and refuse disposal. We are concerned and we intend to lend our support to those proposals that will guarantee a healthy stable environment. We do not intend to complain, we intend to act to insure that the proper decisions are made today so that there will continue to be tomorrow.

Palatine Needs Cabs

Do, please, add my letter of grievance and comment in regard to the unjustness to the Palatine Cab Co I rely on cabs as do quite a number of others, to get to the village.

Since when does a fast growing community, such as Palatine, think it can get by with one cab line?

Thru word of friends, who sincerely recommended the Palatine Cab as being the best in service and courtesy, I've been using it since it has been in operation here. Mr. and Mrs. Daniels have a great clientele built up thru their honesty, friendliness and hard work. Too bad a mere technicality is forcing our great village to sever a most needed commodity.

As will be, a much longer wait for a cab and a much higher fee per mile.

Word-A-Day

Business Today

by BERNARD BRENNER
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Leading contenders for the Democratic presidential nomination will have no trouble supporting a "statement of principles" adopted by the National Farm Coalition, farm sources predict.

Many of the specific proposals in the statement, however, run counter to the basic elements of President Nixon's farm policies. As a result, the coalition is likely to find little support for its key plans in the national GOP campaign this fall.

The statement was adopted by representatives for 27 groups gathered under the National Farm Coalition banner. The groups, including many which have been frequent critics of administration farm actions, included both national organizations such as the National Farmers Union, National Grange and National Farmers Organization and regional groups ranging from the big Midcontinent Farmers Association to the small Webster County Neb. Farmers Organization.

HOWEVER, THE coalition's list of signers did not include the nation's biggest farm organization, the American Farm Bureau Federation, which has opposed the coalition on most farm policy issues. Also absent were such groups as the American National Cattlemen's Association and the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives.

The policy statement, drafted for presentation to the platform committees of both parties, includes a demand that farm price support levels should be raised to not less than 90 per cent of parity when accompanied by "effective" production control programs. The statement charged the current farm program, which administration officials endorse, "has failed to meet these objectives."

The statement also calls for building a government-owned "strategic reserve" of surplus farm commodities and passing a law to ban big nonfarm corporations from farming. The administration has opposed legislation on both points this year.

New Consumer Agency OK'd

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate, overriding vigorous administration opposition, Wednesday approved creation of an independent new super agency to insure the purity and safety of food, drugs and consumer products.

The bill was passed on a 69 to 10 roll call vote and sent to the House, where a measure more to White House liking is awaiting action.

Both measures are designed to combat the accident toll involving consumer products — an estimated 20 million persons injured each year, 30,000 of them fatally and another 110,000 left permanently disabled.

The bill as passed would weave together product regulatory functions now scattered through various government departments into one powerful new Food, Drug, and Consumer Product Agency (FDCA) answerable only to Congress.

DISMANTLED in the process would be the Food and Drug Administration (FDA), which for 40 years has been the prime guardian of pure food, drugs and cosmetics. It also has been a prime target of congressional criticism for allegedly doing a mediocre job. The FDA is an arm of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The administration approach rejected by the Senate would have given the Justice Department the job of enforcing product safety rules issued by the FDCA. Instead the final bill would give the agency its own tough enforcement powers — including authority to order hazardous products off the market.

But removed from the bill by voice vote were provisions that would have empowered the FDCA to take over the meat, poultry and egg inspection functions of the Agriculture Department.

Personal Finance

Figures showing that the typical family's living expenses increased more than 20 per cent over a four-year period may help to answer the budgeter's eternal plaint: "Where does the money go?"

To most consumers, such measures of living costs as the Consumer Price Index probably are too abstract to have much impact — but the dollar-and-cent figures for family budgets should give you a jolt. Latest calculations of the Bureau of Labor statistics — lagging six months behind today's costs — show:

Budget for an urban family of four, at an "intermediate" living standard — $10,971. That's up from $9,076 four-and-a-half years earlier, a 20 per cent rise.

For a higher standard of living, $15,965 needed, compared to the earlier figure of $13,050 — up 22 per cent.

THE BUREAU'S "lower level" budget was up 22 per cent, rising from $5,919 to $7,214.

Many families will find that, at mid-year 1972, they'll have to spend even more to maintain the same standard of living. For one thing, these are national averages. As the National Consumer Finance Association points out, "equivalent budget levels varied widely among cities and regions, with the lowest in small cities in the South, and the highest generally in the largest metropolitan areas." So if you're not lucky enough to live in a small southern city, mark up your living costs by x per cent.

In addition, we've had half a year of inflation since these figures were compiled. The news about food prices, released by the Labor Department earlier this month, indicates that inflation is alive and — should we say "well?" — despite frequent official announcements that inflation is on its death bed.

Wholesale prices of farm products, processed foods and feed took a jump of 0.8 per cent (seasonally adjusted) in May — an annual rate of 9.6 per cent, a prospect that ought to shake up even the professional optimists.

TO PUT THE matter of family costs in context, there have been accompanying gains in personal income; otherwise we'd all be in the poorhouse. But currently, the N.C.F.A. points out, consumers are in the middle of a two-way squeeze. On one side is rising prices, on the other the fact that "taxes have been absorbing increasing proportions of personal income." Even when you get more, you're allowed to keep a smaller share to live on.

To illustrate what the combination of inflation and heavier taxes has done to family living costs in recent years, the N.C.F.A. cites figures of the Conference Board showing that $18,570 is needed today to equal the purchasing power of $10,000 of income in 1949.

During the intervening years, the bite taken out of that income by federal income and Social Security taxes increased by $2,100. At the same time, inflation cut purchasing power by $6,470. Thus equals $18,570, and you can add to the latter figure whatever state and local taxes you pay. They're so variable that the Conference Board left them out of account.

What inflation's squeeze is adding up to currently is a good deal more than the price "bulge" the administration said would occur after the freeze. You're likely to hear increasingly the complaint that Phase II isn't working, and demands for tougher policies and tougher enforcement.

Northwest Suburban Village Blood Donor Programs Urged

by ROGER CAPELLINI
A spokesman for a new, regional blood center serving the North and Northwest suburbs urged representatives of the

Immunize Your Kids This Summer

Dr. John B. Hall, director of the Cook County Department of Public Health, this week urged parents of young children to have them immunized during the summer months.

Hall said immunizations against diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus and polio should be given during the first year of life, with boosters approximately a year later and on entrance to school. Immunizations against measles and Rubella should be given when the child is a year old, the doctor added.

Illinois law requires that all children must be fully protected from the communicable diseases before entering school.

Hall said parents who cannot afford to take their children to private physicians for the immunizations should arrange to visit one of eight suburban clinics operated by the county department.

The department operates two such clinics in the Northwest suburban area. One is located at the Westminster Presbyterian Church, 800 S. Beau Dr., Des Plaines. The clinic is held the first Wednesday of each month from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m.

A second clinic is held at St. Peter's Lutheran School, 208 E. Schaumburg Rd., Schaumburg, the fourth Wednesday of each month from 1 to 3 p.m.

Parents are requested to call the department's north district office at 827-5188 for registration and to bring to the clinic all the child's medical records to determine which boosters are appropriate.

The son of a Hoffman Estates couple has recently been honored along with other men in his unit for outstanding service by the U.S. Air Force.

Staff Sergeant Terrence M. Howe, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn E. Howe, 268 Dennison Rd., Hoffman Estates, was cited for meritorious service during a Strategic Air Command training exercise conducted last year.

S/Sgt. Howe is a 1966 graduate of Conant High School in Hoffman Estates. He is currently serving as a refrigeration and air conditioning specialist in the 379th Bomb Wing at Wurtsmith Air Force Base, Mich.

Northwest Municipal Conference Wednesday night to consider implementing village blood donor programs.

Dr. Earl E. Suckow, chairman of the medical advisory board of the North Suburban Association for Health Resources, outlined the objectives and various plans offered by the center for more than a dozen mayors and managers at the municipal conference meeting.

Dr. Suckow, a pathologist at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines, said the major objectives of the new blood center are to eliminate the use of paid donor blood and to maintain the necessary supply of blood exclusively through local donations.

Thirteen hospitals are cooperating with the center to achieve those goals. Dr. Suckow said. Among the 13 are five hospitals which serve the Northwest suburbs: Holy Family, Des Plaines; Lutheran General, Park Ridge; Northwest Community, Arlington Heights; Alexian Brothers, Elk Grove Village; and Forest Hospital, Des Plaines.

DR. SUCKOW said the new North Suburban Blood Center located at 1740 Waukegan Rd., Glenview, will be capable of supplying the more than 20,000 pints of blood needed each year by the 13 hospitals. The center also maintains a blood inventory control board to assist in locating the units where they are needed and to reduce outdated.

He said blood is good only for about 21 days. The system in use at the center has resulted in a six per cent outdated factor. The doctor explained that approximately 30 per cent of the blood supply is lost nationally because of outdated.

The pathologist, in addressing the conference members, emphasized he was not arguing membership in one plan as opposed to another, but primarily wanted the communities to be aware the center is in operation and is trying to fill a need.

He said the center works on a scheduled plan for donors so that it can, "avoid the peaks and valleys." He added, "We want to provide a center with minimal delivery time, located in the heart of the district. We want to use volunteer blood because it is low-risk blood."

The problem with paying donors, the doctor explained, is that some potential donors who may have had hepatitis are only 25 per cent accurate, however, the doctor said. He added the chance of someone getting "bad blood" from the north suburban center is greatly reduced.

"WE HAVE to have blood donor programs," Dr. Suckow said. "We are in the process of beginning that now. Now we are saying we need community support. We need your blood so we can better serve your communities."

Dr. Suckow told the mayors and managers that he and other center representatives will be ready in about six weeks to make full presentations to any community, civic club or business concern interested in a blood donor program. He urged anyone considering starting such a program to investigate the various plans the center offers.

Dabbling In Art

Down On The Farm

by GENIE CAMPBELL

There are some places left, even near a bustling metropolis like Chicago, that quietly exude the charm and serenity of a lazy summer day . . . where rush hour traffic and expressway construction are highly irrelevant.

Willow Brook Art Center in Long Grove is that way. It's pure country stretched out on a 350-acre farm that dates back 150 years.

Twenty years ago, Willow Brook was still a working farm and the three main barns housed chickens, cows and other livestock.

Now the buildings, characterized by scrubbed white-washed interiors with matched white exteriors trimmed in baby blue, are the sites during the summer for a multitude of craft and art classes. Who couldn't be impelled to create in such relaxed, tranquil surroundings?

DIRECTOR OF Willow Brook Art Center, which is located a half mile west of Route 83 on Highway 22, is Bonnie Henricks.

She, her husband, Jon, and their three daughters reside in the main farmhouse that has been remodeled several times.

Yet Bonnie can remember the house as it used to be and recall all her childhood summers spent on the farm that has been in her family a long time.

When the operation of the farm was discontinued, Bonnie and her husband cleaned out all the barns and gave everything a fresh coat of paint. However, it was a shame, Bonnie felt, that the buildings stood idle.

THEN SIX YEARS ago while on a vacation to Melbourne, Australia, Mr. and Mrs. Henricks visited the Montsalvat Art Colony and Bonnie was inspired. Why not turn Willow Brook into a summer art center?

Gathering her artistic neighbors and friends about her, Bonnie opened Willow Brook Art Center five summers ago with five teachers. This summer there are about 20 teachers taking care of an enrollment of 200. Adult classes, which began this week and still have openings, will continue for a six-week period.

Bonnie teaches a class in papier mache herself. Other classes offered are decoupage, ceramics, macrame, stitchery, quilting and miniature rooms to name a few.

Instruction is also given in tennis (there is a court on the premises) and ballet.

WOMEN ENROLLED in the painting classes often sit around the pool in bikinis to soak up both the sun and the scenery.

Adult classes are taught for one six-week period only, but children's classes are offered for three two-week sessions.

"I think it's fun for children to be able to experiment with many different materials," said Bonnie. "We try to stimulate their imagination."

Meanwhile, while mother and junior are occupied, a baby-sitting service watches over any small children over the age of three.

Willow Brook Art Center is not a non-profit organization. But neither is Bonnie Henricks growing rich over the venture.

HER TAKE home pay last summer, after all expenses were taken care of, was an estimated $194. With Willow Brook requiring a lot of upkeep, Bonnie is kept busy as a part-time carpenter and painter as well as an art director.

"I just got done painting the fence," she said.

CODY HANEY of Deerfield, right, at Willow Brook Art Center, puts finishing touches on a headboard that has been papier mache'd while Bonnie Henricks begins another one. "It's nice to be able to turn a $6 headboard into one that is worth $250," said Bonnie, adding, "but there are a lot of hours of work invested in each one."

Funny Man Don Knotts

He's A Red Hot Lover

by GENIE CAMPBELL

It's been a number of years since Don Knotts played the memorable character, Barney Fife, though the Andy Griffith TV series still lives on in reruns.

Yet it's natural to think of him that way. When you make a date to have lunch with Knotts, you can't help but imagine him rushing through the doorway in his deputy uniform and lining all the customers up against one wall because he is suspicious someone tried to run off with a knife and spoon.

But that image immediately evaporates as Don Knotts in person (only alias Barney Fife and the incredible Mr. Limpet, for anyone who caught that motion picture) comes out of Arlington Park Theatre where he has just opened in the Neil Simon comedy, "The Last of the Red Hot Lovers."

HE PLAYS A Barney again, but this time, Barney Cashman, a man who after 23 years of marriage, attempts to have an affair . . . using his mother's house.

"Of course he's a total strike-out," said Knotts, who has done this play several times before, most recently at the Huntington Hartford Theatre in Los Angeles with the same cast, Pamela Britton, Jo Anne Meredith and Nola Roeper.

Yet it is the first time Knotts has ever acted in-the-round and that is requiring him to make certain adjustments on his own.

Casually dressed with his mind partly on the menu before him and partly on the rehearsal he just left, Knotts admits that Barney Fife was one of the most favorite characters he ever portrayed. However, he feels it was his appearances on the Steve Allen Tonight show, prior to the Andy Griffith series that established him as a comedian.

BUT HAS HE ever played a straight role?

"For three years in the middle '50s, I played a sad kind of psycho-neurotic character on the 'Search For Tomorrow' series," he said.

What was his fate?

"In those shows whenever they want to get rid of someone, they either will kill him off or move him out of town. They moved me."

The idea of Don Knotts being a serious actor is not all that unbelievable. Outside of physically resembling all the zany little men he has played in his career, he doesn't come across as one.

Quiet and soft spoken, Knotts is least of all a candidate for the jitters, Barney Fife's famous personality trademark.

HE HAS BEEN in Chicago a number of times, but he has never opened in a show here. His 15-year-old son is keeping Don company on this trip, but he's more interested at present in math and science than in the stage. Knotts is already planning an excursion to the Museum of Science and Industry on one of his days off.

The comedian is yet another example of an actor whose foremost ambition even as a child was show business.

"I started out as a ventriloquist at the age of 13," smiled Knotts, adding that he became known in high school as "the clown."

"While in college (West Virginia University in Morgantown, Knott's home town), I began doing night club work on weekends," he said.

BUT IT WAS while I was in the Army and touring in the show, "Stars and Gripes,' that I learned the most," he continued.

"After that I decided I couldn't make it in show business and enrolled in the University of Arizona so I could get my master's degree and teach. That lasted for one semester. Then I headed for New York."

In addition to playing Barney Fife, for which he was awarded five Emmys, Knotts has made numerous guest appearances on television, has hosted his own variety show, appeared on Broadway in "No Time for Sergeants" and also starred in nine 'G' rated pictures including "The Ghost and Mr. Chicken," "The Reluctant Astronaut" and "The Shaggiest Gun in the West."

"It's a grind to do movies but so far as the actual work goes, I'm most comfortable working before a camera. I'm relaxed knowing that if I blow it . . . I can do it over again."

"A LOT OF actors don't agree with me. They prefer a live audience. But I can imagine that the camera is my audience."

What's the next big project ahead for Knotts?

"Andy (Griffith) and I are making a movie," he said. But that's all he can really divulge at the moment because the script has not yet been chosen. It might come from Knotts himself. He is currently working on a screen play.

Collecting

Like the Boy Scouts, an antiquer's motto is "Always be prepared," for who knows where or when a treasure may be found? At garage sales, estate disposals and country auctions, the rules are usually "cash and carry." Therefore, I always carry a stout rope and several old blankets for packing and batten down.

For years, my station wagon transported chairs and cupboards, trunks and bedsteads, as well as other items not so conventional, while the neighbors gathered 'round to see "what that funny lady would haul home next."

The six-foot carved wooden bear umbrella holder and hatrack combination caused a hush of disbelief. So did the settee constructed of elk horns and horsehair, straight from a Teddy Roosevelt era parlor. Then, of course, while the children were growing up, my wagon carried them, their friends, their musical instruments, skis, toboggans, surf boards and innertubes.

LAST SUMMER, it was time for a new car, and my husband surprised me one day with one of those new little compacts in a fluorescent green color. "so you won't lose it at the shopping center," he told me.

After years of driving near-buses, the little car looked like a circus prop from which a midge clown might emerge. "But where will I put my antiques?" I wailed. He soothed my fears by showing me the fold down seats and lift-up rear door, and I was pleased at how much room there seemed to be. I transferred my emergency blankets and ropes, and was soon enjoying my little car's comfortable driving, maneuverability and parking ease.

Then came the test. One day, at a house sale, I found exactly the Victorian velvet parlor set I have been looking for for years, and the price was right. It consisted of a small settee and three side chairs, and after I had negotiated with the owner, she asked if I were going to hire a trailer to haul it. "Oh, no," I answered breezily, "I'll just put it in my car."

SHE COULD HARDLY believe her eyes, when, with her husband's help, we slid the four pieces of furniture into the car, and lied down the rear door, with plenty of room left over for some odds and ends I had purchased. Her husband was visibly impressed and started quizzing me about the price and performance of my little car.

The neighbors still have something to talk about when I come home loaded with treasures, as they gather 'round to see "what that funny lady has brought home now." My testimonials have sold three friends on my "mini-hauler" now, and I may have to give up antiquing to go into the new car business.

"FORTUNE MADE HIS SWORD"

BY MARTHA ROFHEART
Putnam, $8.95

"Harry born at Monmouth shall small time reign and gain much, but Harry born at Windsor shall rule long, but lose all." So, Martha Rofheart tells us, the blind seeress's prophecy ran.

"Fortune Made His Sword" is the story of "Harry born at Monmouth" — Henry V, the warrior king who led 6,000 ragged, half-starved Englishmen to incredible victory over the massed chivalry of France at Agincourt.

Miss Rofheart, like most Americans, acquired her early knowledge of "Hank Jank" largely from Shakespeare.

She has fleshed out the classic account most ably with research, producing a story which is fictional in form but substantially true to history.

The tale is told by several narrators, including Henry himself; Morgan, the Welsh girl he loved in his youth; Katherine the French princess he married, and Hercules, court fool.

Appropriately, the story of Agincourt is told by a soldier — Sir John Page, who won his golden spurs on the field where Henry's tattered band overwhelmed a French force five times its size.

"Fortune Made His Sword" is a warm and interesting account. It leaves Henry VI — "Harry born at Windsor" — in the reader, sparing the reader his long and tedious story.

"DON'T EMBARRASS THE BUREAU"

BY BERNARD F. CONNERS
Bobbs-Merrill, $6.95

The author, an ex-FBI man himself, mixes critical comment about the Bureau with a rather far-fetched plot that involves the complex takeover of the FBI.

A good part of the time his bitter observations of Bureau procedures are much more intriguing than the story or its somewhat shadowy characters.

Connors details alleged Bureau shortcomings such as puritanism (the head of the Chicago office hates agents who drink or womanize); Orwellian language (a few hours of voluntary overtime daily are expected of all agents); misdirected zeal (the director has a thing about cars so agents are expert Simonizers); personnel policy (a top FBI executive spends hours sitting in a men's room hoping to catch his agents in an unguarded moment; and so forth).

Connors' thesis is that this dedication to trivia results in a mediocre performance by his fictional FBI. But opinion aside, the author manages to keep his story moving and makes this a unique tale of internal espionage.

"A GAME OF STATUES"

BY ANNE STEVENSON
Putnam's, $6.95

Anne Stevenson deftly draws together suspense, romance and color in this tale of a widow and her young son and an eerie old house.

Ginny Benson and her son move into the old house, owned by an elderly woman, on the death of Ginny's husband. Just as they settle in, a body is found, mysterious noises are heard and two young men enter the picture. Attempts are made on Ginny's life and that of Mrs. Sendall, the kindly landlady, before the mystery is solved — by Ginny's young son.

"A Game of Statues" is a fast paced book, easily readable and entertaining. Particularly well done is Miss Stevenson's characterization of Ben, the little boy, a collector of bugs, feathers, rocks and other items that eventually lead to the solution of the mystery.

"ALL MY FRIENDS ARE GOING TO BE STRANGERS."

BY LARRY MCMURTRY
Simon and Schuster, $7.50

Wander into McMurtry's fictional Texas and, at first, you might want good old John Wayne to hit the saddle and clean up the country.

This novel, by the author of "The Last Picture Show" and "Hombre, Pass By" (which became the film "Hud"), is about Danny Deck, a young Texan whose book has been sold to the movies. The time is post-beat, pre-hippie.

Besides writing, Danny drinks too much too often. He does very well — yet very badly — with a succession of women. And he's unhappy. All of this may give the impression of fictional grazing ground that is barren by now. Not with McMurtry at the reins.

Take Danny's nasty Uncle Laredo who, at 92, still has all his teeth. Uncle L. rode with Villa and Zapata and slaughtered Indians too. At night, he and his ancient cook light a signal fire and blaze away with guns to let Zapata know it's safe to come down from the hills. They believe Zapata lives.

In his own way, Danny is waiting for Zapata. Somehow, people always stamp out his signal fire. He is a lover of people, of Houston, of rivers. But no one answers him.

McMurtry's a straight shooter whose book hits the bullseye.

"11 HARROWHOUSE."

BY GERALD A. BROWNE
Arbor House, $6.95

The movie rights to this novel were bought by a major Hollywood studio before publication. Better wait to see the film.

Seemingly endless and frequently trivial dialogue occupies about two-thirds of the book.

The plot is ingenious but only sporadically interesting until the real action begins, approximately on page 180.

The title is the London address of a world diamond monopoly which manipulates supply and demand to keep gems scarce and prices high. An American dealer and his Swedish mistress plot with an eccentric English millionaire to steal the monopoly's four-ton $12 billion inventory. The heist succeeds, but the winners become losers in a surprise ending that was the final disappointment for his reader.

Jeanne Lesem (UPI)

"THE DINOSAUR FUND"

BY VARTAN G. VARTAN
McGraw-Hill, $7.95

The author, a financial writer, finds Wall Street a Disneyland of wonders and pleasures. Everything related to amassing tons of money through buying and selling stocks he finds fascinating.

His book is larded with insider stories and anecdotes designed to titillate the reader. Apparently here is supposed to be the book's raison d'être — the revelation of the nuts and bolts operation of a mutual fund.

We have Denver Milliken, a 29-year-old Wall Street whiz kid and head of a wildly successful mutual fund (the Dinosaur Fund). He gets involved in a performance race with his boss, Choate Cavendish, who increasingly looks like a dinosaur as the book progresses. This serves as the book's central power struggle.

If selling short is your thing — in fact, if you understand what it means — you might buy this book.

"What's Up, Doc?"

A Peck Bogdanovich Production

Playback

by Tom Von Malder

"Johnny Mathis is a patron saint of the secret feel, the hastily crossed leg, the quickly adjusted bra, the romantic candlelight world that doesn't really exist except for people who want it to."

So wrote Rolling Stone Magazine in 1971. Now those early "makeout days" can be relived through "Johnny Mathis' All-Time Greatest Hits" (Columbia KG 31345), a double record set of 20 classic songs.

There really is very little to fault as Mathis croons the likes of "Gina," "Venus," "It's Not For Me To Say," "Chances Are" and "Wonderful, Wonderful."

But what about the present-day Mathis? His newest release is "The First Time Ever" (Columbia KC 31342) and it contains an almost perfect first side.

IT STARTS off with the title song done beautifully and hauntingly. Next comes one of the better versions around of the "Love Theme From 'The Godfather.'" So too with the "Theme from Summer of '42." All three were arranged by Al Capps, who seems to have the knack of doing nice things with today's standards.

"Brian's Song" is the cut that prevents perfection. It is just not a good song. But happily, the side ends with "Since I Fell For You," arranged by D'Arnell Pershing.

Side two is another story. "Without You" is a good beginning but it is also the last song on the album arranged by Capps. Pershing does the rest and he tends to have a heavy hand when it comes to choruses and orchestration. Still Mathis can put across "I Didn't Get To Sleep At All" and "Betty By Golly Wow" fairly well.

A side and a third are much better than nothing, however. A good Mathis album is still tops.

Al Martino also does a strong version of the "Godfather" love theme in his "Love Theme from 'The Godfather'" album. (Capitol ST-11071). This is another "lights low" album with much of side one having a flavoring of Old Italy.

The album is nostalgic. Besides the three songs from "The Godfather" that are included, there are seven songs taken from the 1940s. It should be mentioned that Martino played the part of singer Johnny Fontane in the movie, which would make his version the authoritative one.

PETE DEANGELO'S arrangements work well with Martino's never-get-excited style. Thus the album has a very consistent sound throughout, and particularly on side one.

A second good song from the album is also from the movie. It is "The Godfather Waltz." The whole album is very good background music.

Yet another in the "Godfather" derby is Jim Nabors. However, the best part of his new album, "The Way of Love" (Columbia KC 31336), is Al Capps' arrangements. As in the Mathis album, they are beautiful.

But Nabors is no match for either Mathis or Martino. His voice lacks their vitality. Nabors merely sings while they work with a song with Mathis actually reshaping a song until it becomes his.

The Nabors album appears badly engineered too. He consistently sounds like he was standing 10 feet from the microphone throughout the recording.

Elsewhere, that master of the flute, Herbie Mann, is back with his "Mississippi Gambler" (Atlantic SD 1610).

The album, recorded in Memphis, features guitarist David "Fathead" Newman and the interplay between Newman and Mann is what makes the album so much fun to listen to. There are interpretations of "I've Been Loving You Too Long," "Respect Yourself" and "Satisfaction" and then there are Mann originals like "Mississippi Gambler" and "Dippermouth."

'Hellzapoppin' New Year's Eve

by JACK GAVER

NEW YORK (UPI)—When Alexander H. Cohen looks ahead he looks ahead. He has his eye now on New Year's Eve, 1972, as a fine date to present a new version of "Hellzapoppin'."

That is the famous old zany revue created by Ole Olsen and his vaudeville partner of many years, Chic Johnson, both now gone, that rang up 1,404 Broadway performances after its opening on Sept. 22, 1938.

This will not be Cohen's first encounter with such a project. In the summer of 1967 he presented a revival at Expo 67 in Montreal, and announced at the time that he would bring it to New York when the fair ended.

For various reasons, this wasn't possible, but Cohen is a producer who will stick with a project for a long time once he gets enamored of it. He sort of warmed up for the new venture recently when he produced for ABC-TV a one-hour edition of "Hellzapoppin'" starring Jack Cassidy and Ronnie Scheil.

So, put down the date in your book — Dec. 31, 1972.

Festival Theatre Announces 'Duchess Of Malfi' Auditions

Auditions will be held next Tuesday for "The Duchess of Malfi," which will be Schaumburg Festival Theatre's second production of the 1972-73 season.

The principal characters include the Duchess, a beautiful aristocratic woman who knows her own mind when it comes to love; Ferdinand, duke of Calabria; the Cardinal, a brother of the Duchess; Antonio, the Duchess' chief steward and also her lover; Bosola, a soldier of fortune; and Julia, the Cardinal's mistress. There are also numerous officers, attendants, servants, pilgrims, madmen, executioners and children on stage throughout the play.

AUDITIONS ARE 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Schaumburg Township Library, 32 W. Library Lane. Rehearsals will be twice a week during July and August with the production to open the middle of September.

Director of "The Duchess of Malfi" is Joe McAuliffe of Schaumburg, who recently directed "A Midsummer Night's Dream" for the community theater guild. Further information about auditions is available through him, 529-1732.

Next Thursday, Schaumburg Festival Theatre will hold its monthly membership meeting, 8 p.m. in the Schaumburg Great Hall, 231 S. Civic Drive.

Election and installation of officers and board members for the 1972-73 season will take place at the meeting. There will also be a salute to Steven Polcyn of Schaumburg, who won the grand prize in the recently held contest, "Fiesta Del Schaumburg."

The cast for "David and Lisa" will also be announced.

FOLLOWING THE meeting, members of the present board will host an election buffet dinner. Entertainment will be provided by Raoul Johnson of Schaumburg, who will show slides of the last production, "The Night of the Iguana" and perform in a special mime show.

The theater group's annual picnic will be held in the Busse Woods Forest Preserve July 23. It will take the place of the regular monthly meeting. Additional information about the activities of Schaumburg Festival Theatre is available through 594-2380.

"Soviet Union: Arts and Crafts in Ancient Times and Today," a panoramic exhibition spanning 7,000 years of cultural history, is currently on display at the Field Museum of Natural History through July 13.

This collection of almost 2,000 objects represents one contribution of the U.S.S.R. to the cultural exchange program with the U. S. which first started in 1958. It is the first exhibition of Soviet decorative art held in this country.

The American counterpart of the Soviet exhibition, a technological display called "Research and Development U.S.A.," is currently touring six Russian cities.

The purpose of "Soviet Union: Arts and Crafts in Ancient Times and Today" is to acquaint Americans with the wide scope of the artistic expression of the people who live in U.S.S.R.

EVERY ONE of the more than 100 national groups inhabiting the 15 republics of the Soviet Union has its own customs, language, cultural traditions and arts. The folk art of these people, transmitted from generation to generation, has been a means of preserving ancient themes and skills as they evolved through the centuries.

The Soviet exhibition at the Field Museum graphically illustrates these differences in forms, materials, and styles through a variety of porcelains, glassware, carpets, tapestries, gold and silver work, ceramics, lace, wood carvings and paintings, sculpture, tiles and embroidery.

In contrast to the purely decorative and applied arts in the exhibition are examples of the arts, jewelry, tsarist treasures and elaborately ornamented reli-

Beach Excitement

Use your imagination when you're choosing your beach cover-ups. Gone are the days when beach wear looked like oversized robes. Now your cover-up can generate as much excitement as your bathing suit. Brief halter shifts, long bareback dresses, or tiny tops with matching briefs will cover you up in style.

Folk Duo At Harper

A folk duo in the neo-classic style, Seals and Croft, will present a concert in the Harper College center lounge, tonight at 8 o'clock.

Jimmy Seals on guitar and Dash Croft on mandolin have been described as two "medieval troubadours" in post-rock sounds. The duo has been together, through various groups, for almost 18 years.

The Seals and Croft concert is being sponsored by the college center program board. Tickets may be purchased at the door or in advance from Harper's student activities office. Admission is $2.50 for on-students and $2 for students with Harper I.D.'s.

FIGHTS OF THE CENTURY

A Second Time Around For Pillow

When his sister, Gay Roseann Mundt, became the bride of Richard W. Stafford, 24-year-old Warren Michael Mundt, ringbearer for the May 28 ceremony, carried the same ring pillow that their aunt carried at her wedding some years ago. The aunt is also Gay's godmother.

Also taking part in the 4 p.m. service in St. Raymond's Church, Mount Prospect, were three other brothers of the bride, Gary, Craig and Keith, and also her sister Darlene. Parents of Gay, her brothers and sister are Mr. and Mrs. A. Warren Mundt, 718 Dresser Drive, Mount Prospect.

The groom and his three brothers, William, Gordon and David, who were also in the wedding party, are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Stafford, Wedron, Ill. William served as best man, and Gordon, along with Jerry Kennedy of DeKalb, and Gary and Craig Mundt were ushers. Keith Mundt and David Stafford were lector and reader for the wedding mass.

phalaenopsis, stephanotis, ivy greens and pink Garnets with white ribbon streamers.

DARLENE, AS maid of honor, and the bridesmaids, Charlene Paoli, a cousin from Chicago, Kathy Boland, Mount Prospect, Donna Needleman, Carbondale, and Sue Schroeder, Olney, Ill., wore pink chiffon gowns with white lace bodices. They carried natural wicker baskets with French carnations and pink Garnets with pink ribbon streamers.

Andrea Paoli, 2 1/2, cousin of the bride from Buffalo Grove, was flower girl wearing a floor-length gown like the older girls' gowns. She also carried a wicker basket with the same flowers.

A reception for 100 guests was held at Heck's Hall, Chicago.

A graduate of Prospect High School, Gay studied at Wisconsin State University, La Crosse, and at Northern Illinois University, DeKalb. She is now a student at Northeastern Illinois State University, Chicago.

The groom, who studied at Northern Illinois University, is a graduate of Murray State University. He is now with Kemper Insurance, Long Grove.

Sizzling Steaks Warm The Night

A chilly night was made warm and pleasant by a glowing fire and the aroma of sizzling steaks as the Rolling Meadows Junior Woman's Club gathered recently for its annual steak fry.

The affair is held at the end of the club year as an informal get-together for club members and a way of saying "thank you" to their husbands for assistance at club events. Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Shearer were the hosts for the evening and Mrs. Gregory Langlotz was chairman of the dinner.

Members brought items requested by Community Consolidated District 5 for school courses and craft supplies; sewing materials and rummage sale items were collected for classes conducted for children of migrant workers.

Triangle Glistens With Gold

The triangle in the center of Palatine is now sprinkled with gold, thanks to the Plum Grove Garden Club. Earlier this month members planted marigolds, trimmed tulips, pulled weeds and fertilized the triangle as a civic project.

Helping with the planting were Mrs. Walter Dreyfus, Mrs. Harry Eickenberg, Mrs. Jack Kmiecik, Mrs. Leonard Lawrence, Mrs. James Nolan, Mrs. Charles Pease, Mrs. Art Schleuter, Mrs. Walter Stein and Mrs. Robert Wessberg.

The planting followed a morning workshop during which Mrs. Pease, nationally accredited judge, displayed containers, needle holders, clippers, posey clay that go into the mechanics of creative flower arranging. Members also displayed containers and materials, and arrangements were made with the consultation of Mrs. Pease and Mrs. Eickenberg, also an accredited judge.

JUDGED WERE the arrangements of Mrs. Otto Becker, Mrs. Herman Dangler, Mrs. Kmiecik, Mrs. Frank Krasovac, Mrs. Lawrence, Mrs. Jack Perkins, Mrs. Harold Sherman and Mrs. Stein.

Egg artistry, showing different stages of fun type eggs, will be demonstrated by Mrs. Vernon Jensen when members meet Monday in the home of Mrs. Richard LaFerte with Mrs. Daniel Nikolich as co-hostess. The demonstration will include tips on cleaning and cutting in making Easter eggs, Christmas tree eggs and other seasonal eggs.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Wasson and earned her degree in elementary education.

Wayne is a graduate of Palatine High School and has his degree in secondary education. In fall he will teach math and coach football and basketball in the Alburnett (Iowa) School District. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Render of 255 E. Palatine Rd., Palatine.

SINCE RETURNING from a two-week honeymoon in California and Arizona, the bridal couple is staying with the Render family until moving to Iowa for the school year.

Julia and Wayne exchanged vows and rings at 2:30 in the afternoon, then greeted 250 guests at a buffet dinner reception at Palatine Fireman's Hall. Dancing to the music of The Deviations followed dinner.

The bride chose a Juliet-style organza gown with a matching cap and fingertip veil for the ceremony. The dress was accented with rows of ribbon and lace on the Empire bodice and a panel of the same trim down the skirt front. The long puffed sleeves were also encircled with ribbon and lace.

Julia carried three long-stemmed roses, one in yellow and two in white.

Each of her attendants also carried a long-stemmed white rose as they came down the church aisle. Their gowns were in a small floral print of lavender, purple and blue, styled with square neckline, Empire waist and short puffed sleeves. Each wore a lavender garden hat.

DEBBIE RENDER, sister of the groom, was maid of honor; Susan Hussey, Leawood, Kan., Debbie Forbes, Chicago, and Ann Williams, Dallas, Tex., were bridesmaids. Susan Hussey and Debbie Forbes are Delta Delta Delta sorority sisters of the bride.

Nancy Duff of Lake Zurich, the groom's godchild, was junior bridesmaid, dressed identically to the other attendants. There was also a flower girl, 6-year-old Julie Nielsen of Aurora, a cousin of the groom. She wore a lavender dress and carried a white basket filled with rose petals.

Wayne's best man was George Smith Jr. of Palatine, and three of his Phi Kappa Tau fraternity brothers, Bob Hogan of St. Paul, Minn., John Lill of Chicago and Mike Plahm of Worth, Ill., served as ushers.

Mark Render, Wayne's brother, was junior usher, and Tommy Baldocchi, 6, of Palatine, a cousin of the groom, was ring bearer.

During the wedding service, the maid of honor and best man gave readings from the Bible and from "The Prophet" by Khalil Gibran.

Dear Dorothy: One of my feet is a bit larger than the other one. Do I buy a size to fit the larger foot or get two pairs of shoes, each with a different size, to fit the two feet? —June A.

It all depends on how much the difference in size is. If it's minimal, you can use a shoe-stretching liquid. With a shoe stretcher this can give you a full width larger, but not longer. There are shoe repair stores which can make a shoe one size longer and one size wider by removing the interior of the shoe without altering the style or quality. It's always best to try to get shoes worn in before the onset of hot weather. Hot weather can make even once-comfortable shoes a misery. This is why there is always a bottle of shoe-stretching liquid in this house.

Dear Dorothy: Suddenly realized I had no cornflake crumbs to use for coating some chicken pieces. My eyes fell on the blender. The cornflake crumbs were ready in less than 30 seconds. —Helen M.

Dear Dorothy: To come to the aid of the despairing with regard to grout cleaning, here is my happy discovery: Simply use the enzyme laundry soak. Apply the powder, keep wetted down or cover with unprinted cellophane. Then for an hour or so go about other activities while the enzyme action, not elbow grease, does the work. You'll be pleased. —Rene Durnil

Dear Dorothy: You stated you usually use powdered ginger for seasoning chuck roast. Please tell me how much you use? —M. Horrell

Have just sprinkled the ginger without measuring, just as my mother used to do. It's probably 1/4 to 1/2 teaspoon.

Golf Tourney Fans Have Changed

Watch A Gallery, Have Some Fun

SO YOU'RE GOING to the Western Open in nearby Northbrook.

You won't see Arnie or Jack, but you will see exciting golf played the way you'd like to play but can't — and never will.

A $30,000 first prize and such a worthy cause as the Evans Scholars program still couldn't bring Arnie Palmer or Jack Nicklaus to the Chicago area, and this should insure an extremely quiet golf tournament, if you like quiet tournaments.

When Arnie and Jack are around, or even Lee Trevino, who also will be missing this weekend, the crowds are alive with excitement. You can feel it with every shot, every stride down the fairway.

Every sport needs someone it can turn into a legend — and golf's candidates for immortality are in short supply when Nicklaus or Palmer don't even show up for a tournament.

Whether he has the color of a Snead, the showmanship of Hagen, the aggressiveness of Palmer, the colossal skill of a Hogan or Nicklaus, the charismatic hero is needed as a vital part of pro golf.

This is not to detract from their obvious skills, but I can't imagine any gallery getting wildly enthusiastic this weekend because Billy Casper rolls in a tricky putt or George Archer escapes a sand trap with a shot a few inches from the flag.

Galleries have their favorites but most of the favorites are missing from the 59th Western Open. However, don't be dismayed. If you want to see the new golf fan in action, you'll probably get your chance at Sunset Ridge, with or without Jack and Arnie.

In case you haven't noticed, and it admittedly is difficult to notice when so few major tournaments reach the Chicago area, the golf fan definitely is changing. It's been a gradual change through the years.

You never used to have the same kind of no-holds-barred partisan rooting at a golf tourney that was born in the bleachers of an Ebbets Field or Polo Grounds.

When Bill Melton, the White Sox third baseman, fields a ball in a bases-loaded situation in Boston and then fires it over Richie Allen's at first, the hostile crowd cheers its head off.

Ungracious? Unsportsmanlike? Rude? The reaction is all of these things, but not even Melton thinks of it in those terms. He knows that the cause of Boston was advanced by his error and he would be astonished if a partisan Red Sox crowd acted in any other way.

The quarterback fumbles in football, the defenseman trips and falls in hockey, and the downcourt pass goes wildly out-of-bounds in basketball. Happy pandemonium results.

I can remember how gentle the crowds were at all times at many Western Opens. That was several years ago. In recent years — for good, or for evil — the vociferous rooster has begun to show up in golf. He doesn't care how it happens, as long as his man wins.

A contributing factor is improved communications. The leader boards report hole-by-hole progress of the top players, and they show almost instantly the birdies and the bogeys, the triumphs and the failures of the front-runners.

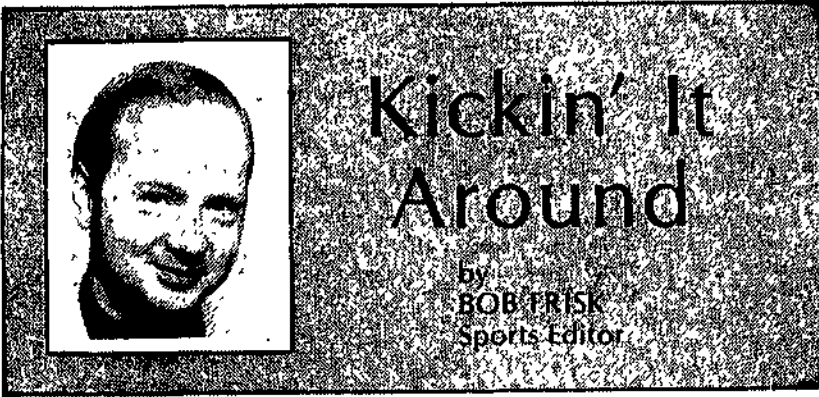

At first, golf galleries confined themselves to a sort of distant partisanship. Then Palmer came along and, like Ben Hogan before him, he seemed to be everybody's favorite. By 1965, the galleryite attending a tournament in which Palmer did not win, or at least finish well, felt as if he had visited Yellowstone Park the day Old Faithful failed to spout. He felt obliged to help Arnie, and the links fan became louder, and louder.

Together with applauding the adversaries that beset the leader or anti-hero, loud voices sometimes resort to insult as well.

I've heard it at golf tournaments. They'll yell four-eyes, or baldie. Fatty. Skinny. Something based on the player's appearance, personality traits or past performances. Yes, these insults can also be racial.

Casper, who is in the Western, has been the object of as much abuse as anyone, with his exotic diets, illnesses and consistent skills.

The problem boils down to whether golf, with its somewhat more personal relationship between fan and player, can tolerate the kind of partisanship that exists in other sports. Probably not.

Kickin' It Around

by BOB FRISK Sports Editor

However, if you've ever been to a pro tourney, you must feel that the fan deserves any charity that can be extended to him.

This week is an exception but normally the golf fan must drive farther than any he'll be stuck in the mud. For this, he must park in an open field, knowing from past experience that if it rains, he'll be stuck in the mud. For this, he pays a fee.

He walks a half-mile, pays an admission fee that staggers him when compared to other sports, particularly when he is not headed into the opera-type seats of an ice-rink, sports palace or stadium. He has just bought the right to walk two or three miles while he watches players he may not be able to identify for the first half-hour or so.

When it's all over, he'll probably be on his feet four to eight hours, unless he likes to sit at the end of the green and watch nothing but approach shots and putting. He has to keep out of the way. He soon learns that he must not move a muscle when he stands in front of a player putting or behind a player swinging.

If he goes to one of the refreshment stands for a snack or a beer, he'll pay double.

Maybe it isn't too surprising that he gets rude every now and then and that we have this new golf fan.

A never-to-be-forgotten moment in this outbreak of the new golf fan came in the 1965 Masters.

Nicklaus was marching toward a record score of 271, but galleries booed Jack's birdies and cheered his bogeys to his face. After all, their hero Arnie was playing too.

At the ninth green Jack's wedge shot hit the lower front of the sharply canted green and spun backward, heading off the green.

Then it proceeded to roll downhill, slowly, very slowly toward possible trouble in a bunker.

The gallery, those new golf fans, unashamedly chanted, "Roll . . . roll . . . roll."

Jack and Arnie will not be here this week, but the golf fans will be in action. Don't miss the fun.

FAN FARE

By Walt Ditzen

10 Years Ago...

The 59th Western Open was set to unfold at Medinah's famous No. 3 course, "The Monster" . . . Defending champion Arnold Palmer and young Jack Nicklaus, only six months on the pro tour and the U. S. Open champ, were the favorites and both were paired together for the opening two rounds. . . . Nicklaus had the best practice round of all the pros with a 70 over the challenging Medinah course.

GALLERY GATHERS around a green. Fans at professional golf tournaments have been changing through the years. The fan is becoming the same kind of generous, fickle, love-the-underdog, what-have-you-done-for-me lately, kind, thoughtless person who was once found only in the bleachers at a baseball game.

Both Teams Have Won Titles Before

Arlington, Lions In Bloomington Tourney

Dave Kingman

Mike Pettenuzzo

Dave Kingman did the damage in 1967. Mike Pettenuzzo was the star in '71. Who will be the standout in '72?

Logan Square coach Larry Nomellini and Arlington Heights coach Lloyd Meyer are both hoping a Pettenuzzo or Kingman will emerge to lead their respective teams to the championship this weekend in the fifth annual Bloomington Invitational Legion Baseball Tournament.

Kingman, now a budding super star with the San Francisco Giants, was the take-charge man in the first annual three-day tourney. He won the most valuable player award by capping a fine tourney by pitching the victory and homering in the title game.

Logan Square received the same support from Pettenuzzo, now no longer with the team, last year. Trailing 6-4 in the fourth inning of the championship game with Lincoln, Pettenuzzo pitched and batted his team past the opposition with ease, 13-7.

Taking over for a pair of shell-shocked teammate pitchers, Pettenuzzo held Lincoln at bay until the latter's one-run ninth. However, the Lions had the title wrapped up by then. Pettenuzzo saw to that by hitting for the cycle (home run, triple, double and a pair of singles), clubbed in four runs and scored five!

It could wind up an all area championship if Arlington and Logan Square can make it through the first two rounds. Arlington will open up with Lincoln on Saturday at O'Neil Park beginning at noon. At the same time but on the Illinois State University diamond, Logan Square will take on Eureka.

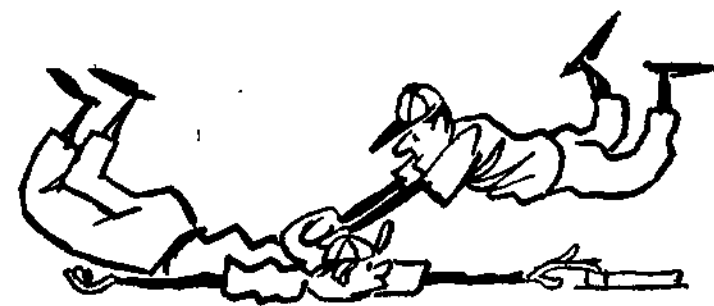

If Arlington wins, it would then play the winner of the Cicero-Poplar Bluff (Mo.) winner at 7:30 p.m. Saturday. A victory would advance Logan Square to a semifinal game on Sunday at 2:30. Possible opponents are Pekin, Decatur, Collinsville or Bloomington. Both games would be played at O'Neil Park.

The championship game is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Sunday at O'Neil Park.

Should either or both teams fall in one of the first two contests, they would then shoot for the consolation championship. That game will be played on Sunday at 5 p.m. at O'Neil Park.

Logan Square and Arlington, two of the truly great American Legion rivals in the state, met last year in the semifinals. The Lions ruled that contest, 7-2.

Both teams haven't been hitting like they are capable of doing so far this season, but both coaches are hoping that this weekend's tourney will be just the cure.

Are Your Highlights Missing?

It's that time of the summer again.

When part of a boys baseball program is missing in the Herald, please don't call us. Call your league officials.

The Herald publishes the ENTIRE group of results from each league, as they are received.

There would be no reason not to publish any particular part of that league. If it is received, it will be published.

Baseball reports are running on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday each week and when space dictates on Friday, some leagues will run Monday.

Thank you for your understanding and cooperation.

DON'T GET EXCITED, CUB FANS

Dear Sirs: Won't Cubs fans ever learn? They're getting excited again and it's only June.

Last June they were red-hot for the month and it seems to me they finished 14 games off the pace. That's how much a hot June means.

Is this team so much better? I don't think so. Just older, another year older for Williams, Kessinger, Beckert, etc., etc. and when the pressure starts to mount, the Cubbies will fold again with the tired arms and legs.

Don't get excited, Cub fans, you've been through this before and it's amazing that you haven't learned your lesson by now.

As long as you keep that manager around, you won't have a winner. He won't let you relax during the stretch drive.

"We're starting to hit our peak," said Leo Monday.

"We're starting to hit our peak," said Leo at practically this exact time last summer. And then, 14 games behind in October.

STIFF COMPETITION

Dear Herald:

I try to watch much baseball on television because it is difficult for me to go to the parks. From what I have seen this year and read in the papers, I don't think you Chicago baseball fans should get too excited about winning any pennants.

You look at those lineups of teams like Pittsburgh and Oakland and then compare them with the Cubs and White Sox and there is really no comparison. Chicago teams might finish second which would be good, particularly for a young team like the White Sox, but can anyone seriously see either team winning, and beating out a Pittsburgh or Oakland? I think Oakland will beat Pittsburgh in six games in the World Series with Kenny Holtzman one of the heroes.

Bill Gardner Schaumburg

OAKLAND HAS GREAT FUTURE

Dear Sirs:

Now I see why the Chicago White Sox wanted to get in the Eastern division of the American League. Oakland is a team of the future and will be good for many years. The Sox are improving but still have no shortstop, catcher, or center fielder. Oakland has it all and will for many years. The Sox will have a better chance of beating aging teams like Baltimore and Detroit than Oakland although they are giving Chicago some interesting baseball. Richie Allen for Tommy John is something I still can't believe, especially after watching Los Angeles and its pathetic batting attack in Chicago last weekend. Why does everybody get so excited about the Dodgers? They've got two hitters only in their lineup and only two consistent pitchers in Osteen and Sutton.

Ted Witt Arlington Heights

THANKS FROM JACK FABRI

Dear Sirs:

I recently spent several weeks in Northwest Community Hospital for surgery. I never realized I had so many friends, and I just would like to take this way to thank everyone who took the time to send me cards. They were most appreciated.

Jack Fabri Palatine

(Ed. Note: Jack Fabri coached varsity basketball at Palatine High School in the mid-1950s.)

AGREES WITH CUB BACKER

Dear Sirs:

Just wanted to let you know that there are still more Cub fans than White Sox boosters in Chicago and always will be.

I agree wholeheartedly with the Cub fan who wrote last week saying that the North side is where the action still is. The Cubs have the perfect blend of proven veterans and exciting new faces like Jose Cardenal, Rick Monday and Burt Hooten.

White Sox fans think that just because of a good first half by their team, they are taking over Chicago baseball. Well, I have news for them. Cub Power still prevails.

BOXING A DISGRACE

Dear Fan's Forum:

I would like to repeat and reinforce the letters that have been written to your paper in the past about the disgrace the sport of boxing is.

It is incredible to me that in these times of supposedly rational human beings, we still let a farce like boxing continue. This just proves for the umpteenth time that violence still rules our society.

This protest was brought about when I read yesterday that boxing veteran Maxie Rosenbloom has completely lost his memory and is confined in a sanatorium because of the toll of 289 professional fights — even though he is only 68 years old and in fine shape physically. This is not an isolated case. In the same article it was stated by a physician that he has seen the same thing happen in other instances.

Hearing about such a sad case should not be necessary to realize how disgusting boxing is. Any "sport" in which the ultimate goal is to knock the opponent senseless has got to go. In fact, it should have been outlawed long ago.

The problem boils down to whether golf, with its somewhat more personal relationship between fan and player, can tolerate the kind of partisanship that exists in other sports. Probably not.

However, if you've ever been to a pro tourney, you must feel that the fan deserves any charity that can be extended to him.

This week is an exception but normally the golf fan must drive farther than any he'll be stuck in the mud. For this, he must park in an open field, knowing from past experience that if it rains, he'll be stuck in the mud, for this, he pays a fee.

He walks a half-mile, pays an admission fee that staggers him when compared to other sports, particularly when he is not headed into the opera-type seats of an ice-rink, sports palace or stadium. He has just bought the right to walk two or three miles while he watches players he may not be able to identify for the first half-hour or so.

When it's all over, he'll probably be on his feet four to eight hours, unless he likes to sit at the end of the green and watch nothing but approach shots and pulling. He has to keep out of the way. He soon learns that he must not move a muscle when he stands in front of a player putting or behind a player swinging.

If he goes to one of the refreshment stands for a snack or a beer, he'll pay double.

Maybe it isn't too surprising that he gets rude every now and then and that we have this new golf fan.

A never-to-be-forgotten moment in this outbreak of the new golf fan came in the 1965 Masters.

Nicklaus was marching toward a record score of 271, but galleries booed Jack's birdies and cheered his bogeys to his face. After all, their hero Arnie was playing too.

At the ninth green Jack's wedge shot hit the lower front of the sharply canted green and spun backward, heading off the green.

Then it proceeded to roll downhill, slowly, very slowly toward possible trouble in a bunker.

The gallery, those new golf fans, unashamedly chanted, "Roll . . . roll . . . roll."

Jack and Arnie will not be here this week, but the golf fans will be in action. Don't miss the fun.

There are times when watching the gallery is more fascinating than watching the actual play.

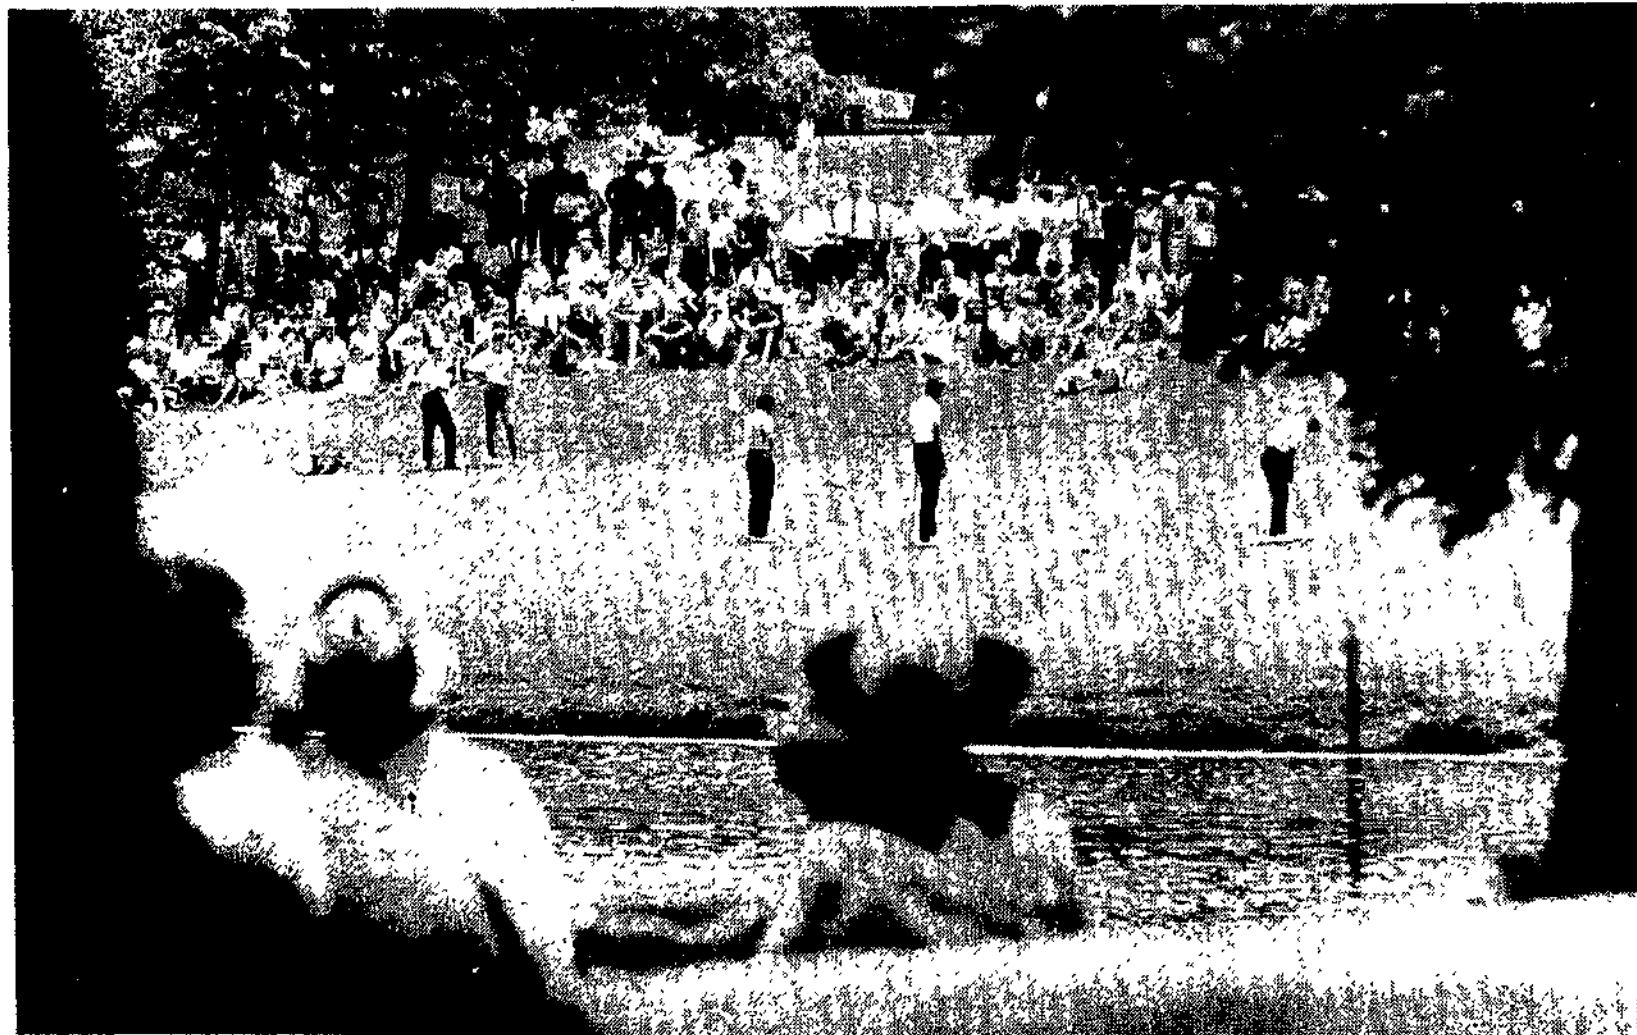

FAN FARE

By Walt Ditzen

10 Years Ago...

The 59th Western Open was set to unfold at Medinah's famous No. 3 course, "The Monster" . . . Defending champion Arnold Palmer and young Jack Nicklaus, only six months on the pro tour and the U. S. Open champ, were the favorites and both were paired together for the opening two rounds . . . Nicklaus had the best practice round of all the pros with a 70 over the challenging Medinah course.

GALLERY GATHERS around a green. Fans at professional golf tournaments have been changing through the years. The fan is becoming the same kind of generous, fickle, love-the-underdog, what-have-you-done-for-me lately, kind, thoughtless person who was once found only in the bleachers at a baseball game.

Both Teams Have Won Titles Before

Arlington, Lions In Bloomington Tourney

Dave Kingman

Mike Pettenuzzo

Dave Kingman did the damage in 1967. Mike Pettenuzzo was the star in '71. Who will be the standout in '72?

Logan Square coach Larry Nomellini and Arlington Heights coach Lloyd Meyer are both hoping a Pettenuzzo or Kingman will emerge to lead their respective teams to the championship this weekend in the fifth annual Bloomington Invitational Legion Baseball Tournament.

Kingman, now a budding super star with the San Francisco Giants, was the take-charge man in the first annual three-day tourney. He won the most valuable player award by capping a fine tourney by pitching the victory and homering in the title game.

Logan Square received the same support from Pettenuzzo, now no longer with the team, last year. Trailing 6-0 in the fourth inning of the championship game with Lincoln, Pettenuzzo pitched and hated his team past the opposition with ease, 13-7.

Taking over for a pair of shell-shocked teammate pitchers, Pettenuzzo held Lincoln at bay until the latter's one-run ninth. However, the Lions had the title wrapped up by then. Pettenuzzo saw to that by hitting for the cycle (home run, triple, double and a pair of singles), clubbed in four runs and scored five!

It could wind up an all area championship if Arlington and Logan Square can make it through the first two rounds. Arlington will open up with Lincoln on Saturday at O'Neil Park beginning at noon. At the same time but on the Illinois State University diamond, Logan Square will take on Eureka.

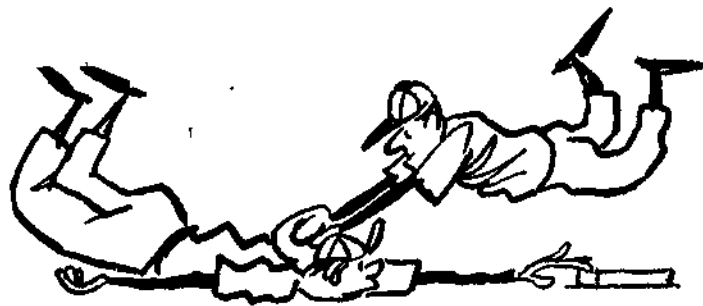

If Arlington wins, it would then play the winner of the Cicero-Poplar Bluff (Mo.) winner at 7:30 p.m. Saturday. A victory would advance Logan Square to a semifinal game on Sunday at 2:30. Possible opponents are Pekin, Decatur, Collinsville or Bloomington. Both games would be played at O'Neil Park.

The championship game is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Sunday at O'Neil Park.

Should either or both teams fall in one of the first two contests, they would then shoot for the consolation championship. That game will be played on Sunday at 5 p.m. at O'Neil Park.

Logan Square and Arlington, two of the truly great American Legion rivals in the state, met last year in the semifinals. The Lions ruled that contest, 7-2.

Both teams haven't been hitting like they are capable of doing so far this season, but both coaches are hoping that this weekend's tourney will be just the cure.

Are Your Highlights Missing?

It's that time of the summer again.

When part of a boys baseball program is missing in the Herald, please don't call us. Call your league officials.

The Herald publishes the ENTIRE group of results from each league, as they are received.

There would be no reason not to publish any particular part of that league. If it is received, it will be published.

Baseball reports are running on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday each week and when space dictates on Friday, some leagues will run Monday.

Thank you for your understanding and cooperation.

DON'T GET EXCITED, CUB FANS

Dear Sirs:

Won't Cubs fans ever learn? They're getting excited again and it's only June.

Last June they were red-hot for the month and it seems to me they finished 14 games off the pace. That's how much a hot June means.

Is this team so much better? I don't think so. Just older, another year older for Williams, Kessinger, Beckert, etc., etc., and when the pressure starts to mount, the Cubbies will fold again with the tired arms and legs.

Don't get excited, Cub fans, you've been through this before and it's amazing that you haven't learned your lesson by now.

As long as you keep that manager around, you won't have a winner. He won't let you relax during the stretch drive.

"We're starting to hit our peak," said Leo Monday.

"We're starting to hit our peak," said Leo at practically this exact time last summer. And then, 14 games behind in October.

STIFF COMPETITION

Dear Herald:

I try to watch much baseball on television because it is difficult for me to go to the parks. From what I have seen this year and read in the papers, I don't think you Chicago baseball fans should get too excited about winning any pennants.

You look at those lineups of teams like Pittsburgh and Oakland and then compare them with the Cubs and White Sox and there is really no comparison. Chicago teams might finish second which would be good, particularly for a young team like the White Sox, but can anyone seriously see either team winning, and beating out a Pittsburgh or Oakland? I think Oakland will beat Pittsburgh in six games in the World Series with Kenny Holtzman one of the heroes.

Bill Gardner

Dear Sirs:

Now I see why the Chicago White Sox wanted to get in the Eastern division of the American League. Oakland is a team of the future and will be good for many years. The Sox are improving but still have no shortstop, catcher, or center fielder. Oakland has it all and will for many years. The Sox will have a better chance of beating aging teams like Baltimore and Detroit than Oakland although they are giving Chicago some interesting baseball. Richie Allen for Tommy John is something I still can't believe, especially after watching Los Angeles and its pathetic batting attack in Chicago last weekend. Why does everybody get so excited about the Dodgers? They've got two hitters only in their lineup and only two consistent pitchers in Osteen and Sutton.

AGREES WITH CUB BACKER

Dear Sirs:

Just wanted to let you know that there are still more Cub fans than White Sox boosters in Chicago and always will be.

I agree wholeheartedly with the Cub fan who wrote last week saying that the North side is where the action still is. The Cubs have the perfect blend of proven veterans and exciting new faces like Jose Cardenal, Rick Monday and Burt Hooten.

White Sox fans think that just because of a good first half by their team, they are taking over Chicago baseball. Well, I have news for them. Cub Power still prevails.

BOXING A DISGRACE

Dear Fan's Forum:

I would like to repeat and reinforce the letters that have been written to your paper in the past about the disgrace the sport of boxing is.

It is incredible to me that in these times of supposedly rational human beings, we still let a farce like boxing continue. This just proves for the umpteenth time that violence still rules our society.

This protest was brought about when I read yesterday that boxing veteran Maxie Rosenbloom has completely lost his memory and is confined in a sanatorium because of the toll of 289 professional fights — even though he is only 68 years old and in fine shape physically. This is not an isolated case. In the same article it was stated by a physician that he has seen the same thing happen in other instances.

Hearing about such a sad case should not be necessary to realize how disgusting boxing is. Any "sport" in which the ultimate goal is to knock the opponent senseless has got to go. In fact, it should have been outlawed long ago.

THE RIGHT ARM AT IMPACT

FOR MAXIMUM EXTENSION THROUGH THE HITTING AREA, BOTH ARMS MUST BE STRAIGHT FOLLOWING IMPACT. DURING IMPACT, HOWEVER, THE RIGHT ARM SHOULD BE SLIGHTLY BENT.

THE LEFT ARM REMAINS STRAIGHT FOR FIRMNESS AND CONTROL, BUT A STRAIGHT RIGHT AT IMPACT INDICATES THAT POWER HAS BEEN EXPELLED TOO QUICKLY. FOR MAXIMUM CLUB ACCELERATION, MAKE SURE YOUR RIGHT ARM STRAIGHTENS JUST AFTER IMPACT.

Kozel, Nelson Combine For Wheeling No-Hitter

Wheeling's Bill Kozel and Gordie Nelson teamed up for a dazzling no-hit shut-out victory over visiting Penton on Wednesday, 5-0.

Kozel pitched the first five innings and struck out 10 before being relieved by Nelson.

"I wanted to let one of the other kids throw too 'cause it's the first game we've gotten in," said Wilcat coach Ron DeBolt. "He (Kozel) could have finished and got the win, I'm sure."

Kozel gave up three walks while mastering the Bisons. Nelson issued the same number while striking out three.

John Theriault led off the first inning with a single, stole second and scored on Bob Peter's single.

The third inning had nearly the same scoring formula — Theriault walked was sacrificed to second by Ken Margalski's bunt and came home on Peter's hit.

Then Pat McGuinn doubled home Peter.

Another pair danced home in the sixth. McGuinn walked and stole second. Gary Geimer walked and both moved up on a wild pitch. McGuinn scored on a passed ball and Geimer was driven in on a sacrifice fly by Ron Hendricks.

"THE Kozel is tough," praised DeBolt. "As a sophomore he averaged two strikeouts an inning."

His fine junior hasn't lost his touch since the spring.

Nelson only got into trouble once. In the sixth inning, Nelson walked two and they moved into scoring position on a passed ball. Then he pitched out of the jam. It was the only time a Bison reached third.

Cards Clip Falcons, 4-3

Arlington rallied with two runs in the bottom of the sixth and then held on for a 4-3 victory over visiting Forest View Wednesday in a Northwest Summer Baseball League contest.

John Dillon came through with a bases loaded single to score one and the other run came home on an overthrow.

Arlington built up a 2-0 lead in the first three innings. Greg Hauptly doubled home Bill Wrenn who had reached on a single and moved up on a passed ball in the first inning. Hauptly drove home the other in the third on a bases loaded fielder's choice. Scoring was Ray Heidenson who had reached on a walk.

The Falcons battled back to take the advantage with single runs in the fourth, fifth and sixth innings. The first two runs also scored after the bases were full. The initial run came home after Ed Katzman was hit by a pitch in the fourth.

The fifth inning run came home when Craig Stiles walked.

Forest View took the lead on a single by Bob Butler which scored Keith Keller in the sixth. Then the Cardinals rallied in the bottom of the inning to help Terry Gray to the pitching victory. The losing hurler was Keith Mallian.

Walk In 7th Gives Prospect Victory

Prospect, trailing by two runs with two outs in the final inning, came to life Wednesday evening and shocked Elk Grove in a 5-4 summer league game.

A walk with the bases loaded to Mark Blasco forced in the decisive run for the Knights, who never led in the game until Ken Kallberg trotted across with the fifth marker.

The big inning started with a hit by Mark Keane, but it took a third hit by Jim Anderson, with two outs, to keep things going.

Anderson's safety tied it up and he stole second. An intentional walk and wild pitch set up another intentional pass. The third walk wasn't intentional as Blasco worked the pitcher to a 3-1 count and then took ball four.

Elk Grove opened the scoring in the first with Bob Prince dashing around on a single, stolen base and two passed balls. Larry Laspisa squeezed in the second run.

With one out in the first Prospect struck back as Mark Hartley singled in Anderson.

Elk Grove moved out in front 3-1 in the top of the third as Jeff Stewart drove in Prince, who had walked, stolen second and moved to third on a drive to the outfield.

The Knights roared back with hits by Steve Spirlman, Anderson and Kallberg driving in a pair in the third, but Elk Grove regained the advantage in the fifth when Stewart, who had reached on a walk, scored on a wild pitch.

Jim Dumke, who had some control problems, was effective with his strikeout in nailing down the victory for Prospect. Jim fanned 10.

Rick Eckardt, who went the distance, took the loss.

Score by Innings:
Elk Grove 201 010 0-4-3
Prospect 102 000 2-5-10

In earlier action Elk Grove had dropped decisions to Barrington (5-0), collecting only one hit, and to Crystal Lake (13-12) in another seventh inning nightmare.

John Pahl rapped a second inning single for the only hit against Barrington in a game that was marred by the loss of Tony Tringali for the season with a broken hand.

Steve Pritz, Jim Laing, and Eckardt shared the mound duties.

Elk Grove had 12 runs in the first two innings against Crystal Lake and still lost in a 13-12 shocker. The Lakers came up with three in the seventh inning for the win.

Key hit for the Grenadiers in that fast start was a bases-loaded triple by John Strybel.

Prospect will play at Fenton Friday and Elk Grove is tentatively set to host Hersey, although the site may have to be switched.

May's First Hit

NEW YORK UPI —Willie Mays' first major league hit was a home run off Warren Spahn of the then Boston Braves.

Mustangs Roll To Win

The Rolling Meadows High School summer baseball team had to fight rain and wet grounds Monday and Tuesday, but Crystal Lake didn't put up much of a fight at all Wednesday as the Mustangs rolled to a 10-3 victory at Crystal Lake.

Rolling Meadows' Monday and Tuesday matches were both postponed due to the torrents of rain that hit the area early in the week. But the Mustangs experienced little difficulty in setting Crystal Lake down once the ground had dried.

David Thorstensen and Keith Goeke combined to limit the hosts to four hits as the Mustangs pounded out nine. Rolling Meadows opened with three first-inning tallies as catcher Steve Breitbeil ripped a bases-loaded single to left-center, sending two men home. Then Gary Enderle's base hit drove Breitbeil across.

Crystal Lake countered with two unearned runs in the bottom of the first on two hits, a sacrifice and an error. They added another unearned run in the sixth on a double, an infield out, and a dropped infield pop fly.

Rolling Meadows accepted a gift run in the fourth when Mark Klemp reached on a boot, stole second, and then came all the way around when the catcher's throw trying to gun him down sailed into center field and the center fielder's peg to third shot past the third baseman.

The Mustangs added a couple more in the sixth when Bruce Hanson, a substitute, hammered a double to right-center, scoring two teammates.

In the seventh, Rolling Meadows batted around and tallied four times. Scott Green opened up with a base hit and was followed by Jim Freres' single. Then Glen Zawacki singled to drive in Green, and Klemp walked to fill the sacks. Joe Riplinger coaxed another walk to force in a run, and then Hanson cracked a single to score Freres. After an error on the play, Zawacki came home with the Mustangs' 10th run.

Cheerleader Day Camps In July

Two, one-week day camps for cheerleaders, grades 5 through 9, are set for July 17-22 and July 24-29 on the campus of Maryville Academy in Des Plaines, according to Sue Fitzsimmons, cheerleading director.

Classes, open to all area cheerleaders and teams, run from 1 to 4 p.m. Monday through Saturday. Training and practice include chants, songs, mounts, tumbling, pom-pom routines, pep rally stunts and other techniques.

Miss Fitzsimmons, moderator of Rich East High School's championship cheerleader squad, will be assisted by Barbara Sixsmith, outstanding American cheerleader in 1970.

Awards at the close of each weekly session will go to individual and team champions, to a prettiest cheerleader and to a Miss Summer Cheerleader of 1972.

Weekly cost per participant is $12. There is a special rate for team units. For details call Sue Fitzsimmons at 748-8894.

Marzec, Kanellis Pace Hersey To 11-0 Breeze

Crown did not provide much opposition for Hersey's Summer League baseball team Wednesday as the host Huskies pounded out 11 hits to back a two-hitter by pitcher Bob Marzec and breezed 11-0. Marzec actually pitched a one-hitter, but another was credited for catcher interference.

Meanwhile, Hersey was enjoying some offensive fun, wasting no time with three runs in the first inning. Mark Krause started it with a double and after a pair of walks, John Kanellis singled in two runs and Marzec doubled in another. The Huskies broke it wide open in the fourth inning, erupting for five runs. Brian Nelson doubled and the rest started with two outs. A hit batter, single by Krause and error brought in one run. Two more walks forced in another before Kanellis drove in three more with a triple.

Two more runs scored in the fifth on singles by Steve Arneri, Tom Good and Krause, mixed with an error and walk. The final tally came in the sixth on an error after another hit batter and Marzec's hit.

Kanellis led the attack with three for three and five runs batted in.

Jon McGlocklin, Kimball To Help During Cage Camp

John McGlocklin and Toby Kimball, members of the Milwaukee Bucks basketball team, will each appear one full day during the Milwaukee Bucks Basketball Camp to be held at St. Viator High School in Arlington Heights June 26-30.

Director of the camp will be John McGuire, head basketball coach at Racine (Wis.) - St. Catherine's High School, a perennial basketball powerhouse in Wisconsin. McGuire will be assisted by a specially selected staff of high school basketball coaches, including Bill Slayton, head basketball coach at Prospect High School.

The camp, stressing basketball fundamentals and skill improvement, runs from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. each day during the week. Practice sessions, game scrimmages, audio-visual analysis of each player's performance, and the use of specially edited NBA training films highlight the camp program. All boys aged 9-17 are eligible to attend. Interested athletes who have not yet applied may register at the school, 1213 East Oakton in Arlington Heights, on Monday morning, June 26 at 8:45 a.m. Tuition for the five day session is $50. Boys should bring a lunch, basketball shoes, shorts and tee shirt, towel, and lock.

Will Birch Trees Go The Way Of The Elm

Birch trees are some of the most beautiful plants available for gardeners in Chicago.

Sadly, these magnificent plants are threatened by an insect pest which can kill the tree outright. This pest is the bronze birch borer. In some localities nearly all white or paper birches, even large old trees, have been destroyed by this pest.

Infestation is first noticed when tips of upper branches turn brown. Large branches progressively die back, until the entire tree succumbs. Infested branches often appear swollen and brown, with ridges around smaller ones. An examination of the inner bark of infested branches reveals numerous burrows, each four to five feet long, crossing and recrossing, completely cutting off circulation of sap. The burrows are tightly packed with sawdust and each contains a slender white grub about 3/4 of an inch long.

The larvae pupate in spring and emerge in June as greenish bronze beetles which cut their way out of the branches, leaving small, slightly oval holes.

Females deposit eggs in cracks in the bark. Hatching takes place in about ten days and the tiny borers work their way into the tree to repeat the cycle, further injuring the tree.

Control of this pest is difficult. Hatching larvae are the only stage exposed to chemical control. The recommended material is Cygon (dimethoate). It should be Home Made Wine? . . . It's Easy!

Imagine the envious glances at your next party when you serve wine from your own backyard vineyard. Thousands across the nation have taken to becoming hobby vintners and winemakers in recent years. It is not a difficult hobby and offers much satisfaction when you gaze at the final product made from your own grapes and encircled with your own private bottle label.

You must first decide what type of grapes you should plant. . . . The best grape being small and not too sweet. A good white wine can be made from the Thompson seedless grape, and the Camay wine is also a generous bearer. Although the connoisseur would plant only one type of grape, or grow table grapes solely for eating pleasure. Also keep in mind that when you arrive at the wine-making stage, red wine is easier to make than white wine which is more delicate.

Most good nurseries or schools of viticulture will be able to tell you what grape types will flourish in your area, and will have the vine available or know where to obtain them. But only the best, as the original cost is small.

Depending on the variety, twelve vines should produce approximately 12 gallons of wine or about 60 of the regular size fifth bottles.

Grapes take to most soils. Some of the best wine grapes in California and in France grow in gravelly soil. The best time to plant your vines is in the spring. The soil should be prepared before planting in good sized holes four to five feet apart. Grape vines are strong and will survive through many climatic changes, but as far as standing by themselves, they are weaklings. They need the support of redwood stakes or trellises to which they must be tied.

The grapes have to be fertilized and in order to prevent mildew the vine leaves should be dusted with garden sulphur — especially after rain. Each year the dormant vines must be pruned.

Patience is a necessity for any wine maker. It depends on how large the vines are when you buy them as to when you will get your first crop. Wait three or four years. After the fourth year you should get a good crop.

Before harvesting your grapes, visit any of the numerous shops that will provide you with all the necessary equipment from fermenting barrels to corks. Detailed instruction on making wine are available in these shops as well as book stores and libraries.

The best varieties of white grapes to plant are Pinot Chardonnay, Johannisberg Riesling, and Gewurztraminer. The best red varieties are Cabernet Sauvignon, Pinot Noir and Zinfandel. These are varietal grapes and will do well only in certain areas.

Find out what type of grapes will grow best in your own backyard. France, famous for wines, has areas where grapes won't grow, but you are lucky, grapes will grow in your backyard no matter where you live in the United States, as long as you give them a little tender care.

Peter Pan Zinnias Gold Medal Winner

Two little zinnias have broken a record! For the almost forty years that All America Selections has operated test gardens in many states and several countries, that judges have observed and scored thousands of entries in the trials—none has received so high a score as Peter Pan Pink and Peter Pan Plum. Both are gold medal winners.

They're dwarf—they're decorative and they're delightful! Except for flower color they are twins—dwarf, bushy, very early to start blooming, free-flowering all summer and "self-cleaning" because the new leaves cover the older flowers. Both are first generation hybrids grow from 10 to 12 inches tall have blooms from 3 to 4 inches in diameter and start to blossom when only 6 inches high.

Even their colors contrast beautifully although you'd never guess it from the written description. Peter Pan Pink has coral pink blossoms which become two-toned as they age; salmon-rose in the center while the outer petals retain their coral pink hue.

Peter Pan Plum, striking when planted with Peter Pan Pink, has flowers described variously as lavender-rose or rosy purple, in other words, a believable plum color.

Petals of flowers of both varieties are slightly curled and the flower forms vary from plant to plant; some are cactus type with pointed petals, some resemble dahlias in their fullness and others have flatish blooms.

Here are two zinnias that will perform well in pots or planters, may be massed in beds or borders or even used as hedges. To see them is to wish you had them in your garden.

Rose History

Roses are one of the easiest plants in the world to grow. They thrive in every state of the Union, including Alaska, and they are widely planted throughout the world. The rose, according to archaeologists, has been with us 35,000,000 years.

Many commercial rose growers use herds of sheep to defoliate the plants prior to harvest. The nimble sheep delicately chew away the leaves without damaging the canes. No machine or chemical has yet been found that can improve upon them.

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

"Charity begins at home," murmured East. "Why try it at the bridge table?" South ducked the first heart; won the continuation and led a spade to dummy's nine. East won with the queen and led his last heart.

South won that trick; led his last spade; finessed successfully against West's king; discarded three clubs on the rest of the spades; conceded a trick to the ace of diamonds and made the rest for a very good score of plus 630.

It wasn't a top score since a couple of North players made 11 tricks in a spade contract, but it was a lot better than being set one or two tricks which is what would have happened if West had just thought of playing second hand high and played his king the first time spades were led.

This second hand high play would have held South to just one spade trick provided that East was careful to take his ace of diamonds at the right time. It might even have held him to no spade tricks at all if South had let the king of spades hold and tried a finesse against the queen later on.

While on the subject of charity we might point out that East wasn't as tough with South as he might have been. If East had ducked that first spade (a very tough play) South would not have been able to make more than nine tricks.

The Doctor Says

Skin Pigment Disturbs This Reader

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am 53 years old, a black woman of light-brown complexion. For quite a few years now, my skin has been turning very dark-brown. It started with the old-fashioned liver spots, but has spread until now it covers the greatest area of my face. I do not have this darkening of the skin on any other part of my body. My doctor says it is no disease as long as there are no bumps or erosions, but it seems to be continuous spreading. When I use a good make-up, it is hardly noticeable, but nevertheless it is still there and looks just awful without make-up. Is there any way of stopping this or do you feel I need treatment?

Dear Reader — Skin color, black, brown or white and shades of them, is basically dependent upon how much melanin pigment is produced by pigment cells in the skin. There are about the same number of these pigment-producing cells in everybody's skin, but some of them produce more pigment than others.

Your doctor is probably right in saying that you don't have any disease, if all that you have is a change in pigment of the skin. There are a lot of reasons for such pigment changes. Most of them are relatively harmless. In a young woman who might be taking birth control pills, this type of response can sometimes occur, producing increased pigmented spots on the face. It also occurs sometimes during pregnancy and in other people it occurs with advancing years. Exposure to sun seems to enhance pigmentation.

The best thing I can suggest is to use a sun-screen type cosmetic spread over the area of increased pigmentation when you are out in the sun. This will help keep the sun's rays from activating the cells to produce more pigment in that area. I know this is a certain amount of bother, but the more you protect these areas in the sun the less pigmentation they will develop. But I would like to relieve your mind by telling you that these types of changes are not an indication of poor health or skin disease.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am 42 years old and eat radishes by the bunches. Someone told me they can be very harmful. Is this true?

Dear Reader — Nonsense. Some people with digestive problems have difficulty with radishes, onions and similar foods, but otherwise there is nothing to it. Enjoy your radishes. They are a lot better

Minister To Address Businessmen's Group

Rev. Tony Lindland, pastor of the Salem Evangelical Free Church in Chicago, will address the Northwest Christian Business Men's group Tuesday.

Rev. Lindland was born in Norway, was raised on the East Coast of the United States, and served in the ski troops during World War II. He was employed in the building business in New York City but left the business world to train for the ministry. He has been the pastor of the Salem Evangelical Free Church for seven years.

The businessmen's group meets every Tuesday from noon to 1 p.m. at the Nielsen Restaurant, Mannheim Road near Higgins Road. All men are invited to attend.

Before I joined the
Savings Plan all I could save was string.

When it comes to saving money, most of us can use all the help we can get.
Joining the Payroll Savings Plan is one easy way to force yourself to save. When you sign up, an amount you specify is set aside from each paycheck and used to buy U.S. Savings Bonds. It's automatic. Everything is done for you.
And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 5½% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra ½%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970... with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.
Stick with the plan and before you know it you'll have a bankroll waiting. That's when you'll find you can do a lot more with money than you can with

Garbage Disposal--What It's Costing Suburbs And Why

(America is suffering from an ailment, its people are vast consumers, and more than they use they throw away. It is a national predicament of which few consumers are aware. Americans have learned that to throw something away makes it disappear forever. Now there are disturbing examples of a fact: nothing really disappears, it just becomes converted into smoke or a patrit dump if not handled properly.

In this series, two Herald writers examine the state of waste disposal in the Northwest suburbs, beginning with the

by JAMES VESELY and NANCY COWGER First of a Series

Homeowners and apartment dwellers in the Northwest suburbs are paying wildly divergent prices and receiving service ranging from indifferent to elegant as the result of a piecemeal approach to the crucial demands of garbage collection.

Although details of scavenger service in the suburbs differ greatly from community to community, the total picture of the scavenger industry shows a largely unregulated and self-protective conglomeration of companies largely dealing as they please. Aside from pockets of strict governmental controls or areas where the municipality itself handles its garbage, suburban residents are often left on their own to comply with requirements set by the scavengers.

A Herald survey of the scavenger business in the Northwest suburbs shows that homeowners may pay as much as twice the amount for garbage collection as those in adjoining towns, and apartment dwellers may pay much greater amounts through their rents as do homeowners for comparable service.

SCAVENGER SERVICE in the suburbs is diverse and reflective of each community's willingness to get involved in the question of waste disposal.

In suburban villages and cities where strong municipal intervention in garbage collection prevails, prices are generally lower.

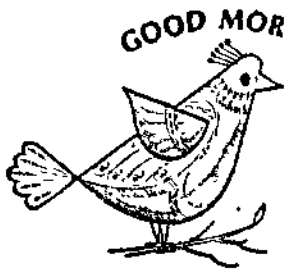

Where no government influence applies, prices can be twice as high, or the prices are low but the scavengers set aside exclusive areas for themselves. Sometimes price differences can vary between adjoining communities serviced by the same company — or even within the same community.

Barrington Trucking Co. collects garbage in Palatine for $2.25 per month under village license. In adjoining Inverness the firm operates also under exclusive village permission, but residents report they pay prices ranging from $4.75 per month to $7.25 per month for various types of service. In the area of residential versus apartment scavenger service, the disparities in prices are more evident.

Comparisons of apartment service prices between suburbs also show dramatic differences, sometimes amounting to six or seven times the price per apartment unit from suburb to suburb.

Sen. Percy Here To Dedicate New Village Hall

The new Hoffman Estates municipal building will be dedicated during outdoor ceremonies at 1 p.m. Sunday.

U.S. Sen. Charles H. Percy (R-Ill.), the featured speaker, will be introduced by Mayor Frederick Downey, who also will speak briefly.

Master of ceremonies is Bruce Lind, village trustee and chairman of the board's municipal building committee.

A speaker's platform will be set up at one end of the parking lot facing seats for 300 state and local officials and dignitaries. The general public is invited to attend the ceremony and tour the building until 5 p.m.

The program will begin with a flag raising by Albert Hartmann VFW Post 8080 of Schaumburg and the national anthem played by the Conant High School marching band.

The Conant band will provide pre-dedication entertainment beginning at 12:30 p.m.

In addition to Percy, dignitaries expected to attend include Congressman Philip Crane, State Sen. John Graham, and tentatively, Reps. Eugene Schlickman, David Regner and Eugenia Chapman.

A representative of the governor's office will present the village with a citation in recognition of its being the first to pass an ordinance requiring access for handicapped on all public buildings. The Hoffman Jaycees will also make a presentation for the same achievement.

Dr. R. Carl Menkens, Pastor of the Church of the Cross, Hoffman Estates, will give the invocation.

In case of rain, the ceremonies will be moved to the council chambers.

The League of Women Voters and the Woman's Club will be official hostesses and tour guides for the dedication. Village officials will be on hand after the ceremony to greet visitors.

Four shuttle buses from the Golf Rose Shopping center will run every five minutes to bring people to and from the building since the parking lot at the new site is insufficient to handle the expected crowd.

Pension Payment Fund Set Up By Fire District

A special Pension Payment Fund was established Wednesday by the Hoffman Estates Fire District Board of Trustees to make interest free loans to firefighters remiss in their payments.

Firefighters are not covered under the pension plan if they miss payments to it; therefore the board determined the special loan fund "was in the interests of the people of Hoffman Estates."

The board said "a serious morale problem" among the men due to late payments could "jeopardize the efficiency of the department."

Firefighters must pledge interest in the pension fund as collateral for the loan, which will be offered to all men in the department.

The fund was created with funds donated to the district rather than with tax money.

The firefighters also received board approval of their annual drive for the Muscular Dystrophy Fund, which the men will conduct in late July and early August and on Labor Day, the day of the Jerry Lewis national telethon.

The Schaumburg Jaycee carnival continues today and over the weekend with games, rides and refreshments.

The carnival will be open from 8-12 p.m. tonight, 4 p.m. to midnight Saturday and from noon to midnight Sunday at the Schaumburg Place shopping center, Springguth and Schaumburg Roads.

The Jaycees are selling chances for $1 on a 14-foot fiberglass, 40 horsepower Mercury outboard motor boat. Included in the grand prize is a tilt trailer, and the winner will be chosen Sunday at 10 p.m.

The dunk tank at the carnival will feature village board members on Sunday.

POLICE CHIEF John O'Connell and Village Mgr. George Longmeyer check over blueprints against the real thing — the new Hoffman Estates Municipal Building, which will be dedicated Sunday at ceremonies featuring Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill.

No Ruling Date Set In Cafe Trial

Although trial in the possession suit concerning the Dalehouse Restaurant in Hoffman Estates closed yesterday, Cook County Chancery Court Judge James J. Mejda did not set a date for a ruling.

Judge Mejda said he would inform attorneys for both sides of a ruling date after studying testimony and evidence presented during the trial. The attorneys had waived their rights to present closing arguments.

The suit brought by Twinbrook Investments Inc., tenant of the restaurant, charges the building was illegally repossessed Nov. 19, 1971, by Multicon Properties Inc., owner of the structure and the Hill Dale Villages development which surrounds it.

Attorney David Chaimowitz, representing Twinbrook, asked Mejda to issue a permanent injunction barring Multicon from interfering with Twinbrook's possession, order the premises restored to Twinbrook, declare a lease termination notice null and void and the original lease in full force and effect, find that the repossession was willful and unlawful and rule there is no just cause for delay of enforcement in the event of appeal.

ATTORNEY TED Shapiro, representing Multicon, asked for a ruling that the Twinbrook lease was terminated pursuant to its provisions, and that Multicon is in proper and legal possession of the building. He also asked Mejda to rule there is no reason to delay enforcement of the ruling in event of appeal.

Both attorneys asked Mejda to retain jurisdiction over future hearings in the case relating to actual and punitive damage claims.

Testifying Thursday were Roy Whitehead, regional manager of Multicon, who said he had never received a written request to allow Roger Gilbert and two partners to take over the Twinbrook lease under another corporate name; Mrs. Helen Tremp and her son Kenneth, who said they were in the restaurant Nov. 14 and that it was open for business and busy, and Roger Gilbert, who said he was not asked for a written request from Whitehead. Gilbert did not own Twinbrook then, although he has since purchased the firm contingent on the outcome of the suit.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

President Nixon said that if Congress fails to approve the new offensive weapons systems he has recommended it would virtually eliminate all chances for a broader nuclear arms limitation agreement with the Russians.

Sen. George McGovern fought in court to keep from losing some of his 271 California convention delegates to candidates he defeated in the state's winner-take-all presidential primary June 6. California campaign chairmen representing four losing contenders filed a lawsuit seeking to split up the delegation and give each Democratic candidate a proportionate slice.

With the Nixon-appointed bloc in solid opposition, the Supreme Court barred state and local governments from setting up new school zones if the redistricting impedes desegregation. The court also ruled, 6 to 2, that unions may legally make political contributions if they come from voluntary donations.

The World

The militant Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army said it will suspend offensive operations in Northern Ireland as of midnight Monday if the British Army declared a cease fire in return. The British government accepted the offer.

U.S. Diplomatic sources in Hong Kong said they are convinced that both the Soviet Union and China want to see serious negotiations to reach a Vietnam settlement, but that the rivalry between Moscow and Peking restricts the amount of pressure either can bring on North Vietnamese leaders.

The State

The Illinois Senate broke a partisan deadlock and approved two compromise plans to provide personal property tax relief for taxpayers.

Gov. Ogilvie's capital development bonding program ran into trouble in the Senate, where it was amended to give the voters the final word in a November referendum. The effect of the change would be to postpone the inauguration of the new financing plan until after the election.

Angelo Geacaris, Illinois campaign manager for Sen. Edmund Muskie's drive for the Democratic nomination, said that from 15 to 45 of the 58 Illinois delegates pledged to Muskie may switch to Sen. George McGovern if they were freed to do so.

The War

A North Vietnamese infantry regiment backed by Russian-built tanks crossed South Vietnam's northern defense line and battled government paratroopers 20 miles north of the imperial capital of Hue.

Workers Put Finishing Touches On Municipal Hall

Hoffman Estates' new municipal building yesterday didn't look like a building ready to be dedicated Sunday, but as of 5 p.m. today, all phone calls to the village hall and police are scheduled to ring at the new building.

Landscapers still were finishing work close to the building, the outdoor fountain donated by the Women's Club wasn't ready and inside more than a dozen workers were painting, working on phone lines and finishing details. Fixed seating for the council chambers was not yet in place and carpeting in half the building was yet to be laid.

A carpenter's strike called Wednesday was not expected to slow completion of the work, said Village Mgr. George Longmeyer.

Longmeyer said he was "disappointed" that there was so much last minute work to be done, but he expects the building to "look pretty sharp" tomorrow.

EVERYTHING necessary for basic operation of the village, its departments, and the police will be moved over the weekend, ready for business-as-usual Monday at 8 a.m.

The 1.1 million complex, a project chaired by Trustee Bruce Lind, is located on 6.89 acres on the north side of Golf Road just west of the Golf-Higgins intersection.

The building was approved by voters in late 1969 and has been overseen by Lind, who calls it "the most modern municipal facility in Cook County."

Half the 31,000 square feet are to be used by the police department, including six jail cells, a processing room, interrogation rooms, a group detention area and a security garage with a door that locks automatically after a squad car drives in with an apprehended person.

Additional police facilities include a photo lab, record storage room, multi-purpose classroom and squadroom with shower facilities accommodating 90 policemen. Special juvenile detention and processing areas, a reception area and community room are also featured, as well as office space for police personnel.

THE SOUTH END of the building includes the municipal offices and a council chamber with audience seating for 175 persons. The chamber, carpeted in red, features a raised platform for village officials.

Spacious, well-lit and very modern, designed by architect Andrew McPherson of Olin Associates, Northbrook, the municipal offices are a striking contrast to the old facilities on Illinois Boulevard. Small conference rooms as well as office space for all department heads are available in the building.

Outdoor landscaping included in the overall cost of the building includes only that area immediately surrounding the building. Phase Two of outdoor work will be completed with donations, said Longmeyer.

This office will have a master plan for the lawn area and persons or organizations wishing to donate may contact his office to choose the plant or shrub and its location. Acknowledgement of gifts will be made on metal signs staked near the plant.

Sack System Weighed

Trash Test Results Aug. 1?

Results of a Hoffman Estates test to determine user preference for a sack system of refuse disposal should be available about Aug. 1.

Presently 65 per cent of questionnaires distributed to residents of two sample areas have been returned. Trustee Diane Jensen said Wednesday.

The 10-week survey, proposed by the Environmental Concerns Committee, involved an equal number of homes in the pie-shaped High Point area, between Higgins and Golf roads, and in Parcel B, an older area at the eastern edge of the village. Cost of the investigation, estimated at about $5,000, was underwritten by the village board.

Containers, holders and hardware were provided to residents in the test areas. They were asked to use plastic sacks for half the period and paper bags for the same length of time. Sacks of the same material were not in use in both areas simultaneously.

EVALUATION of the questionnaires will be handled by a subcommittee of the environmental group which will probably include Mrs. Jensen, who chairs the committee, and members John Rausch, Craig Elderkin Jr. and John Hossack, village superintendent of public works.

Mrs. Jensen indicated questionnaires will be carefully reviewed and particular note will be taken of narrative comments expressed by respondents.

An attempt also will be made to determine whether the same problems noted by the public works department during the test will show up in these remarks, she said.

Mrs. Jensen said she anticipates the necessity of several meetings of the subcommittee to complete the project.

In other discussion this week, the environmental committee, meeting informally due to lack of quorum, talked of planned preparation of a flood plain ordinance plus review of other existing local legislation that eventually would lead to proposal of a total environmental ordinance.

All's Quiet In Schaumburg

Schaumburg has been strangely silent lately without the spasmodic interruptions of the fire siren.

Fire Chief Lloyd Abrahamson said the siren will be used only for tornado and Civil Defense warnings, since volunteer firemen now have home radios which can be used to contact the men. The siren previously was the only means of reaching volunteers in an emergency.

In Illinois House

Amendment Could Kill Paramedic Legislation

An amendment that would serve to virtually kill the paramedic bill pending in the Illinois House is expected to be offered when the bill comes to the floor for a third reading. But supporters of the bill in the House said the amendment is not likely to be accepted.

As currently proposed, the bill is designed to remove liability from specially trained paramedic administering emergency treatment to the injured and the ill. Doctors also would be covered for liability except for damages resulting from "willful and wanton" acts.

The amendment, expected to be offered by Rep. Arthur L. Berman, D-Chicago, would provide that doctors be held responsible for damages resulting from ordinary acts of negligence.

Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, who is handling the bill in the House, said he is "cautiously optimistic" that the Berman amendment would not be adopted.

Schlickman said he based his optimism on conversations with House leaders.

He said if the amendment were added to the bill, it would virtually kill the legislation.

"There's no doctor that would put his career on the line for something like that," Schlickman said.

He said the amendment is supported by a trial lawyers association.

The bill in its present form was adopted recently by the Illinois Senate under this sponsorship of Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington. It is not certain when it will come up for a vote in the House.

The bill has the support of Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie.

Expected to participate are Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Hoffman Estates, Inverness, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Rolling Meadows and Schaumburg, and possible Wheeling.

The show will be aired on Channel 5 at 10 a.m.

Hunting Ridge Students Won't Get Free Rides

Free school bus service will not be available this fall to Hunting Ridge School students from Hunting Ridge subdivision in Palatine who are being transferred to Pleasant Hill School and who live within a 1½ mile radius of their new school.

The Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 School Board voted Wednesday to provide paid bus service within the limits of current policy after convincing the transportation committee to change the original recommendation seeking free rides.

The committee originally suggested that the board grant free transportation to all Hunting Ridge students being transferred to Pleasant Hill, regardless of how close they live to the new school.

Board member Bud Gibbs argued in favor of the free transportation because he felt the transfer of students was being done solely to accommodate the board and because he felt there was a danger present to students who walk along Quentin Road to get to school.

JOEL MEYER, who opposed the recommendation, said it would contravene district policy, and added there are other areas in the district as potentially dangerous as the Quentin Road area near Fremd High School where children walk to school.

"It is not the district's responsibility to get the children across the street safely," Meyer said.

The committee agreed to change its recommendation and the board passed a standard resolution providing bus service at the usual rate ($15 per student per semester) to students from the Hunting Ridge subdivision in Palatine who are being transferred to Pleasant Hill.

Approximately 55 students are expected to be affected.

Any students who live more than 1½ miles from the school will continue to receive free bus transportation, in keeping with district policy.

In related action the board instructed Frank Whiteley, district superintendent, to study the possibility of getting a crossing guard for the intersection of Quentin and Glencoe Road.

New Lawn Sprinkling Hours Take Effect July 1

An ordinance scheduling new lawn sprinkling hours in Hoffman Estates will take effect July 1.

The new timetable, approved by the village board Monday night, was established to eliminate confusion Village Mgr. George Longmeyer said.

"The hours were a little confusing. We thought we'd try to simplify it," he said.

Under the new system, residents of homes with odd numbered street addresses will be permitted to water lawns on odd number calendar days. Those with even number street addresses may sprinkle on even numbered days. No sprinkling will be permitted for anyone between the hours of 2 and 7 p.m. on any day, said Longmeyer. Residents with new sod or shrubbery may apply with the water department for a special 30-day permit to sprinkle in times other than specified.

THE NEW ORDINANCE will be in effect automatically each year from June 1 through Oct. 1.

Longmeyer also noted the new ordinance will be enforced throughout the village, not just north of the tollway. This spring water shortages existed only north of the tollway, and residents will give away 10,000 balloons.

Bicycles and tricycles will join the parade at Kankakee Lane. Four trophies will be awarded to the best decorated boy and girl bicycle and the best boy and girl tricycle. Youngsters should meet at the designated area at 9:45 a.m.

DIGNITARIES riding in the parade include Mayor Frederick Downey, park district commissioners and Miss Hoffman Estates and Roselle's Rose Queen.

Jim Hill of WMAQ radio will be master of ceremonies at the awards presentations at 11:30 a.m.

A pet parade will join the units at Paris Lane, just east of Illinois Boulevard. Trophies will be awarded to the funniest dressed and to the most unusual pet. Entries should report to the area at 9:15 a.m. Triangle Pet Center Inc., Schaumburg, will sponsor this part of the parade.

Rev. John Sternberg of St. Peter Lutheran Church will give the invocation. The VFW Post 8080 color guard will conduct the flag raising ceremony and George Pittinger will lead the pledge of allegiance.

During the day and evening the Pretzel Benders, a sing-along combo, will play music, entertaining near the beer booth and strolling the village green. Elgin Hammond Organ Studio will also provide musical entertainment.

THE $1,500 fireworks display will begin at 9 p.m. The Greater Woodfield Chamber of Commerce and Industry donated $500 towards the display.

A new attraction to the day's festivities this year will be a free adult bingo game from 2 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

All events, including a horseshoe pitch at 1 p.m., tug of war at 4 p.m. and adult egg toss at 3 p.m. are free.

A teen car smash will be held at 1:30 p.m., a novelty and magic show at 2 p.m., a watermelon eating contest at 3 p.m. and adult races at 3:30 p.m.

Teen swim for 17-21 year olds will be held at the community pool from 3 to 5:30 p.m. and a teen dance from 5 to 7 p.m. at Hoffman School.

Names Needed For Area Football Teams

Two new football teams being formed by the Hoffman Estates Boys' Club need names, and the club is sponsoring a contest to select them.

Suggestions should be sent to Tony Stompanato, 218 Illinois Blvd., Hoffman Estates. A prize of $15 will be awarded to each winner. Entries must be received no later than June 30.

One of the new teams will be a traveling pee wee team for boys 10 and 11 years old up to 85 pounds. They will play in the Pop Warner League, suburban junior division.

The second team will be a traveling team in the George Halas League, northwest division for pre-high school boys including 14-year-olds up to 110 pounds.

Boys interested in registering may do so all day July 4, at the Boys Club next to old village hall, 161 Illinois Blvd., Hoffman Estates.

Garbage Disposal--What It's Costing Suburbs And Why

America is suffering from an ailment. Its people are vast consumers, and more than they use they throw away. It is a national predicament of which few consumers are aware. Americans have learned that to throw something away makes it disappear forever. Now there are disturbing examples of a fact: nothing really disappears. It just becomes converted into smoke or a putrid dump if not handled properly.

In this series, two Herald writers examine the state of waste disposal in the Northwest suburbs, beginning with the

by JAMES VESELY
and NANCY COWGER
First of a Series

Homeowners and apartment dwellers in the Northwest suburbs are paying wildly divergent prices and receiving service ranging from indifferent to elegant as the result of a piecemeal approach to the crucial demands of garbage collection.

Although details of scavenger service in the suburbs differ greatly from community to community, the total picture of the scavenger industry shows a largely unregulated and self-protective conglomeration of companies largely dealing as they please. Aside from pockets of strict governmental controls or areas where the municipality itself handles its garbage, suburban residents are often left on their own to comply with requirements set by the scavengers.

A Herald survey of the scavenger business in the Northwest suburbs shows that homeowners may pay as much as twice the amount for garbage collection as those in adjoining towns, and apartment dwellers may pay much greater amounts through their rents as do homeowners for comparable service.

SCAVENGER SERVICE in the suburbs is diverse and reflective of each community's willingness to get involved in the question of waste disposal.

In suburban villages and cities where strong municipal intervention in garbage collection prevails, prices are generally lower.

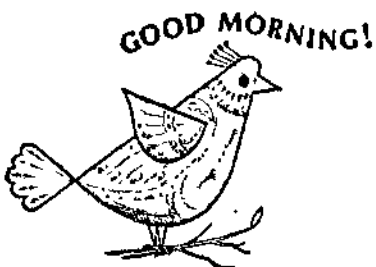

Where no government influence applies, prices can be twice as high, or the prices are low but the scavengers set aside exclusive areas for themselves. Sometimes price differences can vary between adjoining communities serviced by the same company — or even within the same community.

Barrington Trucking Co. collects garbage in Palatine for $2.25 per month under village license. In adjoining Inverness the firm operates also under exclusive village permission, but residents report they pay prices ranging from $4.75 per month to $7.25 per month for various types of service. In the area of residential versus apartment scavenger service, the disparities in prices are more evident.

Comparisons of apartment service prices between suburbs also show dramatic differences, sometimes amounting to six or seven times the price per apartment unit from suburb to suburb.

Volunteer Board Problems To Be Studied By Trustees

Wheeling Trustee Albert Lang is planning to call a village board committee meeting to discuss problems on the various village volunteer boards and commissions.

Lang said this week that he has held up action on appointments and reappointments to the various volunteer commissions because of a series of recent resignations and problems in the volunteer groups.

Many of the commission vacancies filled last fall were assigned to people who had opposed the current village officials in the last election.

The trustees said at the time the appointments were made that the people indicated a desire for solidarity in the village since the election campaign was over.

Whether the problems that have arisen between the commissions and the board are a result of clashes between the trustees and their political opponents remains to be seen, however.

RECENT resignations of longtime commission members D. Wray Peal, chairman of the public relations commission, and Mrs. Gertrude Trunda from the human relations commission apparently have no such political basis.

Douglas Cargill, who has announced his plans to resign from the village plan commission, says he is doing so because he finds it difficult to attend regularly scheduled meetings.

Four village youth commission members have submitted their resignations despite that group's involvement in the new Youth Services Bureau. They are Gus Nizzi, Patti Ritchie, Thomas Feldsien and John Grunst.

Michael Russo has resigned from the village industrial commission and Marianne Garvey has announced her intention to leave the human relations commission.

In addition to the resignations there have been some public clashes involving the commissions.

Daryl Boyd, the only male member of the human relations commission, wrote to the village board about poor attendance by others on the commission.

Jane Carlson and Barbara Murphy wrote a letter of response explaining that the newly reorganized commission is working to become educated in human relations before it undertakes sweeping projects in the community.

SHEILA SCHULTZ of the public relations commission sharply criticized village board members for lack of involvement with their village newsletter.

Speaking at a recent meeting, Mrs. Schultz told the board that residents must turn to the Herald rather than the village newsletter for information because the board members refuse to submit information to the public relations commission.

Police Sought My Help, Says Stavros

Former Wheeling Township Democratic Committeeman James Stavros said yesterday he had been asked by John Flood of the Combined Counties Police Association to intercede in behalf of a suspended Wheeling policeman.

Stavros affirmed comments made by Trustee Michael Valenza at a village board meeting earlier this week.

Valenza had said Flood asked Stavros to intercede on behalf of Sgt. Gene Wolf and that Stavros had refused to do so.

Stavros told the Herald he had refused to call the village manager for Flood.

Although Flood admits that he asked for a meeting with Stavros, he says he did so to ask Stavros to stop political interference in the village's police department.

He cited the suspension of Wolf for requesting to speak at a village board meeting as an example of that "political interference."

Stavros charged yesterday that when Flood was working to start the CCPA he had come to Stavros seeking aid in beginning the association.

Stavros said he had questioned Flood whether the police union would be a political organization.

"When he told me there were no politics involved then I said 'You don't need me. I'm a political leader, not a union leader,'" Stavros said.

"I wouldn't get involved with it. I can't go into municipalities and get involved," Stavros said.

STAVROS SAID Flood had come to him asking him to head the advertising program for the CCPA when it was first being organized.

The recent meeting was held after Flood telephoned Stavros four times asking that the former committeeman meet with him, Stavros said.

"He didn't say what he wanted," Stavros said.

Stavros said he called Wheeling Trustee Michael Valenza and attempted to call Trustee John Koeppe to come to the meeting "as witnesses."

"When we got to the meeting Flood started to threaten me and wanted me to go to Roger Stricker (the village director of public safety) about Wolf's suspension."

"I told him Stricker's not my man, he works for the village. I said I wouldn't go to anybody. I'm not involved in his battle with the village," Stavros said.

He said he had suggested that Flood himself go to see Village Mgr. George Passolt.

"I don't talk to George Passolt. He's never been a close friend of mine. He was involved with the village long before I became involved. I fought Passolt for the manager's job. But the board chose him instead of my choice — which is fine because they are the boss," Stavros said.

He declined to name the man he had backed for village manager other than to say it was "a young lawyer."

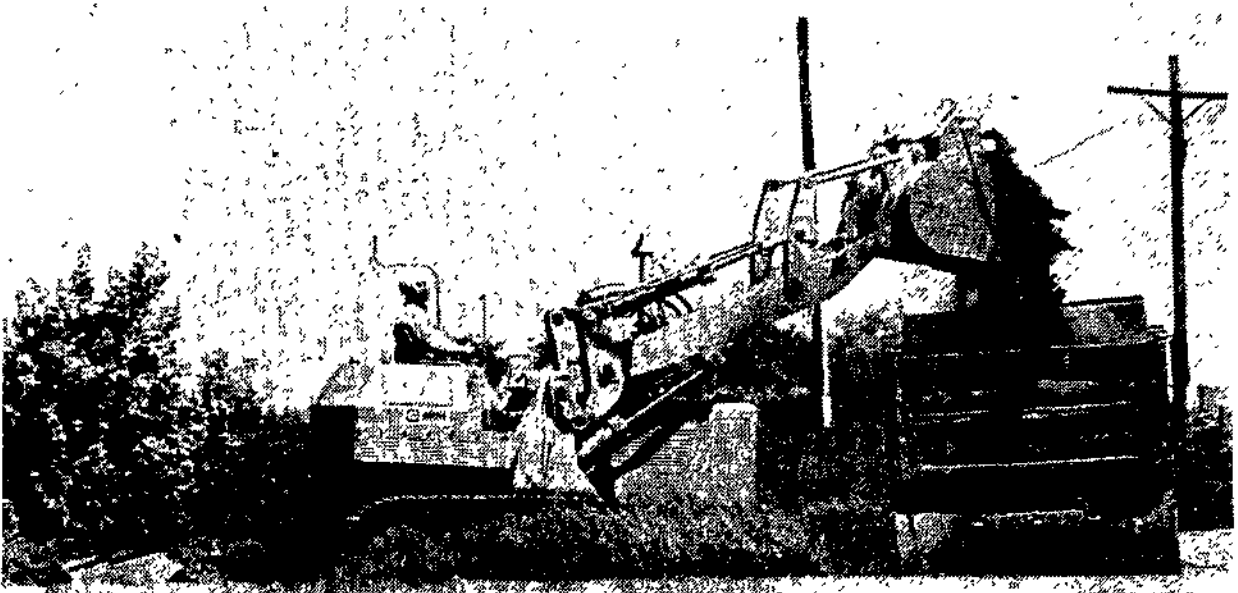

STAVROS WENT on to say that there were no hard feelings between himself and Passolt.

"He does a fine job. It's just that we've never been close," Stavros said of the manager.

"Flood's upset because he can't have his cake and eat it too. But he can't threaten me and he can't push me around," Stavros said.

He went on to say that he is not involved in the village police department and has no control over its operation.

"I only know five policemen in the whole department," Stavros concluded.

Pal-Waukee Suit Delayed To July 13

A decision in the suit filed by Cook County against Pal-Waukee Airport has been delayed until July 13.

Cook County Circuit Court Judge Nathan M. Cohen was to have ruled on the case yesterday, but the judge continued the ruling until 2 p.m. July 13.

The suit charges that the airport violated provisions of a special use permit issued by the county board by building a longer jet runway than the permit allowed.

The Village of Wheeling had originally intervened in the suit, but the village was dropped from the case by Cohen during the course of the trial.

Several of the points in the county's suit against the airport were also dismissed, although the charge of the permit violation remains to be decided.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

President Nixon said that if Congress fails to approve the new offensive weapons systems he has recommended it would virtually eliminate all chances for a broader nuclear arms limitation agreement with the Russians.

Sen. George McGovern fought in court to keep from losing some of his 271 California convention delegates to candidates he defeated in the state's winner-take-all presidential primary June 6. California campaign chairmen representing four losing contenders filed a lawsuit seeking to split up the delegation and give each Democratic candidate a proportionate slice.

With the Nixon-appointed bloc in solid opposition, the Supreme Court barred state and local governments from setting up new school zones if the redistricting impedes desegregation. The court also ruled, 6 to 2, that unions may legally make political contributions if they come from voluntary donations.

The World

The militant Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army said it will suspend offensive operations in Northern Ireland as of midnight Monday if the British Army declared a cease fire in return. The British government accepted the offer.

U.S. Diplomatic sources in Hong Kong said they are convinced that both the Soviet Union and China want to see serious negotiations to reach a Vietnam settlement, but that the rivalry between Moscow and Peking restricts the amount of pressure either can bring on North Vietnamese leaders.

The State

The Illinois Senate broke a partisan deadlock and approved two compromise plans to provide personal property tax relief for taxpayers.

Gov. Ogilvie's capital development bonding program ran into trouble in the Senate, where it was amended to give the voters the final word in a November referendum. The effect of the change would be to postpone the inauguration of the new financing plan until after the election.

Angelo Geocaris, Illinois campaign manager for Sen. Edmund Muskie's drive for the Democratic nomination, said that from 15 to 45 of the 58 Illinois delegates pledged to Muskie may switch to Sen. George McGovern if they were freed to do so.

The War

A North Vietnamese infantry regiment backed by Russian-built tanks crossed South Vietnam's northern defense line and battled government paratroopers 20 miles north of the imperial capital of Hue.

Schlickman Sees Quick Release Of Creek Funds

Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie will release funds for the McDonald Creek improvement project as soon as the Illinois General Assembly passes the legislation, according to Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights.

The $100,000 appropriations for a new Soo Line R. R. bridge over McDonald Creek in Prospect Heights is included in a bill for creek improvements appropriations throughout the state.

"I have an appointment with Gov. Ogilvie Friday (today) for him to commit the release of funds for McDonald Creek as soon as the Legislature passes the bill," Schlickman said yesterday.

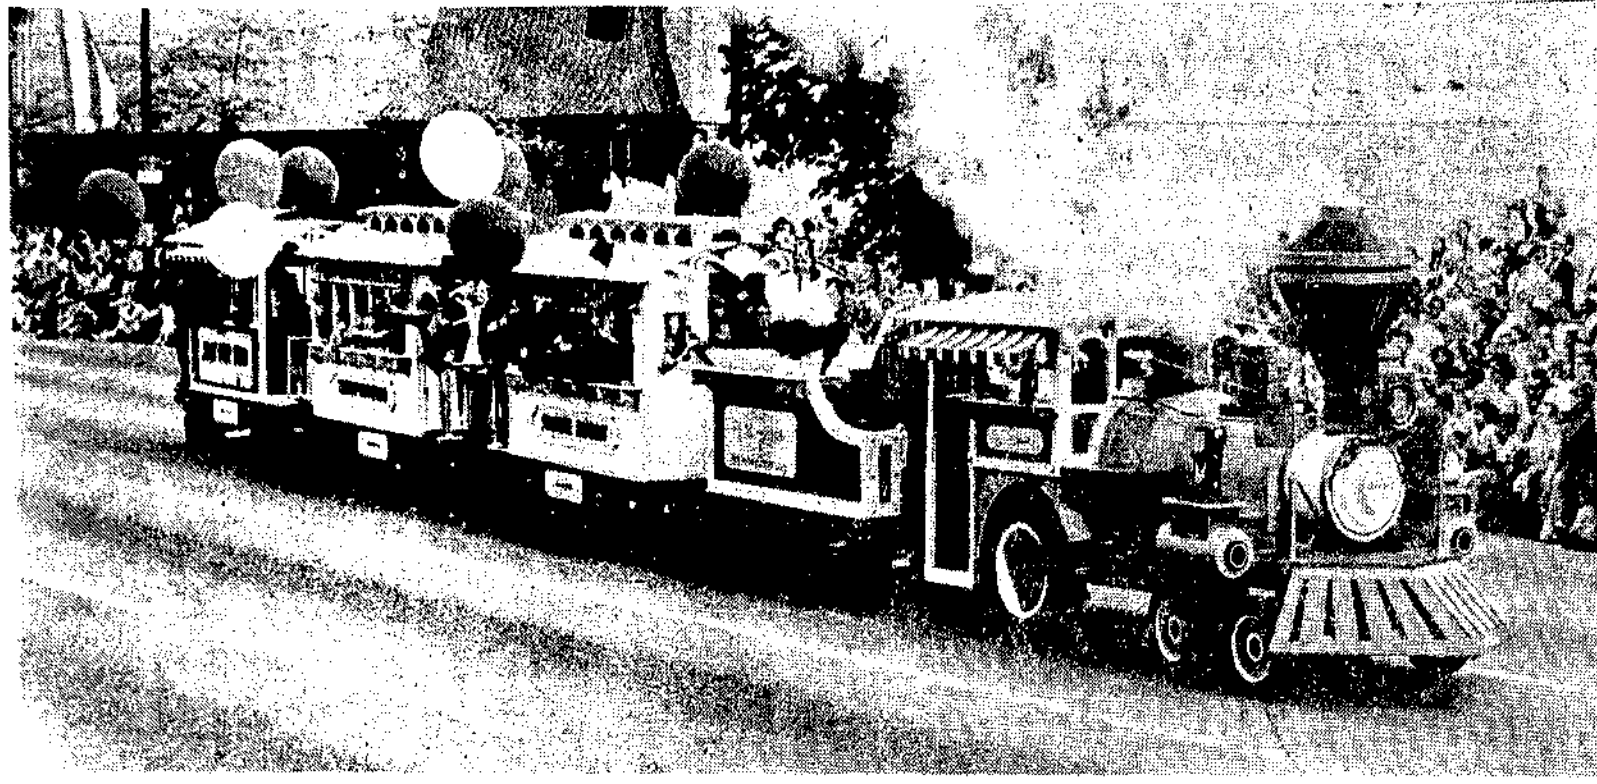

Schlickman said Ogilvie's action was unprecedented. In the past, money for such projects never had been released immediately after the legislation for the money was passed, Schlickman said.

SCHLICKMAN is optimistic the bill will get to the governor for his signature next week. The Senate has approved the bill, but the house approved the bill with two new amendments. The Senate must concur with the House on the amended bill.

Because Ogilvie plans to release the funds for the work immediately, work on the project should start within the next 40-60 days, Schlickman said.

Earlier this week Schlickman and John Guillou, chief engineer for the Illinois Division of Waterways, toured part of Prospect Heights flooded by Monday's heavy rains. Schlickman met with representatives of the governor following his tour.

Prospect Heights residents attribute many of their problems with flooding to the poor McDonald Creek drainage at the Soo Line bridge. The improved bridge will give the creek greater drainage capacity.

WHEELING JAYCEES and their families will ride this train in the annual Fourth of July Parade Sunday, July 2, in Wheeling. Other organizations wishing to sponsor entries in the parade have until Monday to register with parade chairman Marty Marecek by phoning 537-4292.

2 Answer Letter Criticizing Panel

Two members of the Wheeling Human Relations Commission have written a letter to the village board answering a recent letter from Commissioner Daryl Boyd criticizing commission attendance.

Jane Carlson and Barbara Murphy told the village board that the commission has had a full complement of members for only six months and that the new commissioners need additional time to orient themselves in the field of human relations.

In their letter the two women told the board they thought it was imperative to respond to the May 31 letter from human relations commission member Boyd.

"If you will recall, last fall the commission was nonexistent. There was only one experienced member left on the commission — Mrs. Gertrude Trunda, a veteran of six years as a commissioner. At this time, you appointed three additional members. Jane Carlson, Barbara Murphy and Maureen Pitt. Mrs. Murphy was appointed for three years, and Mrs. Carlson and Mrs. Pitt were appointed for seven months with terms to expire April, 1972," the letter said.

THE LETTER POINTS out that there were then only four members on the commission. The group decided it was futile to begin any projects without a full complement of seven members.

"We then petitioned you to provide us with three additional members in order to begin our work," the letter said.

Mrs. Mary Ann Garvey, Mrs. Marjorie Nelson and Daryl Boyd were appointed in December.

"In January, we held our first meeting with a quorum of the new and old members and obtained a background briefing from Mrs. Trunda. After all facts had been presented, we decided that research had to be done into the fields of human relations in order to deal effectively as a commission.

"TOWARDS THIS END, we agreed to attend a human relations workshop at St. Joseph's Worker School in Wheeling in February. All members attended and came away with definite insights into minority group problems and things being done to solve them. At this point, we might add that Mr. Boyd did not choose to remain for the most informative part of the evening — the group sessions with the speakers in which personal observations were discussed," they wrote.

The letter went on to point out that the commission changed its meeting night to the third Wednesday of the month at the suggestion of Boyd.

"The March meeting was subsequently cancelled. We decided to start fresh in April," they said.

"By this time Mrs. Gertrude Trunda had decided to resign as she had intended to do for some time. Mrs. Garvey's responsibilities at home had convinced her to resign in the near future. The terms of Jane Carlson and Maureen Pitt had expired and both were up for reappointment. The phone calls Mr. Boyd mentioned in his letters did not reach two members who upon checking with other members, discovered no quorum was going to be held and decided not to attend.

"IN MAY, AND TO the present time, the commission stands with only four members, with one resigning and two still not re-appointed.

"We can understand Mr. Boyd's impatience with the little progress made, and we also wish to accomplish something at a faster pace. But two points have to be recognized:

"1. With our poor beginning (only one experienced member and the difficulties in appointments) a commission cannot be expected to function at full capacity after six months.

"2. We feel, that, granting the new appointments, we need time to further orientate ourselves with the field of human relations. No citizen is going to respect a commission that does not know what it is doing," the letter said.

"In closing, we would like to request you to set definite appointments to the commission and let us begin.

"Human relations commissions should encourage better relations among citizens of a community. We want to do just this, and with your help and cooperation, as well as Mr. Boyd's patience, we will do this," the letter said.

Trustee Albert Lang said Monday in response to the letter that he would get together with the commission members to help get the commission functioning.

In Illinois House Amendment Could Kill Paramedic Legislation

An amendment that would serve to virtually kill the paramedic bill pending in the Illinois House is expected to be offered when the bill comes to the floor for a third reading. But supporters of the bill in the House said the amendment is not likely to be accepted.

As currently proposed, the bill is designed to remove liability from specially trained paramedic administering emergency treatment to the injured and the ill. Doctors also would be covered for liability except for damages resulting from "willful and wanton" acts.

The amendment, expected to be offered by Rep. Arthur L. Berman, D-Chicago, would provide that doctors be held responsible for damages resulting from ordinary acts of negligence.

Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, who is handling the bill in the House, said he is "cautiously optimistic" that the Berman amendment would not be adopted.

Schlickman said he based his optimism on conversations with House leaders.

He said if the amendment were added to the bill, it would virtually kill the legislation.

"There's no doctor that would put his career on the line for something like that," Schlickman said.

He said the amendment is supported by a trial lawyers association.

The bill in its present form was adopted recently by the Illinois Senate under the sponsorship of Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington. It is not certain when it will come up for a vote in the House.

"The bill has the support of Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie.

Expected to participate are Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Hoffman Estates, Inverness, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Rolling Meadows and Schaumburg, and possible Wheeling.

Garbage Disposal--What It's Costing Suburbs And Why

(America is suffering from an ailment. Its people are vast consumers, and more than they use they throw away. It is a national predicament of which few consumers are aware. Americans have learned that to throw something away makes it disappear forever. Now there are disturbing examples of a fact: nothing really disappears. It just becomes converted into smoke or a putrid dump if not handled properly.)

In this series, two Herald writers examine the state of waste disposal in the Northwest suburbs, beginning with the

by JAMES VESELY
and NANCY COWGER

First of a Series

Homeowners and apartment dwellers in the Northwest suburbs are paying wildly divergent prices and receiving service ranging from indifferent to elegant as the result of a piecemeal approach to the crucial demands of garbage collection.

Although details of scavenger service in the suburbs differ greatly from community to community, the total picture of the scavenger industry shows a largely unregulated and self-protective conglomeration of companies largely dealing as they please. Aside from pockets of strict governmental controls or areas where the municipality itself handles its garbage, suburban residents are often left on their own to comply with requirements set by the scavengers.

A Herald survey of the scavenger business in the Northwest suburbs shows that homeowners may pay as much as twice the amount for garbage collection as those in adjoining towns, and apartment dwellers may pay much greater amounts through their rents as do homeowners for comparable service.

SCAVENGER SERVICE in the suburbs is diverse and reflective of each community's willingness to get involved in the question of waste disposal.

In suburban villages and cities where strong municipal intervention in garbage collection prevails, prices are generally lower.

Where no government influence applies, prices can be twice as high, or the prices are low but the scavengers set aside exclusive areas for themselves. Sometimes price differences can vary between adjoining communities serviced by the same company — or even within the same community.

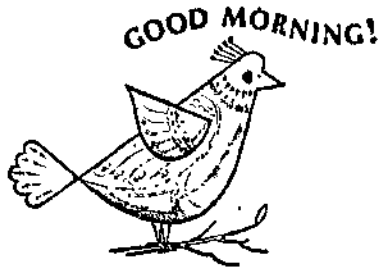

Barrington Trucking Co. collects garbage in Palatine for $2.25 per month under village license. In adjoining Inverness the firm operates also under exclusive village permission, but residents report they pay prices ranging from $4.75 per month to $7.25 per month for various types of service. In the area of residential versus apartment scavenger service, the disparities in prices are more evident.

Comparisons of apartment service prices between suburbs also show dramatic differences, sometimes amounting to six or seven times the price per apartment unit from suburb to suburb.

New TV 'Special' Coming To Village --On Sewage Flow

The Buffalo Grove Public Works department soon will be looking into the village's sewer problems with the aid of a television camera.

The department is receiving bids until 2 p.m. July 3 for the televising and chemical grouting of approximately 24,000 lineal feet of sanitary sewers in the village. The bids will be opened and read at the village board meeting that night.

Village Engr. Arnold Seaberg explained the operation. A line will be dropped in a manhole and a television camera pulled through the sewer on a winch, he said. Powerful lights mounted to the front of the camera will illuminate any cracks in the pipes or reveal any roots that have broken the tile. Air sucks will be dropped in the manholes on either side of the break and inflated to stop the flow of sewage. Chemical grout is then pumped in under pressure to fill the cracks. The operation will be monitored on a television screen in a truck on the surface.

Seaberg said the televising method has been in use for about 15 years. However, there are only three or four companies in the Chicago area who perform the operation.

SEABERG SAID the first area to be televised and grouted is in the old section of Buffalo Grove, lying south of Buffalo Creek, north of Bernard Drive, west of Buffalo Grove Road and east of Cottonwood Road.

He added that several other isolated problem areas in the village may also be televised this summer, depending on the bid price agreed upon. Manholes will also be repaired as needed. The village board has appropriated $40,000 for the first phase of what Seaberg says will probably be a three-year project.

"We don't expect to do the newer sections of the village such as Lake County Strathmore. But televising and grouting the areas we think should be done will probably take three years, depending on our financial capabilities," he said.

Seaberg said he expects the contract for the televising and grouting to be awarded shortly after the bids are closed. Work will begin around the first of August, he said, and the company will have 120 days to complete the job. The operation will not be affected by cold weather.

SEABERG EMPHASIZED that televising and grouting the sanitary sewers will not entirely solve Buffalo Grove's flooding problems.

"This operation is not meant to correct every source of storm water," he said, "it will only prevent water from entering through the storm joints. The chemical grouting will reduce the amount of ground water infiltrating the system, which is another source of storm water," he added.

Another sewer system problem that contributes to Buffalo Grove flooding is the number of illegal connections, Seaberg said. An inspection team will begin checking homes for improper hook-ups next week.

Dystrophy Carnival To Be Held Saturday

A neighborhood carnival against dystrophy will begin at noon Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gaylen Fink, 477 Navajo Trail. Seattle Fink will serve as "ringmaster" for the various events, which will include dunk the dummy, spinning wheel and rides.

All proceeds will be used to aid the fight against dystrophy and related diseases. The idea for the fund-raising events — for vital research and patient service programs of Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America — is being promoted by Bill Jackson of WFLD-TV.

For additional information call 541-0266.

Way Paved For Jacobs To Join Plan Commission

The Buffalo Grove Plan Commission Wednesday night approved a recommendation that Rodney Jacobs, 461 Spring-side Ln., be appointed to the commission.

There presently is a vacancy on the commission because Wallace "Bud" Berth asked not to be reappointed when his term expired.

Jacobs is a real estate attorney for Standard Oil of Indiana. He is a graduate of the University of Maryland and the University of Baltimore School of Law. He is presently on the village zoning Board of Appeals.

Berth, who resides at 304 Indian Hill Dr., was a member of the plan commission for three years, two of which he served as chairman. He retired from the board because of "increased demands" on his time. He was recently promoted to manager of the Buffalo Grove office of Homefinders Real Estate.

Berth also said, "I haven't been 100 per cent happy with the reception of commission recommendations by the village board." An unsuccessful candidate for village trustee in the last election, Berth said he may get back into community service by seeking a trustee position in the next election.

The commission also recommended that chairman Carl Genrich be reappointed for another one-year term. All appointments are made by the village president and the village board.

THE HEADACHE KNOWN as Arlington Heights Road north of Dundee Road is being "cured" as workmen have been at work all week tearing out the old, bumpy roadway. The road should re-open in less than two months as a smooth ribbon of blacktop up to the Lake County portion, which has already been repaved.

Heliport To Be Built In Village

Buffalo Grove will have to obtain a variance in its own zoning laws before constructing an emergency restricted heliport.

The village board approved a request from the Civil Defense Department Monday night to construct a municipal heliport adjacent to the village hall. Village Atty. Richard Rayza said the board will have to apply for a zoning variance before the site is developed.

Civil Defense director Don Schindler told the board that expense for providing the heliport will be nominal. Limestone markers will define the site, he said, and it will be necessary to put up three illuminating lights and a windsock. Civil Defense volunteers will do the work.

Schindler said the restricted heliport will be used mainly to transport victims requiring special care not offered by local hospitals to Chicago-area facilities.

"In case of a fire, burn victims could be taken to the Cook County Hospital burn center for treatment," Schindler said, "Now, any such victims must be transported by ambulance, which is much slower."

Larson added the heliport might also be used during bad weather when local roads are closed by snow or water.

The trustees told Schindler to submit a written application to the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) for permission to construct the heliport.

Currently, the Cook County Sheriff's office, the Illinois National Guard, the Chicago fire and police departments and the Armed Forces units in the area all utilize helicopters in their operations.

Cyclist, 12, Escapes Injury In Collision

A Northbrook youth escaped without injury after a car struck his bicycle in Wheeling Wednesday.

The cyclist, James Martynan, 12, of 3730 Bordeaux, Northbrook, was riding his bicycle on the sidewalk in front of 240 E. Dundee Rd. when he was struck by a car entering the highway from a driveway.

The driver of the car was identified as Sandra V. Beyer, 27, of 81 W. Wayne Pl., Wheeling, police said.

Police filed no charges.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

President Nixon said that if Congress fails to approve the new offensive weapons systems he has recommended it would virtually eliminate all chances for a broader nuclear arms limitation agreement with the Russians.

Sen. George McGovern fought in court to keep from losing some of his 271 California convention delegates to candidates he defeated in the state's winner-take-all presidential primary June 6. California campaign chairmen representing four losing contenders filed a lawsuit seeking to split up the delegation and give each Democratic candidate a proportionate slice.

With the Nixon-appointed bloc in solid opposition, the Supreme Court barred state and local governments from setting up new school zones if the redistricting impedes desegregation. The court also ruled, 6 to 2, that unions may legally make political contributions if they come from voluntary donations.

The World

The militant Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army said it will suspend offensive operations in Northern Ireland as of midnight Monday if the British Army declared a cease fire in return. The British government accepted the offer.

U.S. Diplomatic sources in Hong Kong said they are convinced that both the Soviet Union and China want to see serious negotiations to reach a Vietnam settlement, but that the rivalry between Moscow and Peking restricts the amount of pressure either can bring on North Vietnamese leaders.

The State

The Illinois Senate broke a partisan deadlock and approved two compromise plans to provide personal property tax relief for taxpayers.

Gov. Ogilvie's capital development bonding program ran into trouble in the Senate, where it was amended to give the voters the final word in a November referendum. The effect of the change would be to postpone the inauguration of the new financing plan until after the election.

Angelo Geocaris, Illinois campaign manager for Sen. Edmund Muskie's drive for the Democratic nomination, said that from 15 to 45 of the 58 Illinois delegates pledged to Muskie may switch to Sen. George McGovern if they were freed to do so.

The War

A North Vietnamese infantry regiment backed by Russian-built tanks crossed South Vietnam's northern defense line and battled government paratroopers 20 miles north of the imperial capital of Hue.

Begin Planning For Development At Race Track

by DOUG RAY

Two consulting firms have been hired by Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises (CTE), owners of the Arlington Park Race Track properties, to prepare plans for major development of the land.

The two independent land development firms are expected to present within two months, designs for a multi-story apartment complex between the race track and Arlington Park Towers Hotel.

Tom Rivera, spokesman for CTE, acknowledged yesterday that the studies are under way but said no target date for construction has been set.

"We turned this over to professional land developers to let them develop a plan the best way they can," Rivera said. He said existing structures on the property, including the hotel and race track, will remain.

The Village of Arlington Heights already has approved the apartment complex under the 1969 annexation agreement that brought the 500-acre parcel into the village. The agreement states that the village cannot place any restrictions upon height of the structures.

THE ANNEXATION agreement also allows CTE to operate hotels, motels, sports arena, theaters, convention hall, amusement centers, office and professional buildings and commercial retail establishments on the property.

With the annexation agreement allowing a sports arena and the Chicago Bulls searching for a facility to play its basketball games, renewed speculation is that the Arlington Park properties may house such a structure in the future.

Marvin Fishman of Milwaukee, who has purchased the National Basketball Association (NBA) team, could not be reached for comment on the possibility of moving the team to the Northwest suburbs, but published reports have indicated that Fishman may be considering a site somewhere in the area. Fishman is awaiting confirmation of the recent purchase of the team from the owners of other NBA franchises.

There also were reports, in 1969, soon after the property was annexed to the village, that a sports stadium might be built on Arlington Park properties for the Chicago Bears professional football team. No action was taken and the Bears found a home at Soldier Field in Chicago.

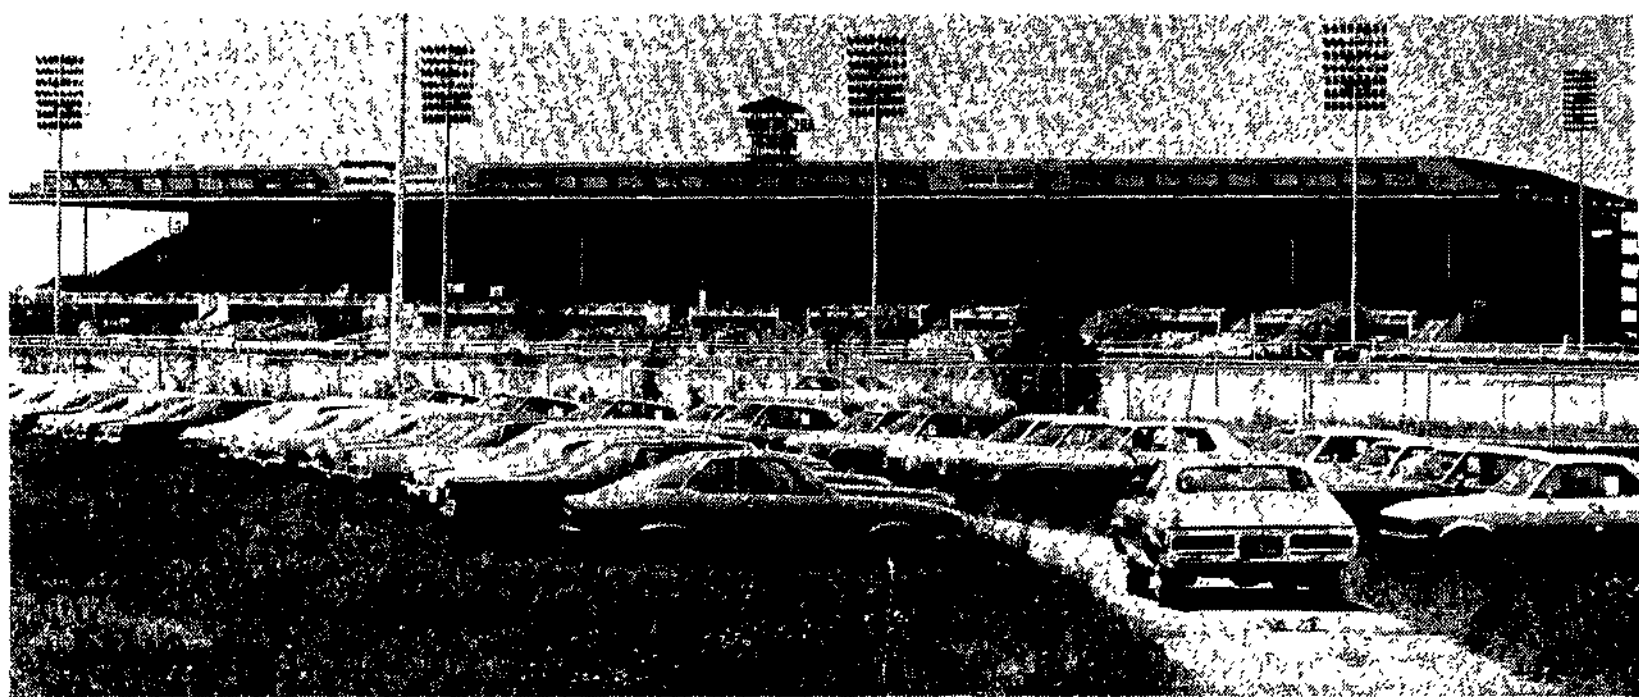

Whatever final form the entire tract in Arlington Heights will take likely will be determined soon because several provisions of the annexation agreement with the village become void in 1975.

WHILE CONSULTANTS are studying the bulk of the Arlington Park land for development, something also "is in the works" for the 20 acres in Rolling Meadows owned by CTE, Rivera said. He would not be specific.

The land at the intersection of Euclid Avenue and Wilke Road, is being used as a parking lot for a local car dealer but development plans are to be revealed to Rolling Meadows officials at the end of the Arlington racing season, Rivera added. The current Arlington Park racing meeting ends Aug. 23.

That land presently is zoned for single family use. Rolling Meadows building and zoning officer Sverre Haug said he has received no information about plans for the property.

Rivera said CTE "is in no hurry" to develop the property. He added that one of the consulting firms has been at work on the project for about a year while the other company was hired "to get a second viewpoint."

THIS LOT at the intersection of Wilke Road and Euclid Avenue in Rolling Meadows is being used by a local auto dealer and is one of the parcels of land to be developed by Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises (CTE), owners of Arlington Park Race Track. Two consulting firms are working on plans for the major section of CTE property west of the race track in Arlington Heights.

Paramedic Bill May Be Killed

An amendment that would serve to virtually kill the paramedic bill pending in the Illinois House is expected to be offered when the bill comes to the floor for a third reading. But supporters of the bill in the House said the amendment is not likely to be accepted.

As currently proposed, the bill is designed to remove liability from specially trained paramedic administering emergency treatment to the injured and the ill. Doctors also would be covered for liability except for damages resulting from "willful and wanton" acts.

The amendment, expected to be offered by Rep. Arthur L. Berman, D-Chicago, would provide that doctors be held responsible for damages resulting from ordinary acts of negligence.

Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, who is handling the bill in the House, said he is "cautiously optimistic" that the Berman amendment would not be adopted.

Schlickman said he based his optimism on conversations with House leaders.

He said if the amendment were added to the bill, it would virtually kill the legislation.

"There's no doctor that would put his career on the line for something like that," Schlickman said.

He said the amendment is supported by a trial lawyers association.

The bill in its present form was adopted recently by the Illinois Senate under the sponsorship of Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington. It is not certain when it will come up for a vote in the House.

The bill has the support of Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie.

It is intended to enable a mobile emergency treatment unit to operate in the Northwest suburbs, based at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights. Expected to participate are Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Hoffman Estates, Inverness, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Rolling Meadows and Schaumburg, and possible Wheeling.

"UN-HUMOROUS" thought. During a discussion on whether to restrict the sale of ice cream near schools, Trustee Clayton Brown posed a chilling rendition of what may lie ahead: "Can you picture an ice cream vendor by Paddock school," he said, "peering out of an alley saying, 'Psst, kid, want an ice cream bar?'"

REEL LIFE STORY. Paul Jung, Palatine-Rolling Meadows school Dist. 15's personnel director, is reportedly an avid fisherman, whose fish fries are famous from one end of Palatine to the other. On a recent fishing outing, however, Jung caught more than he was angling for. While climbing a hill, he tripped over his tackle box, fell, and cracked a couple of ribs.

NO CREDIT. A developer was hassling with trustees over street improvements when the subject of money came up. "Details," said the developer. "Expensive details," responded Village Mgr. Bert Braun, who spends much of his time trying to collect on questionable letters of credit. The developer said his firm would do "whatever's acceptable." To which Braun quickly answered: "Cash."

WHILE APPROVING bids for cafeteria supplies last week, the District 15 Board came across an order among the lists of pots and pans and other kitchen gadgets, for a spork. For those who don't know (like the board at the time) a spork is a utensil alleged to be the result of the marriage of a spoon and fork. That, of course, is not to be confused with a

2nd School Truck Damaged Wednesday

Palatine police are expected to step up patrols around the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 building after another truck was vandalized there late Wednesday.

The damage, estimated at $50, apparently occurred after a school board meeting at 505 S. Quentin Rd. Two signal lights and one clearance light were broken and the windshield wiper bent. Last weekend, one school truck at the same location and eight buses were damaged.

Bible School To Be Conducted Here

Look in the backyard for Palatine Bible Church's Bible School this summer. The first vacation Bible School starts Monday. It will be in backyards of homes in the northwest corner of Palatine Township between 9:30 and 11 a.m. and in the church's backyard at 312 E. Wood St., between 1:30 and 3 p.m.

To pre-register and find the closest backyard Bible School, call 358-1150 or 358-4831. There is no charge for the session. Other "Good News" sessions will be July 17-21 and one week in August.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

President Nixon said that if Congress fails to approve the new offensive weapons systems he has recommended it would virtually eliminate all chances for a broader nuclear arms limitation agreement with the Russians.

Sen. George McGovern fought in court to keep from losing some of his 271 California convention delegates to candidates he defeated in the state's winner-take-all presidential primary June 6. California campaign chairmen representing four losing contenders filed a lawsuit seeking to split up the delegation and give each Democratic candidate a proportionate slice.

With the Nixon-appointed bloc in solid opposition, the Supreme Court barred state and local governments from setting up new school zones if the redistricting impedes desegregation. The court also ruled, 6 to 2, that unions may legally make political contributions if they come from voluntary donations.

The World

The militant Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army said it will suspend offensive operations in Northern Ireland as of midnight Monday if the British government declared a cease fire in return. The British government accepted the offer.

U.S. Diplomatic sources in Hong Kong said they are convinced that both the Soviet Union and China want to see serious negotiations to reach a Vietnam settlement, but that the rivalry between Moscow and Peking restricts the amount of pressure either can bring on North Vietnamese leaders.

The State

The Illinois Senate broke a partisan deadlock and approved two compromise plans to provide personal property tax relief for taxpayers.

Gov. Ogilvie's capital development bonding program ran into trouble in the Senate, where it was amended to give the voters the final word in a November referendum. The effect of the change would be to postpone the inauguration of the new financing plan until after the election.

Angelo Geocaris, Illinois campaign manager for Sen. Edmund Muskie's drive for the Democratic nomination, said that from 15 to 45 of the 58 Illinois delegates pledged to Muskie may switch to Sen. George McGovern if they were freed to do so.

The War

A North Vietnamese infantry regiment backed by Russian-built tanks crossed South Vietnam's northern defense line and battled government paratroopers 20 miles north of the imperial capital of Hue.

IT MAY BE AN eyesore now, but the dumping area is slated to be cleaned up soon by area residents. The residents are also busy noting license numbers of cars seen in the area in an effort to discourage further dumping.

Kenilwicke Residents 'Sick Of Trash'

Residents of the Kenilwicke subdivision in Palatine have grown tired of trash being dumped in the undeveloped portions of their subdivision, and have taken steps to do something about it.

Kenilwicke residents have taken down license plate numbers and descriptions of cars observed in the eastern portion of the subdivision, where the dumping has occurred.

Through the aid of the Palatine Police Department, the license numbers have been traced to the cars' owners. When the car's description and plate number have matched and belong to an area resident, a letter has been sent to the owner, according to Russell Bergner, president of the Kenilwicke Homeowners Association.

Charges Restaurant Owners With Battery

James L. Weaver signed complaints for battery against the owners of the Palatine House Restaurant yesterday. The complaints stemmed from an incident at the restaurant Tuesday when Weaver was charged with breach of the peace, a violation of a village ordinance.

No hearing date has been set for the complaints. Weaver signed against John Bakopoulos, James Panagakis and Gus Kotsios, who were allegedly involved in the incident at the restaurant, 217 W. Colfax St., Palatine.

Weaver, of 136 S. Ridge Ave. in Arlington Heights, entered the restaurant demanding to see his wife and was thrown out according to police reports. He was ticketed for yelling and shouting.

So far, he indicated, about 12 letters have been sent.

Bergner said that to avoid possible legal repercussions, the letters have not directly accused the individuals of dumping, but merely state that the home owners association is concerned about the problem and anxious that it not continue.

The letters do contain the addressee's license number, however.

Bergner said that if repeated offenders are caught the homeowners association would consider legal action.

Meanwhile, he said, the residents of Kenilwicke are to participate in a clean-up day at a later date. The dumping area is along Cunningham Drive, east of Elmwood Avenue.

4th Parade Comes Early

Fourth of July will come early this year in Arlington Heights, as the annual parade, 70 units strong, marches through the village Saturday.

Eight floats and nine bands will be included in this year's parade, which will step off from the main gate of Arlington Park Race Track at 9:30 a.m.

The parade, which is sponsored by the Arlington Heights Jaycees, is traditionally well in advance of the Fourth because it avoids conflicts with other parades in obtaining parade units. This year, bands and other special units come from all over the Chicago metropolitan area.

Though no local high school bands will participate, there will be seven drum and bugle corps along with the Catholic Youth Organization from LaGrange and the Spartan Youth Cadettes from the South Side of Chicago.

Floats will represent Wheeling Township Teenage Republicans, the Regular Wheeling Township Democrats, the First Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights, Creative Cabin, Northpoint Shopping Center, Job's Daughters and Paddock Publications.

Floats will be judged in front of the Arlington Heights Memorial Library, 500 N. Dunton, and a trophy will be given to the winner.

Dignitaries to be included in the parade will be Illinois' Junior Miss, Barbara Jean Gorgol of Des Plaines, George Halas, owner of the Chicago Bears, and Leah Poulos, Olympic speed skater.

The theme of this year's parade will be "Liberty — America's Blessing."

Add 14 Teachers To School District

Teaching staff sizes for 19 schools have been finalized by the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 Board of Education.

The district's full-time teaching corps will number 588 in the fall, an increase of 14 from the 1971-72 school year.

The staff increase is necessary to accommodate an expected increase in enrollment, said Paul Jung, director of personnel for the district.

Few major changes in staff sizes at individual schools are included in the plan, with the exception of Lincoln School where a pilot teacher aide program is being reorganized and at Stuart Paddock and Plum Grove Schools.

Paddock will become strictly an elementary school in the fall, losing 12 junior high school teachers and gaining 10 elementary level teachers.

Plum Grove will gain 11 junior high school instructors to accommodate that school's transition to a total junior high concept, and will lose six lower level teachers. One sixth grade class will be retained at Plum Grove.

THE 588 teachers total includes specially trained teachers in the following areas: general music, 21; French, 16; library, 17½; instrumental music, 10; diagnostic reading, 14; Title I reading program, 1; physical education, 31; and special education, 42.

The classroom teacher alignment at elementary schools will be: Cardinal Drive, 13; Central Rd., 25; Kimball Hill, 22; Jonas Salk, 24; Willow Bend, 26; Jane Addams, 23; Winston Churchill, 21; Lake Louise, 24; Virginia Lake, 25; Lincoln, 23; Hunting Ridge, 25; Stuart Paddock, 23; Pleasant Hill, 19; Plum Grove, 1; Marion Jordan, 13; Gray M. Sanborn, 8; and Joel Wood, 12.

The greatest change is at Lincoln School where the teaching staff will be increased from 19 to 25.

Last year Lincoln was the site of a pilot teacher aide program, in which there was one teacher and three aides for every two classes.

According to Jung, an evaluation of the experiment indicated the students did as well in the differentiated staffing program as students in other schools did in a traditional setting.

A drawback, Jung added, is that there were not enough certified teachers in the classrooms. Classes could not be left with teacher aides, and required teacher presence cut into program planning time.

JUNG said because the district feels the key to successful teaching is planning, this year Lincoln School will have two teachers and one aide for each classroom, leaving more planning time for teachers.

Junior high school teaching staffs will be: Plum Grove, 36; Carl Sandburg, 31; Winston Park, 29½; and Gray M. Sanborn, 15.

There will be a reduction this fall in teachers aide staffing. The district is budgeting funds to pay for 68 full-time days of teachers aide service, down from 82 last year.

In addition there will be a teacher and aide "bank." The bank is a reserve of 10 teachers and 10 aides which can be drawn against during the school year if extra staffing is needed.

The district also will budget for salaries in anticipation of hiring a psychologist, nurse, three special education teachers and three aides to staff the new special education program for 3 and 4-year-olds with learning disabilities.

Hunting Ridge Students Won't Get Free Rides

Free school bus service will not be available this fall to Hunting Ridge School students from Hunting Ridge subdivision in Palatine who are being transferred to Pleasant Hill School and who live within a 1½ mile radius of their new school.

The Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 School Board voted Wednesday to provide paid bus service within the limits of current policy after convincing the transportation committee to change the original recommendation seeking free rides.

The committee originally suggested that the board grant free transportation to all Hunting Ridge students being transferred to Pleasant Hill regardless of how close they live to the new school.

Board member Bud Gibbs argued in favor of the free transportation because he felt the transfer of students was being done solely to accommodate the board and because he felt there was a danger present to students who walk along Quentin Road to get to school.

JOEL MEYER, who opposed the recommendation, said it would contravene district policy and added there are other areas in the district as potentially dangerous as the Quentin Road area near Fremd High School where children walk to school.

"It is not the district's responsibility to get the children across the street safely," Meyer said.

The committee agreed to change its recommendation and the board passed a standard resolution providing bus service at the usual rate ($15 per student per semester) to students from the Hunting Ridge subdivision in Palatine who are being transferred to Pleasant Hill.

Approximately 55 students are expected to be affected.

Any students who live more than 1½ miles from the school will continue to receive free bus transportation in keeping with district policy.

In related action the board instructed Frank Whiteley, district superintendent, to study the possibility of getting a crossing guard for the intersection of Quentin and Glencoe Road.

EVERYONE LOVES a parade. Arlington Heights will 9:30 a.m. at the main gate of Arlington Park Race Track have its Independence Day Parade Saturday, starting at and follow the route outlined in the map above.

Special Golf Rate For Teens Is $4

A special golf rate for teenagers living in the Palatine Park District is $4 for 18 holes on weekdays, not $14 as printed earlier in the Herald.

Persons aged 12 to 18 years may play either 18 holes for $4 or nine holes for $2.50 if they purchase a daily fee resident pass for $1.

Both rates are fifty cents less than the regular daily fee. The weekend rate for play beginning after 4 p.m. is $3.50.

Garbage Disposal--What It's Costing Suburbs And Why

(America is suffering from an ailment. Its people are vast consumers, and more than they use they throw away. It is a national predicament of which few consumers are aware. Americans have learned that to throw something away makes it disappear forever. Now there are disturbing examples of a fact: nothing really disappears, it just becomes converted into smoke or a putrid dump if not handled properly.)

In this series, two Herald writers examine the state of waste disposal in the Northwest suburbs, beginning with the

by JAMES VESELY
and NANCY COWGER
First of a Series
Homeowners and apartment dwellers in the Northwest suburbs are paying wildly divergent prices and receiving service ranging from indifferent to elegant as the result of a piecemeal approach to the crucial demands of garbage collection.

Although details of scavenger service in the suburbs differ greatly from community to community, the total picture of the scavenger industry shows a largely unregulated and self-protective conglomeration of companies largely dealing as they please. Aside from pockets of strict governmental controls or areas where the municipality itself handles its garbage, suburban residents are often left on their own to comply with requirements set by the scavengers.

A Herald survey of the scavenger business in the Northwest suburbs shows that homeowners may pay as much as twice the amount for garbage collection as those in adjoining towns, and apartment dwellers may pay much greater amounts through their rents as do homeowners for comparable service.

SCAVENGER SERVICE in the suburbs is diverse and reflective of each community's willingness to get involved in the question of waste disposal.

In suburban villages and cities where strong municipal intervention in garbage collection prevails, prices are generally lower. Where no government influence applies, prices can be twice as high, or the prices are low but the scavengers set aside exclusive areas for themselves. Sometimes price differences can vary between adjoining communities serviced by the same company — or even within the same community.

Barrington Trucking Co. collects garbage in Palatine for $2.25 per month under village license. In adjoining Inverness the firm operates also under exclusive village permission, but residents report they pay prices ranging from $4.75 per month to $7.25 per month for various types of service. In the area of residential versus apartment scavenger service, the disparities in prices are more evident.

Comparisons of apartment service prices between suburbs also show dramatic differences, sometimes amounting to six or seven times the price per apartment unit from suburb to suburb.

'At Least 6' New Firemen Needed: Fire District

The hiring of additional firemen will be recommended to the Rolling Meadows City Council prior to the Aug. 19 referendum on the city's annexation of the fire district.

The finances and purchasing committee of the council has voted to recommend that "the city subsidize the cost of hiring a minimum of three additional firemen from the date the referendum is passed until the takeover by the city."

The need for additional firemen has been one of the major areas of disagreement between the council and Rolling Meadows Fire Protection District since the annexation talks started.

Originally, the fire district had asked for nine additional firemen to supplement its present 12-man staff, according to City Mgr. James Watson.

"We feel an absolute minimum of six additional firemen are needed to adequately cover the city," said Fire District Pres. James Service.

WATSON SAID there still were many things to be worked out before the recommendation is presented to the council. Among the problems to be worked out is the exact number of additional firemen to be hired, how to finance their salaries and whether they will be paid on the city's salary schedule or the fire district's.

Watson said the committee's recommendation probably would go to the Special Fire Annexation Committee next.

Prior to the referendum the finance and purchasing committee had recommended the fire district hold written and physical examinations so it can be ready to hire men immediately after the referendum is passed.

Garbage Disposal--What It's Costing Suburbs And Why

(America is suffering from an ailment. Its people are vast consumers, and more than they use they throw away. It is a national predicament of which few consumers are aware. Americans have learned that to throw something away makes it disappear forever. Now there are disturbing examples of a fact: nothing really disappears. It just becomes converted into smoke or a putrid dump if not handled properly.)

In this series, two Herald writers examine the state of waste disposal in the Northwest suburbs, beginning with the

by JAMES VESELY
and NANCY COWGER
First of a Series

Homeowners and apartment dwellers in the Northwest suburbs are paying wildly divergent prices and receiving service ranging from indifferent to elegant as the result of a piecemeal approach to the crucial demands of garbage collection.

Although details of scavenger service in the suburbs differ greatly from community to community, the total picture of the scavenger industry shows a largely unregulated and self-protective conglomeration of companies largely dealing as they please. Aside from pockets of strict governmental controls or areas where the municipality itself handles its garbage, suburban residents are often left on their own to comply with requirements set by the scavengers.

A Herald survey of the scavenger business in the Northwest suburbs shows that homeowners may pay as much as twice the amount for garbage collection as those in adjoining towns, and apartment dwellers may pay much greater amounts through their rents as do homeowners for comparable service.

SCAVENGER SERVICE in the suburbs is diverse and reflective of each community's willingness to get involved in the question of waste disposal.

In suburban villages and cities where strong municipal intervention in garbage collection prevails, prices are generally lower.

Where no government influence applies, prices can be twice as high, or the prices are low but the scavengers set aside exclusive areas for themselves. Sometimes price differences can vary between adjoining communities serviced by the same company — or even within the same community.

Barrington Trucking Co. collects garbage in Palatine for $2.25 per month under village license. In adjoining Inverness the firm operates also under exclusive village permission, but residents report they pay prices ranging from $4.75 per month to $7.25 per month for various types of service. In the area of residential versus apartment scavenger service, the disparities in prices are more evident.

Comparisons of apartment service prices between suburbs also show dramatic differences, sometimes amounting to six or seven times the price per apartment unit from suburb to suburb.

Panel Withholds Approval Of Developments

The Mount Prospect Plan Commission voted this week to withhold approval of any more planned unit developments until a pair of legal opinions were obtained

Schlickman Sees Quick Release Of Creek Funds

Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie will release funds for the McDonald Creek improvement project as soon as the Illinois General Assembly passes the legislation, according to Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights.

The $180,000 appropriations for a new Soo Line R. R. bridge over McDonald Creek in Prospect Heights is included in a bill for creek improvements appropriations throughout the state.

"I have an appointment with Gov. Ogilvie Friday (today) for him to commit the release of funds for McDonald Creek as soon as the Legislature passes the bill," Schlickman said yesterday.

Schlickman said Ogilvie's action was unprecedented. In the past, money for such projects never had been released immediately after the legislation for the money was passed, Schlickman said.

SCHLICKMAN is optimistic the bill will get to the governor for his signature next week. The Senate has approved the bill, but the house approved the bill with two new amendments. The Senate must concur with the House on the amended bill.

Because Ogilvie plans to release the funds for the work immediately, work on the project should start within the next 40-60 days, Schlickman said.

Earlier this week Schlickman and John Guillou, chief engineer for the Illinois Division of Waterways, toured part of Prospects Heights flooded by Monday's heavy rains. Schlickman met with representatives of the governor following his tour.

Prospect Heights residents attribute many of their problems with flooding to the poor McDonald Creek drainage at the Soo Line bridge. The improved bridge will give the creek greater drainage capacity.

The action came Wednesday while the commission was discussing the proposed annexation of the Rob Roy Driving Range and rezoning of the property for a $20-million condominium development. No action was taken on the proposal.

The two points in question are in the planned unit development section of the village's zoning code.

Plan commissioners are asking for a definition of the common ownership and control of land provision and the setback requirements, should a portion of the land be sold later to another owner who wishes to build.

BOTH POINTS, though fairly technical, have a bearing on the Rob Roy case.

Twelve residents of Alton Road were present at the meeting. They are concerned the Kenroy Inc. project may bring increased traffic and flooding to their street.

The plan commission members told Kenroy officials they would take no action on the request until reports are received from the village attorney, village engineer, fire and building departments.

Members of the commission questioned the setback of three buildings from the lot lines, the density of the project, the flooding situation and the intersection that will be created on Euclid Avenue.

There were also questions of the arrangement with the River Trails Park District under which the south half of the property is being sold to the district. The 19 acres will be used as a park site.

Roy Gottlieb of Kenroy said their number of units per acre density would be within the PUD ordinance if the total 38 acres are considered. If only the north 19 acres are counted he said the figure becomes 27 units per acre, whereas the ordinance allows 23 units per acre.

According to Gottlieb, Village Atty. John J. Zimmermann has reviewed the plan and stated it complies with the ordinance in regard to density.

Commission vice chairman Harold Ross, at one point, said, "I have no objection to the concept. It's just too much." A little later he said, "I won't buy that," referring to Kenroy's using the whole 38 acres to determine density.

There is a possibility that a decision may be made at the next plan commission study meeting on July 5.

Weekend Task: Operation Vandalism

(Editor's Note: During the weekend of April 23, more than 40 separate cases of vandalism were reported in the south part of Mount Prospect.)

Police, fearing the outbreak was a harbinger of things to come set up "Operation Vandalism," a police task force designed to curb vandalism on weekends.

Under the plan, extra policemen working overtime patrol weekend nights, concerning themselves only with vandals or potential vandals. Arrests have been frequent, most were curfew violators. Others were charged with more serious offenses.

The task force has been operating for

by TOM VON MALDER

The night begins at 11 p.m. for members of the task force, Mount Prospect Police Sgt. Ralph Doney, a 12-year veteran and the man chosen to head up the special force, sits in the police locker room, which also doubles as the roll call room.

He gives the five other officers instructions on how "Operation Vandalism" operates. Forms are to be filled out on all persons who are stopped, even if they are not charged.

Those on the task force for the first time are told: "Not only are we interested in stopping vandalism, we're also interested in making good pinches. But make sure they are good."

The men are assigned two to a police vehicle, with Doney and his partner, Ronald Kotch, taking Car 129, the unmarked vehicle.

Kotch recently joined the department. He had been a machinist for many years but decided on a change because he had been bored. He feels police work is interesting and challenging.

Before leaving, Doney reads an address to the men. The police learned a party is being held there, and the area will be watched more carefully than usual.

The first stops for the task force are the village's parks. Vandalism has been severe at park property recently, and park ordinances call for an 11 p.m. closing hour.

LIONS PARK IS first for Doney and Kotch. Driving on Maple Street, Doney spots a car without lights in the Lions Park lot. He pulls in, expecting to find a pair of youthful lovers.

Instead, as he jumps out of the car, Doney sees a girl behind the steering wheel and a boy slumped over in the passenger's seat. As Doney orders them to get out, he sees the boy eat something

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

President Nixon said that if Congress fails to approve the new offensive weapons systems he has recommended it would virtually eliminate all chances for a broader nuclear arms limitation agreement with the Russians.

Sen. George McGovern fought in court to keep from losing some of his 271 California convention delegates to candidates he defeated in the state's winner-take-all presidential primary June 6. California campaign chairmen representing four losing contenders filed a lawsuit seeking to split up the delegation and give each Democratic candidate a proportionate slice.

With the Nixon-appointed bloc in solid opposition, the Supreme Court barred

state and local governments from setting up new school zones if the redistricting impedes desegregation. The court also ruled, 6 to 2, that unions may legally make political contributions if they come from voluntary donations.

IT MAY BE AN eyesore now, but the dumping area is slated to be cleaned up soon by area residents. The residents are also busy noting license numbers of cars seen in the area in an effort to discourage further dumping.

Kenilwicke Residents 'Sick Of Trash'

Residents of the Kenilwicke subdivision in Palatine have grown tired of trash being dumped in the undeveloped portions of their subdivision, and have taken steps to do something about it.

Kenilwicke residents have taken down license plate numbers and descriptions of cars observed in the eastern portion of the subdivision, where the dumping has occurred.

Through the aid of the Palatine Police Department, the license numbers have been traced to the cars' owners. When the car's description and plate number have matched and belong to an area resident, a letter has been sent to the owner, according to Russell Bergner, president of the Kenilwicke Homeowners Association.

Charges Restaurant Owners With Battery

James L. Weaver signed complaints for battery against the owners of the Palatine House Restaurant yesterday. The complaints stemmed from an incident at the restaurant Tuesday when Weaver was charged with breach of the peace, a violation of a village ordinance.

No hearing date has been set for the complaints Weaver signed against John Bakopoulos, James Panagakis and Gus Katsiopoulos, who were allegedly involved in the incident at the restaurant, 217 W. Colfax St., Palatine.

Weaver, of 136 S. Ridge Ave. in Arlington Heights, entered the restaurant demanding to see his wife and was thrown out according to police reports. He was ticketed for yelling and shouting.

Hunting Ridge Students Won't Get Free Rides

Free school bus service will not be available this fall to Hunting Ridge School students from Hunting Ridge subdivision in Palatine who are being transferred to Pleasant Hill School and who live within a 1½ mile radius of their new school.

The Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 School Board voted Wednesday to provide paid bus service within the limits of current policy after convincing the transportation committee to change the original recommendation seeking free rides.

The committee originally suggested that the board grant free transportation to all Hunting Ridge students being transferred to Pleasant Hill, regardless of how close they live to the new school.

Board member Bud Gibbs argued in favor of the free transportation because he felt the transfer of students was being done solely to accommodate the board and because he felt there was a danger present to students who walk along Quentin Road to get to school.

JOEL MEYER, who opposed the recommendation, said it would contravene

district policy, and added there are other areas in the district as potentially dangerous as the Quentin Road area near Fremd High School where children walk to school.

"It is not the district's responsibility to get the children across the street safely," Meyer said.

The committee agreed to change its recommendation and the board passed a standard resolution providing bus service at the usual rate ($15 per student per semester) to students from the Hunting Ridge subdivision in Palatine who are being transferred to Pleasant Hill.

Approximately 55 students are expected to be affected.

Any students who live more than 1½ miles from the school will continue to receive free bus transportation, in keeping with district policy.

In related action the board instructed Frank Whiteley, district superintendent, to study the possibility of getting a crossing guard for the intersection of Quentin and Glencoe Road.

Add 14 Teachers To School District

Teaching staff sizes for 19 schools have been finalized by the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 Board of Education.

The district's full-time teaching corps will number 588 in the fall, an increase of 14 from the 1971-72 school year.

The staff increase is necessary to accommodate an expected increase in enrollment, said Paul Jung, director of personnel for the district.

Few major changes in staff sizes at individual schools are included in the plan, with the exception of Lincoln School where a pilot teacher aide program is being reorganized and at Stuart Paddock and Plum Grove Schools.

Paddock will become strictly an elementary school in the fall, losing 12 junior high school teachers and gaining 10 elementary level teachers.

Plum Grove will gain 11 junior high school instructors to accommodate that school's transition to a total junior high concept, and will lose six lower level teachers. One sixth grade class will be retained at Plum Grove.

THE 588 teachers total includes specially teachers in the following areas: general music, 21; French, 16; library, 17½; instrumental music, 10; diagnostic reading, 14; Title I reading program, 1; physical education, 31, and special education, 42.

The classroom teacher alignment at elementary schools will be Cardinal Drive, 13; Central Rd., 25; Kimball Hill, 22; Jonas Salk, 24; Willow Bend, 26; Jane Addams, 23; Winston Churchill, 21; Lake Louise, 24; Virginia Lake, 25; Lincoln, 25; Hunting Ridge, 25; Stuart Paddock, 23; Pleasant Hill, 19; Plum Grove, 1; Marion Jordan, 13; Gray M. Sanborn, 8; and Joel Wood, 12.

The greatest change is at Lincoln School where the teaching staff will be increased from 19 to 25.

Last year Lincoln was the site of a pilot teacher aide program, in which there was one teacher and three aides for every two classes.

According to Jung, an evaluation of the experiment indicated the students did as well in the differentiated staffing program as students in other schools did in a traditional setting.

A drawback, Jung added, is that there were not enough certified teachers in the classrooms. Classes could not be left with teacher aides, and required teacher presence cut into program planning time.

JUNG said because the district feels the key to successful teaching is planning, this year Lincoln School will have two teachers and one aide for each classroom, leaving more planning time for teachers.

Junior high school teaching staffs will be: Plum Grove, 36; Carl Sandburg, 31; Winston Park, 29½, and Gray M. Sanborn, 15.

There will be a reduction this fall in teachers aide staffing. The district is budgeting funds to pay for 68 full-time days of teachers aide service, down from 82 last year.

In addition there will be a teacher and aide "bank." The bank is a reserve of 10 teachers and 10 aides which can be drawn against during the school year if extra staffing is needed.

The district also will budget for salaries in anticipation of hiring a psychometrist, nurse, three special education teachers and three aides to staff the new special education program for 3 and 4-year-olds with learning disabilities.

LVW To Study Who Would Rule Township

The Palatine League of Women Voters (LVW) decided yesterday to determine what would become of functions currently performed by the Palatine Township government if the township is dissolved.

The league's board of directors postponed making a decision on whether to seek a referendum to do away with the township government until the board's next meeting July 6.

Jackie Prince, president of the LVW, said the league is particularly concerned that the township's road maintenance and general welfare responsibilities could be assumed by another level of government if the township is dissolved.

She said she believed the Illinois constitution's home rule provisions would allow Cook County to take over those duties without enabling legislation from the General Assembly.

THE LEAGUE decided to study whether that could be done and whether the county would be willing to do it.

Mrs. Prince said the league also intend to determine whether The Bridge, a youth services bureau operated by the township, could hold a referendum establishing itself as a taxing district "if it wishes to do so."

LVW members last week reached a consensus that they favor dissolution of the township because they felt the township government's functions could be provided more efficiently and economically by the county.

If the league decides to seek a referendum, permission would have to be obtained from the township's board of auditors to put the question on the Nov. 7 general election ballot.

If the board refuses, petitions could be circulated, the league indicated. Petitions would have to be turned in by Aug. 7 for the referendum to be held in November.

from a plastic bag.

The boy, 16, and the girl, 17, are informed they are under arrest for violation of the park curfew ordinance and for possible possession of marijuana. The car is searched thoroughly, the boy handcuffed and the police van sent for.

Back in the station, a lab test proves the substance in the bag was marijuana, of a fine quality. But there is not enough to make an arrest for possession. The two are booked for the violation of the park ordinance and the boy's mother is sent for.

After 30 minutes at the station, Car 129 is back on the streets. Again they go by Lions Park, and this time spot a car in the South Community Baptist Church lot. The pair in the car are doing nothing wrong, and since they're both 18, are let go. (The village's curfew law applies only to persons under 18.)

DONEY GETS A call to go back to the station. Another car has picked up four youths on Council Trail. Their truck was parked the wrong way and when police investigated, they found a bottle of wine in it.

Another half hour of questioning at the station and three of the youths are sent home. The fourth is charged with illegal parking and having open liquor in his vehicle.

The two patrolmen return on patrol. The night is quiet. They go by Meadows Park, the telephone company, Hatlen Avenue, Sunset Road and then to Huntington Commons. Here a young couple have stopped to admire the retention basin and are told to move on. Both were in their twenties.

A quick check is given to the Circus Internationale grounds and a possible abandoned car is checked out. When an accident is reported on Euclid Avenue, Doney drives to the scene. No one is injured. The accident is handled by Cook County Sheriff's Police.

After checking the Randhurst lot and the Holiday Inn, Kotch notices one speeder and then another. Doney gives chase.

THE SECOND CAR turns out to be a police car and Doney continues their patrol. In the Chicago and North Western Rwy. lot, they spot a youth who had been hanging around for some time. When told by the youth he was waiting for friends, the police advised him to wait in a nearby donut shop.

A short time later, his two friends apparently turn up — staggering along Main Street. They are stopped and they begin swearing at Doney and Kotch. Brought into the station, they are booked for curfew violation and disorderly conduct.

At this point, it was 2:30 a.m. and Doney called it a night. He had reports to fill out.

About a half hour later, another squad stopped three youths in a car for curfew violation and charged one with possession of marijuana. He had thrown a plastic bag with the drug out the car window while police were following the car, police said.

In all, there was only one case of vandalism reported that weekend. Paint had been thrown against the garage of S. D. Holbrook, 1201 Glenn Lane.

Suit Awaits U.S. Ruling

A class action suit challenging alleged underassessments at Cook County racetracks is pending a ruling on a similar but broader suit filed in U.S. Federal Court.

Ten Chicago area school districts affected by alleged racetrack underassessments have joined the Joint Service Program, a subgroup of the Illinois Association of School Boards (IASB), to file a class action suit against Cook County Assessor P. J. Gallertson.

Ron Booth, director of IASB, said the Joint Service Program was ready to file the suit but was awaiting the outcome of a similar suit filed in Federal Court on behalf of Donald Page Moore, an unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic nomination for Cook County state's attorney.

The Moore suit also alleges misassessments of properties but does not stop at the racetracks. The Moore suit asks the court to appoint an assessor to correct misassessments throughout Cook County.

Thomas Meites, one of Moore's attorneys, said a hearing in the case is scheduled for the first week in September.

"WHEN THE hearing takes place we will file our own suit or intervene on behalf of the districts," said Booth. "If the suit (Moore's) is successful and an immediate reassessment of property is called for, we will have avoided the cost of a separate suit and be able to return fees to the districts involved."

ferred when the bill comes to the floor for a third reading. But supporters of the bill in the House said the amendment is not likely to be accepted.

As currently proposed, the bill is designed to remove liability from specially trained paramedic administering emergency treatment to the injured and the ill. Doctors also would be covered for liability except for damages resulting from "willful and wanton" acts.

The amendment, expected to be offered by Rep. Arthur L. Berman, D-Chicago, would provide that doctors be held responsible for damages resulting from ordinary acts of negligence.

Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, who is handling the bill in the House, said he is "cautiously optimistic" that the Berman amendment would not be adopted.

Schlickman said he based his optimism on conversations with House leaders.

He said if the amendment were added to the bill, it would virtually kill the legislation.

"There's no doctor that would put his career on the line for something like that," Schlickman said.

He said the amendment is supported by a trial lawyers association.

The bill in its present form was adopted recently by the Illinois Senate under this sponsorship of Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington. It is not certain when it will come up for a vote in the House.

The bill has the support of Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie.

Expected to participate are Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Hoffman Estates, Inverness, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Rolling Meadows and Schaumburg, and possibly Wheeling.

CHANGING FACES

It seems that every meeting of the Arlington Heights Park District Board of Commissioners is spiced with a new face, since four of the five commissioners have resigned and been replaced during the past six months. The musical chairs became too much this week for Thomas Thornton, director of parks and recreation, as he looked straight at the newest commissioner Kay Muller and drew a blank. "I'm sorry, but I can't remember your name," he blushed. "Faces change so quickly around here..."

ROOFTOP ROOPER. A number of people spoke out for and against motorcycle races at Arlington Park Race Track during Monday night's village board meeting. One woman, who said she opposed the race, nevertheless was driven to watch last year's night-time event, and from a slightly unusual position. "I had a bird's eye view," the Wilke Road resident told the board, "because I climbed up to the roof with my binoculars."

SUPREME SACRIFICE. Monday night's heavy rain was on everybody's mind, even during the motorcycle hearing. One cycle enthusiast used the inclement weather to dramatize just how badly he wanted to see the race run again at Arlington Park. "I'll put up with two feet of water and a flooded basement," he told the village fathers, "as long as I can see a motorcycle race."

CHARTREUSE POOLS? When questioned why Arlington Heights Park District swimming pools now have white bottoms instead of the traditional blue, Angelo Capulli, superintendent of parks, explained it was a suggestion of a recreation supervisor. "I'm not a swimmer — I'll paint the pools any color anyone wants them," he said.

INVISIBLE INK. An Arlington Heights policeman was at the scene of the crime this week as he caught a couple of kids attempting to steal license plates from a car. After planting the incident firmly in his mind, the officer reached for his pocket, first the shirt, then the trousers. His pen was missing. But a minor detail like that doesn't stop a resourceful policeman. He walked quickly to his vehicle, and radioed for help. In just a few minutes a fellow officer rendered some emergency aid — a pen.

The group is made up of 16 teenagers. Each sings, dances and plays at least one musical instrument. The group is directed by James S. Edwards.

ECC Eyes Parking Lot Lighting

Arlington Heights Police Capt. Maury English discussed the lighting of village parking lots with members of the Environmental Control Commission (ECC) Wednesday, emphasizing the need for as much lighting as possible.

"We can't ask everyone to make their home or business a prison with heavy locks, alarms and glaring lights, but it is a fact that lighting helps prevent crime," English said.

The commissioner's conservation subcommittee is looking into ordinances that pertain to the lighting of parking areas in the village, and a preliminary report called for light controls on the type of luminaries to be used for lighting, as well as lighting pole height restrictions.

The subcommittee, chaired by Mary Schlott, also suggested adding a phrase to the existing ordinance that "all lighting shall be extinguished between the hours of 10 p.m. and 7 a.m., except where overnight multi-family residential parking is provided."

"THE INTENT HERE is to distinguish between lots where cars are regularly parked overnight and lighting is needed for security reasons, and lots which are not in use overnight," Mrs. Schlott said.

By restricting the lighting of parking areas, English asked, "is this going to help the community or help a few?"

"I think what we are aiming at is to keep direct lighting on one's own property and put a foot-candle limit to the amount of glare that can cross the property line," said Edward C. Kokkelenberg, chairman of the ECC, as he referred the matter back to the subcommittee for further study.

Kokkelenberg also set July 19 as the due date for a draft report of the incinerator subcommittee's study on the solid waste disposal problem of the village.

"WE SHOULD BE able to pass that study on to the village board by mid-August," Kokkelenberg said. The study, which was started last fall, has been held up pending a study on the current village landfill in North Arlington Heights by Harza Engineering Company. A draft report on that study was presented to the ECC a few weeks ago.

In other action, the ECC approved the week of April 1 to 7, 1973 as Earth Week. The commission also agreed to plan and execute the educational program for the next Earth Week.

Recommendation For Rezoning Slated Aug. 2

The Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals has set Aug. 2 to present their recommendation of approval or denial of a petition by Frank A. Stape Builders of Palatine for rezoning 22 acres of land in Prospect Heights.

The recommendation which will be made in public session at the Chicago Civic Center will then be submitted to the Cook County Board for a final decision.

Stape's petition, originally made to the board at a June 2 hearing in Wheeling requested the property just south of Wil-low Road be rezoned from the R-3 single family residence to the R-5 multiple-family residence category.

At that time, the board extended a customary 21-day period for objections to the petition to be received.

Since then, formal objections by residents and organizations have been pouring into the zoning board's office, according to Paul Marcy, board secretary.

AMONG THE objectors have been the Prospect Heights Improvement Association (PHIA), School Districts 23 and 214. In addition, around 300 complaints from individual homeowners, some as far away from the site as Arlington Heights have been filed.

Jack Gilligan, PHIA president is certain the request will be denied. "To operate the type of water source Stape proposes to use for his buildings, the maintenance would have to be turned over to the Old Town Sanitary District."

"A referendum would be required for the takeover and it doesn't look as though the people would vote for it because many of the people living in the district objected to the rezoning in the first place," he said.

Windsor Drive Closing To Receive A Hearing

The proposed closing of Windsor Drive at Rand Road will be the subject of a public hearing before the Arlington Heights Village Board, possibly within the next two weeks.

Construction of a cul de sac on Windsor Drive has been under consideration since 1968 when the state made a traffic study of the three-way intersection of Rand Road, Thomas Street and Windsor Drive.

That study resulted in signalization of the intersection and the current designation of Windsor Drive as a one-way street northbound off of Rand Road.

When the GEMCO, now MEMCO, discount store was approved by the village board in May, 1971, the state, village and store developer agreed on a plan to construct left turn bays on Rand Road northwest and southeast of Thomas Street.

As part of that plan, however, the state highway department asked that Windsor Drive be closed at Rand Road.

Windsor Drive north of Rand Road is heavily traveled by residents of the Arlington Terrace, Ivy Hill, Camelot Park and Northgate subdivisions.

WHEN A RESOLUTION to construct the left turn bays came before the village board Monday night, the trustees voted to defer approval of the plan and to schedule a public hearing on the implications and possible alternatives to closing the street.

Although no date for the hearing has been set, Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson and the trustees agreed that it should be held as soon as possible.

Hanson said the state highway department has earmarked $160,000 for the project. MEMCO would contribute $75,000 and Arlington Heights has been asked to put up $2,000 from its Motor Fuel Tax funds, Hanson said.

Trustee Alice Harms expressed concern that an alternate route be clearly designated before Windsor Drive is cut off.

That route might include Clarence and Jane avenues, two streets now used by many motorists who drive south on Windsor Drive until it becomes one-way north at Jane Avenue where they cut over to Clarence Avenue and continue south to Rand Road.

Henry Yamanaka, a design engineer for the state highway department, said the state is asking for the cul de sac because Windsor Drive "poses an operational hazard at the intersection."

AT THE TIME of its 1968 study, the state considered a plan that would have joined Thomas Street and Windsor Drive north of Rand road and eliminated the Thomas-Rand intersection.

A third alternative considered at one time was allowing two-way traffic on Windsor Drive but permitting right turns only off of Windsor onto Rand road.

Eventually, however, the decision was made to signalize the intersection and to restrict traffic one-way north on Windsor Drive.

Yamanaka said a six-way traffic light at the intersection was not an adequate solution to the traffic problems.

"We've got them but they've been inefficient because of the green (light) time required even when one of the streets is lightly traveled," he said, citing as an example the signals at the intersection of Northwest Highway, Euclid Avenue and Salem Avenue.

Hanson said he hoped to have a representative from the state highway department present at the hearing to answer questions.

Charges Restaurant Owners With Battery

James L. Weaver signed complaints for battery against the owners of the Palatine House Restaurant yesterday. The complaints stemmed from an incident at the restaurant Tuesday when Weaver was charged with breach of the peace, a violation of a village ordinance.

No hearing date has been set for the complaints Weaver signed against John Bakopoulos, James Panagakis and Gus Kotsios, who were allegedly involved in the incident at the restaurant, 217 W. Cofax St., Palatine.

Weaver, of 196 S. Ridge Ave. in Arlington Heights, entered the restaurant demanding to see his wife and was thrown out according to police reports. He was ticketed for yelling and shouting.

development plans are to be revealed to Rolling Meadows officials at the end of the Arlington racing season, Rivera added. The current Arlington Park racing meeting ends Aug. 28.

That land presently is zoned for single family use. Rolling Meadows building and zoning officer Sverre Haug said he has received no information about plans for the property.

Rivera said CTE "is in no hurry" to develop the property. He added that one of the consulting firms has been at work on the project for about a year while the other company was hired "to get a second viewpoint."

Garbage Disposal--What It's Costing Suburbs And Why

(America is suffering from an ailment. Its people are vast consumers, and more than they use they throw away. It is a national predicament of which few consumers are aware. Americans have learned that to throw something away makes it disappear forever. Now there are disturbing examples of a fact: nothing really disappears, it just becomes converted into smoke or a putrid dump if not handled properly.)

In this series, two liberal writers examine the state of waste disposal in the Northwest suburbs, beginning with the

by JAMES VESELY
and NANCY COWGER
First of a Series

Homeowners and apartment dwellers in the Northwest suburbs are paying widely divergent prices and receiving service ranging from indifferent to elegant as the result of a piecemeal approach to the crucial demands of garbage collection.

Although details of scavenger service in the suburbs differ greatly from community to community, the total picture of the scavenger industry shows a largely unregulated and self-protective conglomeration of companies largely dealing as they please. Aside from pockets of strict governmental controls or areas where the municipality itself handles its garbage, suburban residents are often left on their own to comply with requirements set by the scavengers.

A Herald survey of the scavenger business in the Northwest suburbs shows that homeowners may pay as much as twice the amount for garbage collection as those in adjoining towns, and apartment dwellers may pay much greater amounts through their rents as do homeowners for comparable service.

SCAVENGER SERVICE in the suburbs is diverse and reflective of each community's willingness to get involved in the question of waste disposal.

In suburban villages and cities where strong municipal intervention in garbage collection prevails, prices are generally lower.

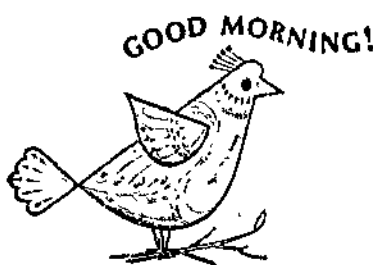

Where no government influence applies, prices can be twice as high, or the prices are low but the scavengers set aside exclusive areas for themselves. Sometimes price differences can vary between adjoining communities serviced by the same company — or even within the same community.

Barrington Trucking Co. collects garbage in Palatine for $2.25 per month under village license. In adjoining Inverness the firm operates also under exclusive village permission, but residents report they pay prices ranging from $4.75 per month to $7.25 per month for various types of service. In the area of residential versus apartment scavenger service, the disparities in prices are more evident.

Comparisons of apartment service prices between suburbs also show dramatic differences, sometimes amounting to six or seven times the price per apartment unit from suburb to suburb.

Tours Northwest Suburban Center

Mrs. Ogilvie Visits City, 'Hopes' For Day Care Funds

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Mrs. Richard B. Ogilvie yesterday said she is hopeful the Northwest Suburban Day Care Center in Des Plaines will receive a state grant to expand its services this year.

Her remarks came as the wife of the Illinois governor attended a fund-raising luncheon at the day care center as part of a day-long visit to the area.

Joan DeLeonardi, chairman of the Northwest Day Care Committee, said the center has been awarded a state grant that is expected if Gov. Ogilvie's proposed state budget passes without severe cuts by the General Assembly.

The center, located in the First Presbyterian Church, Howard and Maple streets, plans to hire two additional teachers and expand enrollment at the center if the state grant is approved, Mrs. DeLeonardi said.

"I think it is important that children be active," said Mrs. Ogilvie. "Children need attention and day care centers provide activity for children whose parents work during the day." She added that children from day care centers often make a better adjustment to school than

THE LUNCHEON WAS the beginning of a fund-raising campaign for a "mini-bus" at the local day care center. The center hopes to purchase the bus with trading stamps so children who have no means of transportation will be able to attend classes at the center. Mrs. DeLeonardi said the center hopes to collect 19,000 books of stamps.

Mrs. Ogilvie toured the center before the luncheon and discussed the program with Dianne Lawrence, head teacher at the center. The Rev. Bernard Johanson, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, said the program has been very successful. He said he would like to communicate with Spanish-speaking people in the community so the day care center can benefit them.

Mrs. DeLeonardi said it costs about $25 per week to care for each child. Parents pay the center a fee of from $4 to $17 based on family size. Present enrollment at the center is 22 but if the state grant is awarded, enrollment could be increased to about 40, said Mrs. DeLeonardi. She said the center applied for a $37,000 grant, but he award letter did not specify the amount.

Earlier Mrs. Ogilvie attended the Place for People volleyball marathon at Immanuel Lutheran Church, Des Plaines yesterday morning. She commended players for their hard work in raising funds for the youth center and participated in the game by serving the ball.

ALSO YESTERDAY morning, the Des Plaines Historical Society held a reception for the governor's wife, which included a tour of the society museum, 777 Lee St. Mrs. Ogilvie said she was impressed by the society's collection of clothing from the early 1900's and was also interested in the display on spinning and weaving cloth.

Mrs. Ogilvie said she has been busy restoring the governor's mansion in Springfield. The back wing of the mansion has been enlarged, she said, and the kitchen and family dining room was moved to the ground floor. The mansion was in "bad condition," because some of the structural beams had been severed during a remodeling project some years earlier.

The state's first lady also visited a meeting of the Niles Golden Agers at the Niles Park District yesterday. She said she has a special interest in senior citizen programs because her father-in-law is a member of a senior citizen club in Winnetka. "There's a big change from the life of a businessman to one of retirement," she said.

Mrs. Ogilvie also toured Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge and talked with women volunteers from the hospital's service league. She concluded her visit with a tour of Mary Seat of Wisdom Catholic Church, Park Ridge, which conducts a program for retarded children.

THE GOVERNOR'S WIFE said she has been making public appearances on her own for only a year and a half but plans to help in her husband's campaign this year. She says she isn't looking forward to leaving politics behind when her husband retires. "I would miss being active and busy," she said.

Mrs. Ogilvie is also an amateur photographer and has been taking photos of the mansion during its restoration. She plans to make slides and use them in lectures to civic groups and clubs.

MRS. RICHARD OGILVIE was a guest at a fund-raising luncheon at the Northwest Suburban Day Care Center in Des Plaines yesterday. Mrs. Ogilvie also toured the Des Plaines

Historical Society Museum and the Place for People volleyball marathon at Immanuel Lutheran Church during her visit in the area.

Hunt For Teen Lost In Lake Is Called Off

Authorities have given up the search for a missing 16-year-old boy who reportedly drowned in Beck Lake northeast of Des Plaines Monday afternoon.

The search for William Schultz of Chicago, whose home town was previously given by sheriff's police as Glenview, ended late Wednesday night. The entire lake was searched by teams of divers from suburban fire and police departments during the daylight hours Monday afternoon, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Des Plaines fireman Ken Baumann who participated in the rescue operations, told the Herald there was nothing more the divers could do at this time.

"We must have searched 99 per cent of that lake and if the body was in the other one per cent it could have been seen from shore," Baumann said.

The search operations are now in the hands of Cook County officials, who will decide when the search will continue, according to Baumann.

HE SAID SEARCH efforts might continue in a few days after the water in Beck Lake became less murky, increasing the visibility for divers. Some of the divers told the Herald Tuesday the visibility under water was only six inches to two feet.

Schultz disappeared Monday afternoon after he and a companion swam to an island in the middle of the lake about 100 yards from shore. The companion told police he had to leave and that young Schultz told him he was too tired to make the return swim.

The companion, whose name was not released, told police Schultz was still on the island when he left. No one has seen the missing youth since.

A 12 man tactical unit from the Cook County Sheriff's police along with a group of 10 volunteers from the Glenview Naval Air Station combed the woods in the forest preserve Wednesday night since no one had seen the Schultz boy actually go under water.

Fire Headquarters To Be Dedicated

The Des Plaines Fire Department will formally dedicate its new headquarters at 405 S. River Rd. at 2 p.m. Sunday.

The new building has been occupied since January but some of the equipment and landscaping wasn't completed until this spring.

Rummage Sale Slated To Benefit Incentives

Incentives, a psychological treatment center at 2121 Dempster St., Des Plaines, will hold a fund-raising rummage sale Saturday, according to Joan Fabish, business manager.

"We need more donations," Miss Fabish said. "We're sending out a call to enlist the help of homemakers or students on a voluntary basis. Bring in those worthwhile items you don't use."

Officials at Incentives, which is celebrating its fifth anniversary this summer, hope to raise funds to buy new equipment. The center's board of directors and service league plan a tea for July 9, an open house and a dinner dance Aug. 26 at the Sheraton O'Hare Hotel.

Bunnies To Be Here For Softball Game

A softball game between a team of Playboy bunnies and Chicago area sports celebrities will be the featured event Sunday at the first annual Maryville Chuck Wagon Day.

The fund-raising event, to be held from noon to 8 p.m. on the Maryville Academy grounds, 1150 N. River Rd., Des Plaines, will cost each guest a $25 donation towards operating costs of the Academy.

The fund-raiser will also highlight the sounds of a southern Dixieland jam session with three Dixieland jazz combos.

Tickets for the event may be secured by contacting Maryville at 824-6126 for reservations.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

President Nixon said that if Congress fails to approve the new offensive weapons systems he has recommended it would virtually eliminate all chances for a broader nuclear arms limitation agreement with the Russians.

Sen. George McGovern fought in court to keep from losing some of his 271 California convention delegates to candidates he defeated in the state's winner-take-all presidential primary June 6. California campaign chairmen representing four losing contenders filed a lawsuit seeking to split up the delegation and give each Democratic candidate a proportionate slice.

With the Nixon-appointed bloc in solid opposition, the Supreme Court barred state and local governments from setting up new school zones if the redistricting impedes desegregation. The court also ruled, 6 to 2, that unions may legally make political contributions if they come from voluntary donations.

The World

The militant Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army said it will suspend offensive operations in Northern Ireland as of midnight Monday if the British Army declared a cease fire in return. The British government accepted the offer.

U.S. Diplomatic sources in Hong Kong said they are convinced that both the Soviet Union and China want to see serious negotiations to reach a Vietnam settlement, but that the rivalry between Moscow and Peking restricts the amount of pressure either can bring on North Vietnamese leaders.

The State

The Illinois Senate broke a partisan deadlock and approved two compromise plans to provide personal property tax relief for taxpayers.

Gov. Ogilvie's capital development bonding program ran into trouble in the Senate, where it was amended to give the voters the final word in a November referendum. The effect of the change would be to postpone the inauguration of the new financing plan until after the election.

Angelo Geocaris, Illinois campaign manager for Sen. Edmund Muskie's drive for the Democratic nomination, said that from 15 to 45 of the 58 Illinois delegates pledged to Muskie may switch to Sen. George McGovern if they were freed to do so.

The War

Sharon's Motto: 'I Want To Help'

by DOROTHY OLIVER

How does one go about earning the title "Employee of the Year" from Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines?

"Earlier this year, lasting several weeks, Sharon Budzichowski was working seven days a week due to the therapy required for two severely burned patients. Her attitude during this entire period was — what more can I do?"

"Sharon has a confidence in herself that allows her to exceed in the performance of her job.

"Noticing those anxieties in patients scheduled for surgery who she has come to know well, Sharon has taken it upon herself to request permission to accompany them to surgery and be in the recovery room afterwards.

"... shows an even temperament even with the most difficult patient... an abundance of energy... a brighter-side philosophy... initiative..."

THE DESCRIPTIONS are attributed to Sharon, of Arlington Heights, one of two physical therapist assistants at Holy Family. Miss Budzichowski, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Budzichowski, was elected employee of the year by hospital employees earlier this year after her name and qualifications were submitted by co-workers.

"I was very surprised and very honored when I won," Sharon said as she sat in the physical therapy office answering phone calls and checking her Mickey Mouse watch between questions. "I really don't know why I won — but everyone has been so great to me here."

Others seem to know why Sharon, in her 3½ years with Holy Family, has become such an asset to the hospital. In a resume of why she was selected to compete with three others for the honor, Sharon was cited again and again for her loyalty, initiative and performance of duties above and beyond the call.

Sharon feels whatever she has achieved today she owes to Rosemarie Gloeckner, a registered physical therapist and head of the physical therapy department at Holy Family.

"I had no background in this type of work but it's something I wanted to do for a long time. Rosemarie Gloeckner taught me everything I know. I was lucky to get this job and she's helped me in so many ways. If it weren't for her to begin with I wouldn't have had a chance at employee of the year. I feel what I am I totally owe to her."

UNDER ROSEMARIE'S guidance Sharon has grown in her job. In the course of the day Sharon teaches patients to walk with crutches, and carries out whatever assignment she is given by her superiors. She assists and conducts departmental in-service training programs for all new nursing personnel, student nurses, volunteers and employees unfamiliar with the functions of physical therapy.

Sharon admits to being tired at the end of her day but in the morning, "I want to come and do what I can to help people."

Parts of her job are hard to carry out. "Some things are very difficult like knowing you have to induce pain to make someone better. I just try to close my mind to what's happening to them and encourage them to think of the benefits it will bring," she said.

Her future includes continuing her profession at Holy Family and carrying on her philosophy of working with the physically ill.

"I just try and bring comfort and help to the patients," she said. "I try and give them the feeling that what they're facing is not the end of everything."

How To Apply For Homestead Tax Exemption

An estimated 80,000 taxpayers over age 65 in Cook County may now apply for tax relief under the Homestead Exemption Act through the office of Cook County Assessor P. J. Cullerton.

By law, persons 65 or more on Jan. 1, 1972 will be allowed an exemption or deduction of $1,500 in equalized value.

Tax experts have estimated the exemption will mean a savings of $100 to $125 for most qualified taxpayers.

The exemption, however, takes effect on tax bills received in the spring of 1973 for 1972 taxes.

To qualify for the exemption, a taxpayer must be more than 65 years old as of Jan. 1, 1972, must be the owner of record of the property and must occupy, as a principal residence, the property for which the exemption is sought.

THE "HOMESTEAD Exemption Application" form is available at the assessor's office in the county building, 118 N. Clark St., Chicago, or from many banks, savings and loan associations, and township assessors throughout the county.

Proof of age and proof of ownership must be submitted with the application for the exemption.

Medicare cards, birth certificates or other documents will be accepted as proof of age. To prove ownership, the applicant must submit copies of a deed, owners title policy or other documents.

The application must be submitted, either in person or by mail, to the county assessor's office no later than Sept. 1, 1972.

Rev. Petersen Not Seeking Special Housing Panel Post

The local leader of a group favoring low and moderate-income housing said yesterday he will not ask the Des Plaines City Council to appoint him to the new special housing commission.

Even though the council is considering appointment of Joseph Botte, president of the Des Plaines Citizens Opposed to Low and Moderate-Income Housing, the Rev. John Petersen, of 326 Howard St., told the Herald he will not seek a spot on the commission because his work schedule would not allow him enough time to serve. He heads the housing and racial justice division of the Lutheran Welfare Service of Illinois.

Rev. Petersen, who serves as Des Plaines spokesman for the Concerned Metropolitan Citizens Committee (CMCC) also said he does not think the council will appoint Botte. "I have more faith in the council than that," he said.

BOTTE'S NAME was added Monday to a list of 13 residents being considered for appointment. The new commission, created last February to examine city members, including an attorney, a licensed contractor, an expert in mortgage financing, and four other residents.

Rev. Petersen said he had urged Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel not to appoint anyone to the commission who had been closely identified with a public controversy over low and moderate income housing proposals.

He had asked Mayor Behrel to appoint people who could listen to both sides of the housing issue "with an open mind," he said.

"I don't think the council would decide to appoint Botte, because of his behavior in the past," Rev. Petersen said.

Botte, a one year resident of Des Plaines, organized the Des Plaines Citizens last fall, to gather together opponents of CMCC proposals for rezoning and new city policies to encourage construction of housing, which low and middle-income families could afford.

Botte said his new group now has 300 active members. A petition with 2,500 signatures was presented last fall, to city council indicating opposition to the proposals.

Petersen was a leader of a prayer march to city hall last summer, held to dramatize the need for "racial justice," he said at the time.

Rep. Mikva Seeks Approval Of New Federal Ethics Bill

U. S. Rep. Abner Mikva, D-2nd, yesterday asked Congress to pass a new ethics bill, which he hopes will "restore the public's confidence in government."

The bill, which was also introduced in the Senate yesterday by Sen. Charles Mathias, R-Maryland, would require full public disclosure of income and business dealings by congressmen and senators, their families and staff.

Instead of the present "honor" system in which congressmen trust each other to list financial holdings honestly, the bill, if passed, would authorize an independent federal agency to check lists of income and assets. The bill calls for fines and penalties of up to $2,000 and five years imprisonment for filing false statements, Mikva said.

MIKVA, WHO IS opposing Samuel Young of Glenview in the North Suburban 10th District congressional race, said he is "asking for a double standard, a higher standard for members of Congress, because so much is at stake. If people can't trust the men and women they elect, we'll never be able to solve this country's problems."

Many voters "believe that public officials are not always concerned with protecting the public interests. And in some cases they are right," he said. The few cases of dishonesty "destroy the people's trust in Congress and this legislation is necessary to regain that trust," Mikva said.

At present, representatives are required by House rules to make public a list of those businesses and stocks they own which are worth more than $5,000 each. They must list debts over $10,000, capital gains of more than $5,000, and the number of speaking engagements and appearances for which they are paid more than $300.

This public list does not have to indicate how much stock is owned, only which stock, so the public wouldn't know whether a Congressman owns $1 million in General Motors stock, or just own $5,001, Mikva said.

The congressmen are also required to file a secret list, showing exactly how much they own in stocks, other holdings and fees. This list can only be examined by a House committee, which has never acted to make public conflicts of interest or false financial statements, Mikva said.

SENATORS ARE only required by Senate rules to list the fees they have received for speaking engagements.

Under Mikva's bill, congressmen, senators, their families and aides would be required to list every source of income — including gifts — worth more than $100.

Assets and liabilities of more than $5,000 would be listed, including stocks and bonds, real estate, business interests and business dealings.

These statements would be open to the public, and would be reviewed by the "independent watchdog agency," the General Accounting Office, Mikva said.

Local Man Charged By Village Police

Randy Bennett of 9029 W. Oak St., Des Plaines faces an Aug. 9 court date in Schaumburg to answer charges of deceptive practices and possession of stolen property placed against him by Schaumburg police on Monday.

Detective Walter King and Patrolman Michael Bromund arrested Bennett on complaints from Penney's Department Store in the Woodfield Shopping Center in Schaumburg.

Bennett reportedly ran out of Penney's when clerks were checking a credit card he attempted to use. Police said the car was reported stolen from an Elk Grove resident.

Finch To Represent Nixon At Rally

by JEAN CAFARELLA

The White House announced today President Richard Nixon will definitely not be coming on Monday to the National Association of Student Councils (NASC) annual convention. Replacing the President will be Robert H. Finch, a presidential advisor.

Warren Hendriks, a member of Finch's staff said Finch "definitely is" going to address the 750 student council representatives meeting at Forest View High School, Arlington Heights, and President Nixon "definitely is not coming."

Hendriks said when Finch arrives, he will probably hold a press conference before his 11 a.m. talk at the NASC convention.

After he addresses the convention, he will go to downtown Chicago to be filmed for the Kennedy and Company show, and leave Chicago the same day.

Nixon was invited to address the student council members, however the White House staff would not confirm his appearance until 48 hours before his expected arrival. Yesterday conference officials speculated there was a 50-50 chance Nixon would keep the engagement. However, Finch's staff ended the rumors with the announcement that the presidential advisor will attend the conference.

BEFORE BECOMING a presidential advisor, Finch was in charge of the Department of Health Education, and Welfare in 1969. He was lieutenant governor of California from 1967 to 1969, and from 1958 to 1960 was an administrative assistant to Vice President Nixon. In 1960, Finch acted as Nixon's presidential campaign director.

Arlington Heights Police Capt. Maury English said he has no information on Finch's arrival. Last year when Nixon visited Prospect High School, the police were informed so they could begin making arrangements a week ahead of time. Hendriks said security measures would not be anywhere near what the president receives which is why the police haven't been given notice.

English said it's possible Finch will arrive at the convention via helicopter. Hendriks, however, said Finch will probably take a car to the school.

Conference Chmn. Burton Showers, director of student activities at Forest View High School, said this is the first time any top level national leaders are expected at an NASC convention.

The 750 student council members and their adult advisors are arriving from all over the country this Sunday for their 36th annual meeting, which will run Monday through Thursday at Forest View High School. The students will stay in local homes, and the adult advisors will room at Arlington Towers Hotel. The students represent some 30,000 student councils across the nation.

THE THEME of the convention is Youth in Action. Finch's talk will deal with youth's role in the federal government. Youth and their community will be the topic of Tuesday's discussions, and the delegates will go to McCormick Place where they will be addressed by Mayor Richard Daley.

County Zoning Board OKs Hearings For Trailer Park

The Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals granted a public hearing Wednesday on the proposed expansion of the Oasis Mobile Home Park on Elmhurst Road in unincorporated Elk Grove Township.

Paul Marcy, secretary of the board, said the board and the state's attorney's office decided that the petition was a "borderline case," and a public hearing was needed to get all sides of the story. The zoning board of appeals had been uncertain whether it had the jurisdiction to hear the case.

He said it would be at least September before a hearing could be set in the Elk Grove Village Hall because no hearings were being scheduled for July, and the docket was full for August.

Oscar Brotman, owner of the trailer park and the neighboring Oasis Drive-In Theater, is seeking to expand the trailer park to property now occupied by the drive-in theater, which would go out of business at the end of the summer. The land must be rezoned for the expansion.

He said the 20 acres occupied by the theater would provide space for about 170 trailers in addition to the 370 trailers now in the court.

BROTMAN HAD requested a rezoning hearing before the zoning board of appeals earlier this month. At that time he said a delay in holding the requested hearing until fall would seriously hurt his development plans.

He threatened two weeks ago to take his case to court if the zoning board of appeals refused to hear the case soon. Brotman was unavailable for comment Thursday on how a fall hearing date will affect his plans.

The board of appeals earlier had refused to hear the case because it was not within its jurisdiction. This was based on the fact that Brotman had obtained permission for the trailer park and theater through a series of court orders that overturned board rulings.

Marcy said Thursday that the board had reviewed the case and felt that it was within its jurisdiction.

THE VILLAGE OF Mount Prospect has opposed the expansion request on the grounds that the population density was already too high and adequate measure for fire protection have not been taken. The park is served by the Mount Prospect Fire Department.

Mount Prospect Village Atty. John Zimmermann said he did not see how the zoning board of appeals could have the jurisdiction to hear the case since, in prior decisions of the court, the judge spoke of the court's retaining jurisdiction in the matter.

However, Zimmermann said if a public hearing were held, he probably would appear to protest the trailer park expansion unless the village board gave him other directions.

Golden Agers

by JUNE LANDMEIER

During the past 20 years the Golden Agers of the Des Plaines Park District have achieved a strong membership, an enviable organization, a varied program of activities, and a large measure of good will. Later years is a period of life, as childhood and adolescence are, into which persons do not retire but move naturally as they moved into other periods. They bring into it vast resources from past experiences. To identify these resources, and to develop them has been a major objective of the work with older adults.

Meetings are held at West Park, 651 Wolf Rd. and South Park, 1650 Howard St.

July 4 - Parade at noon. Theme: Americanism.

Amendment Could Kill Paramedic Legislation

An amendment that would serve to virtually kill the paramedic bill pending in the Illinois House is expected to be offered when the bill comes to the floor for a third reading. But supporters of the bill in the House said the amendment is not likely to be accepted.

As currently proposed, the bill is designed to remove liability from specially trained paramedic administering emergency treatment to the injured and the ill. Doctors also would be covered for liability except for damages resulting from "willful and wanton" acts.

The amendment, expected to be offered by Rep. Arthur L. Berman of Chicago, would provide that doctors be held responsible for damages resulting from ordinary acts of negligence.

Rep. Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights, who is handling the bill in the House, said he is "cautiously optimistic" that the Berman amendment would not be adopted.

Schlickman said he based his optimism on conversations with House leaders.

He said if the amendment were added to the bill, it would virtually kill the legislation.

"There's no doctor that would put his career on the line for something like that," Schlickman said.

He said the amendment is supported by a trial lawyers association.

The bill in its present form was adopted recently by the Illinois Senate under the sponsorship of Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington. It is not certain when it will come up for a vote in the House.

The bill has the support of Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie.

Expected to participate are Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Hoffman Estates, Inverness, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Rolling Meadows and Schaumburg, and possible Wheeling.

BIBS AND BURROS are among gift items for the younger crowd on sale in the newly re-opened Pink Lady Shop at Northwest Community Hospital. Mrs. Clarence Malone, in charge of staffing the shop, and Mrs. Neal Hawkins, manager, checked stock as the shop re-opened in expanded quarters last week.

Pink Lady Shop Re-Opens In New, Large Quarters

A remodeled and enlarged Pink Lady Gift Shop is now open at Northwest Community Hospital. The shop was forced to close its doors during the expansion and remodeling program at the hospital.

According to the manager of the Pink Lady, Mrs. Neal Hawkins, the store has expanded not only in size but it has added many new items for sale. In the baby department there are hand-knitted sweaters, booties, dresses, little boy's suits and blankets. The items are knitted by members of the hospital's Women's Auxiliary.

Artificial flower arrangements by Ande, otherwise known as Mrs. Edna Campbell of Mount Prospect, are new to the shop. Daisies pop out of miniature sprinkling cans, a variety of flowers find a home in correlated coffee mugs and there are formal flower arrangements in glass bowls and straw baskets. Mrs. Campbell designs the arrangements exclusively for the Pink Lady.

Another new line proving to be popular are the negligees and dusters. They come in all colors, sizes and fabrics.

Along with these new items are a large assortment of kitchen accessories, stuffed animals, silver gift items, toys, magazines and greeting cards. A service provided by the Pink Lady is free gift wrapping of any purchase.

A MINATURE Pink Lady on wheels is the gift cart pushed through the halls daily to all patients in the hospital. The gift cart is loaded with items patients may need in their rooms as well as samplings of merchandise from the shop. Mrs. Charles Swingley of Palatine is the mastermind behind the gift cart.

The entire operation of the Pink Lady is handled by volunteer help. In addition to the chairmen already mentioned are: Mrs. Clarence Malone, Arlington Heights, staffing; Mrs. J. E. Mason, Arlington Heights, buyer; Mrs. Eldon Simpson, Barrington, treasurer; and Mrs. Robert Rich, Mount Prospect, workshop and display.

THE PINK LADY is open 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. It is open Saturday and Sunday when there are volunteers available to work. Anyone interested in working in the gift shop may contact Mrs. Malone, 392-6014, or the volunteer office at the hospital.

Help is also needed to make items for the Boutique Noel to be held Oct. 27 at the hospital. Workshops for the boutique will start Sept. 11 under the direction of Mrs. Rich, CL 5-7948.

Proceeds from the Pink Lady and Boutique Noel are given to the hospital by the Women's Auxiliary as part of its pledge to the hospital. Membership in the Auxiliary is open to all area women over 19 years of age. For further information those interested may contact the membership chairman, Mrs. Anthony Daly, 392-2818.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: One of my feet is a bit larger than the other one. Do I buy a size to fit the larger foot or get two pairs of shoes, each with a different size, to fit the two feet? —June A.

It all depends on how much the difference in size is. If it's minimal, you can use a shoe-stretching liquid. With a shoe stretcher this can give you a full width larger, but not longer. There are shoe repair stores which can make a shoe one size longer and one size wider by removing the interior of the shoe without altering the style or quality. It's always best to try to get shoes worn in before the onset of hot weather. Hot weather can make even once-comfortable shoes a misery. This is why there is always a bottle of shoe-stretching liquid in this house.

Dear Dorothy: Suddenly realized I had no cornflake crumbs to use for coating some chicken pieces. My eyes fell on the blender. The cornflake crumbs were ready in less than 30 seconds. —Helen M.

Dear Dorothy: To come to the aid of the despairing with regard to grout cleaning, here is my happy discovery: Simply use the enzyme laundry soak. Apply the powder, keep wetted down or cover with unprinted cellophane. Then for an hour or so go about other activities while the enzyme action, not elbow grease, does the work. You'll be pleased. —Rene Durnil.

Dear Dorothy: You stated you usually use powdered ginger for seasoning chuck roast. Please tell me how much you use? —M. Horrell.

Have just sprinkled the ginger without measuring, just as my mother used to do. It's probably 1/4 to 1/2 teaspoon.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to Dorothy Ritz in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 200, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60005.)

$40,000 Auxiliary Gift To Holy Family

Larry Mlynarczyk

A SPORTSWRITER'S job is one of the greatest in the world.

In what other profession can a sports maniac like me be admitted into a game for free — and get paid for it at the same time.

A further advantage to this job is this column I write every week. My bosses give me free rein each week and I have the opportunity to use it as a podium to expound on any subject I choose.

I'm going to hate to leave it all behind. Yes, the Florida sunshine has beckoned and I've answered the call. These will be last words I'll be writing for the Herald.

Despite the fact that moving to Florida will be returning to my original home, I'm going to miss this area.

I'll miss the Herald, a thoroughly professional newspaper which I'm sure provides its readers with local coverage second to none.

I'll miss my bosses who have given me the freedom to express myself and the opportunity for me to improve my writing skills, such as they may be.

I'll miss my co-workers, a talented group who also knows how to have a good time.

I'll miss the coaches in the area, men who are dedicated not only to winning, but also to the young men they are associated with every day. Without the help and cooperation of the coaches, this sports section could not have been assembled five days a week. To them, I say thank you very much.

I'll miss the young men, the high school athletes, whom I have had the opportunity to meet and talk to. Don't let anybody tell you that this world of the young people is loaded with dopes, junkies and run-dums. For every run-dum you name, I'll come up with a couple hundred outstanding young people who are going to make excellent leaders for the future of this country.

I'll miss the snow — a little bit.

I'll miss this typewriter — the only decent one I've had in six years of sports reporting.

I'll miss Chicago and all of its sights I've had an opportunity to see.

I'll miss the Northwest suburbs and its awesomely exciting growth.

And, I'll miss you the reader, whose suggestions and comments have been greatly appreciated.

I do hope that my writing has been worthy of your readership.

Golf Tourney Fans Have Changed

Watch A Gallery, Have Some Fun

by BOB FRISK

SO YOU'RE GOING to the Western Open in nearby Northbrook.

You won't see Arnie or Jack, but you will see some exciting golf played the way you'd like to play but can't — and never will.

A $30,000 first prize and such a worthy cause as the Evans Scholars program still couldn't bring an Arnie Palmer or Jack Nicklaus to the Chicago area, and this should insure an extremely quiet golf tournament, if you like quiet tournaments.

When Arnie and Jack are around, or even Lee Trevino, who also will be missing this weekend, the crowds are alive with excitement. You can feel it with every shot, every stride down the fairway.

Every sport needs someone it can turn into a legend — and golf's candidates for immortality are in short supply when Nicklaus or Palmer don't even show up for a tournament.

Whether he has the color of a Sneed, the showmanship of Hagen, the aggressiveness of Palmer, the colossal skill of a Hogan or Nicklaus, the charismatic hero is needed as a vital part of pro golf.

This is not to detract from their obvious skills, but I can't imagine any gallery getting wildly enthusiastic this weekend because Billy Casper rolls in a tricky putt or George Archer escapes a sand trap with a shot a few inches from the flag.

Galleries have their favorites but most of the favorites are missing from the 94th Western Open. However, don't be dismayed. If you want to see the new golf fan in action, you'll probably get your chance at Sunset Ridge, with or without Jack and Arnie.

In case you haven't noticed, and it admittedly is difficult to notice when so few major tournaments reach the Chicago area, the golf fan definitely is changing. It's been a gradual change through the years.

You never used to have the same kind of no-holds-barred partisan rooting at a golf tourney that was born in the bleachers of an Ebbets Field or Polo Grounds.

When Bill Melton, the White Sox third baseman, fields a ball in a bases-loaded situation in Boston and then fires it over

THE BEST IN Sports

Richie Allen's at first, the hostile crowd cheers its head off.

Ungenerous? Unsportsmanlike? Rude?

The reaction is all of these things, but not even Melton thinks of it in those terms. He knows that the cause of Boston was advanced by his error and he would be astonished if a partisan Red Sox crowd acted in any other way.

The quarterback fumbles in football, the defenseman trips and falls in hockey, and the downcourt pass goes wildly out-of-bounds in basketball. Happy pandemonium results.

I can remember how gentle the crowds were at all times at many Western Opens. That was several years ago. In recent years — for good, or for evil — the vociferous rooter has begun to show up in golf. He doesn't care how it happens, as long as his man wins.

A contributing factor is improved communications. The leader boards report hole-by-hole progress of the top players, and they show almost instantly the birdies and the bogeys, the triumphs and the failures of the front-runners.

At first, golf galleries confined themselves to a sort of distant partisanship. Then Palmer came along and, like Ben Hogan before him, he seemed to be everybody's favorite. By 1965, the galleryite attending a tournament in which Palmer did not win, or at least finish well, felt as if he had visited Yellowstone Park the day Old Faithful failed to spout. He felt obliged to help Arnie, and the links fan became louder, and louder.

Together with applauding the adversities that beset the leader or anti-hero, loud voices sometimes resort to insult as well.

I've heard it at golf tournaments. They'll yell four-eyes, or baldie, Fatty, Skinny. Something based on the player's appearance, personality traits or past performances. Yes, these insults can also be racial.

Casper, who is in the Western, has been the object of as much abuse as anyone, with his exotic diets, illnesses and

The problem boils down to whether golf, with its somewhat more personal relationship between fan and player, can tolerate the kind of partisanship that exists in other sports. Probably not.

However, if you've ever been to a pro tourney, you must feel that the fan deserves any charity that can be extended to him.

This week is an exception but normally the golf fan must drive farther than any he'll be stuck in the mud. For this, he must park in an open field, knowing from past experience that if it rains, he'll be stuck in the mud. For this, he pays a fee.

He walks a half-mile, pays an admission fee that staggers him when compared to other sports, particularly when he is not headed into the opera-type seats of an ice-rink, sports palace or stadium. He has just bought the right to walk two or three miles while he watches players he may not be able to identify for the first half-hour or so.

When it's all over, he'll probably be on his feet four to eight hours unless he likes to sit at the end of the green and watch nothing but approach shots and putting. He has to keep out of the way. He soon learns that he must not move a muscle when he stands in front of a player putting or behind a player swinging.

If he goes to one of the refreshment stands for a snack or a beer, he'll pay double.

Maybe it isn't too surprising that he gets rude every now and then and that we have this new golf fan.

A never-to-be-forgotten moment in this outbreak of the new golf fan came in the 1965 Masters.

Nicklaus was marching toward a record score of 271, but galleries booed Jack's birdies and cheered his bogeys to his face. After all, their hero Arnie was playing too.

At the ninth green Jack's wedge shot hit the lower front of the sharply canted green and spun backward, heading off the green.

Then it proceeded to roll downhill, slowly, very slowly toward possible trouble in a bunker.

The gallery, those new golf fans, unashamedly chanted, "Roll... roll... roll."

Jack and Arnie will not be here this week, but the golf fans will be in action. Don't miss the fun.

There are times when watching the gallery is more fascinating than watching the actual play.

DON'T GET EXCITED, CUB FANS

Dear Sirs:

Won't Cubs fans ever learn? They're getting excited again and it's only June. Last June they were red-hot for the month and it seems to me they finished 14 games off the pace. That's how much a hot June means.

Is this team so much better? I don't think so. Just older, another year older for Williams, Kessinger, Beckert, etc., etc. and when the pressure starts to mount, the Cubbies will fold again with the tired arms and legs.

Don't get excited, Cub fans, you've been through this before and it's amazing that you haven't learned your lesson by now.

As long as you keep that manager around, you won't have a winner. He won't let you relax during the stretch drive.

"We're starting to hit our peak," said Leo Monday.

"We're starting to hit our peak," said Leo at practically this exact time last summer. And then, 14 games behind in October.

STIFF COMPETITION

Dear Herald:

I try to watch much baseball on television because it is difficult for me to go to the parks. From what I have seen this year and read in the papers, I don't think you Chicago baseball fans should get too excited about winning any pennants.

You look at those lineups of teams like Pittsburgh and Oakland and then compare them with the Cubs and White Sox and there is really no comparison. Chicago teams might finish second which would be good, particularly for a young team like the White Sox, but can anyone seriously see either team winning, and beating out a Pittsburgh or Oakland? I think Oakland will beat Pittsburgh in six games in the World Series with Kenny Holtzman one of the heroes.

OAKLAND HAS GREAT FUTURE

Dear Sirs:

Now I see why the Chicago White Sox wanted to get in the Eastern division of the American League. Oakland is a team of the future and will be good for many years. The Sox are improving but still have no shortstop, catcher, or center fielder. Oakland has it all and will for many years. The Sox will have a better chance of beating aging teams like Baltimore and Detroit than Oakland although they are giving Chicago some interesting baseball. Richie Allen for Tommy John is something I still can't believe, especially after watching Los Angeles and its pathetic batting attack in Chicago last weekend. Why does everybody get so excited about the Dodgers? They've got two hitters only in their lineup and only two consistent pitchers in Osteen and Sutton.

AGREES WITH CUB BACKER

Dear Sirs:

Just wanted to let you know that there are still more Cub fans than White Sox boosters in Chicago and always will be.

I agree wholeheartedly with the Cub fan who wrote last week saying that the North side is where the action still is. The Cubs have the perfect blend of proven veterans and exciting new faces like Jose Cardenal, Rick Monday and Burt Hooten.

White Sox fans think that just because of a good first half by their team, they are taking over Chicago baseball. Well, I have news for them. Cub Power still prevails.

BOXING A DISGRACE

Dear Fan's Forum:

I would like to repeat and reinforce the letters that have been written to your paper in the past about the disgrace the sport of boxing is.

It is incredible to me that in these times of supposedly rational human beings, we still let a farce like boxing continue. This just proves for the umpteenth time that violence still rules our society.

This protest was brought about when I read yesterday that boxing veteran Maxie Rosenbloom has completely lost his memory and is confined in a sanatorium because of the toll of 299 professional fights — even though he is only 68 years old and in fine shape physically. This is not an isolated case. In the same article it was stated by a physician that he has seen the same thing happen in other instances.

Hearing about such a sad case should not be necessary to realize how disgusting boxing is. Any "sport" in which the ultimate goal is to knock the opponent senseless has got to go. In fact, it should have been outlawed long ago.

Kunkel Explodes, Holds On

Kunkel Really exploded for eight runs in the first two innings Wednesday evening but almost saw that comfortable advantage slip away in Mid-Ten baseball action.

"We had a cakewalk and then started to play around," said manager Joe Shanahan after Kunkel's fifth straight victory, a 10-9 thriller over Allens.

Allens rallied with four runs in the final inning and it took a strong relief job by Fred Campobasso, who had started the game, to pull out the win.

Jeff Myers, Rick Slapke and Rick Felde had the hits in that four-run explosion for Allens with three walks also helping out.

Kunkel didn't waste any time opening the scoring with four-run explosions in each of the first two innings.

Mark Eichhorn doubled in a pair in the first inning and Ken Geimer added a

3 County Strike By Carpenters Set

by LEA TONKIN
A three-county strike by members of the Chicago District Council of Carpenters was scheduled to start this morning. This announcement followed a contractor announcement yesterday afternoon that an area-wide lockout of cement masons and carpenters will begin Monday morning.

Arwin Klass of the Chicago Federation of Labor News said Carpenter picket lines will be set up this morning at construction projects of approximately 450

Chicago area contractors. A Cement Masons Local 502 representative said late Thursday that additional action may also be taken by his organization as a result of the planned lockout.

The lockout of carpenters and cement masons will start Monday at 12:01 a.m., barring an unforeseen settlement between these trade groups and contractor associations.

This action, in response to the strikes and selective picketing by members of Cement Masons Local 502 and the Chicago District Council of Carpenters, was announced yesterday afternoon by the Mid America Regional Bargaining Association (MARBA).

An area wide strike-lockout will shut down approximately $2½ billion in area construction projects and idle nearly 100,000 construction workers. It will also mark the first cooperative effort by a regional contractor group to resist the crippling effects of selective strikes, according to MARBA chairman Robert E. Nielsen.

"OURS IS A fair, legitimate response which we are using for the first time," said Nielsen. He sees the fledgling contractor association's move as a step toward a new pattern in labor negotiations. MARBA, formed in 1971, is comprised of 1,000 contractors who are members of 14 affiliated organizations.

Contractors have been helpless in the past to retaliate against the unions' selective strike tactics, according to Nielsen. Now, instead of the employers' knocking under to union demands in the final settlements, says Nielsen, the contractors can refuse work to members of the striking trades in an effort to match their collective strength.

"We also expect that members of Local 502 of Cement Masons will have difficulty finding other contractors to work for outside of Cook County and the same applies to striking carpenters from Cook, DuPage and Lake Counties," Nielsen said. "Our member associations are united in support of our stand."

Over 2,000 members of the Cement Masons Local 502 have been on strike since Monday of this week. The organization set up picket lines at selected construction sites on Wednesday.

THE CEMENT Masons had agreed to a 53-cent-an-hour increase in wages and benefits offered by MARBA. This would bring their pay to $10.24 an hour, a 5.5 per cent hike. MARBA says its offer still stands, but is no longer retroactive to June 1 as it was not accepted by the June 17 expiration date. The unions did not accept a contractor proposal for a flexible lunch hour.

Approximately 2,000 members of the 30,000 member Carpenter Chicago District Council went on strike Wednesday morning. Major Loop sites and a parking garage at O'Hare International Airport were among the projects affected by this action.

Both wages and work rules are at stake in the carpenters contract negotiations. A 91-cent-an-hour increase in wages and benefits plus work rules was offered by the MARBA. It is no longer retroactive to June 1 since it was not accepted by the June 19 expiration date.

The Chicago District Council of Carpenters seeks a $1.45 an hour increase in wages and benefits and does not accept the proposed work rule changes.

The contractor proposal, if accepted, would bring hourly wages to $9.56, a 10.5 per cent increase over the present $8.65 rate. The union proposal would increase wages 16.7 per cent, in addition to changing certain work rules which the MARBA representatives have not accepted.

A Will County Carpenters settlement contract was signed this week.

Bill May Make It Easier To Incorporate Municipality

Legislation that would allow Prospect Heights to incorporate despite objections of surrounding municipalities may be considered by the Illinois Senate.

State Sen. John W. Carroll, R-Park Ridge, intends to introduce an amendment that would permit an unincorporated area of more than 7,500 residents to incorporate without approval of neighboring municipalities. The proposed city of Prospect Heights has 10,000 people, according to the 1970 census.

The amendment has been written at the urging of the Prospect Heights Improvement Association (PHIA), according to Jack Gilligan, PHIA incorporation chairman. An incorporation petition filed by PHIA last year was turned down because Wheeling and Arlington Heights objected.

CARROLL PROPOSES to tack the amendment onto House Bill 3745 dealing with annexation and fire protection districts. The bill is currently past the amending stage, but Carroll said the bill's sponsor has agreed to permit proposal of the amendment.

Addition of the amendment must be approved by a majority of the Senate. If the Senate then approves the bill with the amendment, the issue must return to the House, which approved the original bill.

Carroll said he didn't know if he would be able to propose the amendment before the end of the legislative session, which may be this week. He also said he was not optimistic about the amendment's passage since there are objections to the legislation.

State Sen. Phil Rock, D-Chicago, sponsor of House Bill 3745, objects to the amendment, according to Carroll. He said the Illinois Municipal League has also raised objections.

Mount Prospect officials also protest the legislation. Village Mgr. Robert Eppley said yesterday he sent a telegram to Sen. John Graham, R-Barrington, urging him not to vote for addition of the amendment.

"WE OBJECT BECAUSE the amendment would remove the requirement that a neighboring municipality can object to incorporation," Eppley said. Mount Prospect did not officially object to last year's incorporation attempt.

Wheeling officials have not yet registered objections to the amendment. But Michael Valenza, Wheeling trustee, said yesterday, "We would still object to it whether it was 7,500 or 2,500." He said Wheeling would rather annex the unincorporated area than permit it to become a city.

Gilligan said the amendment "is not a blatant attempt to change the law, but to correct the legislation." There are conflicting state statutes on the matter of incorporation, he said. Carroll's amendment would still permit municipalities within one mile to object to incorporation involving less than 7,500 people.

Despite legislation attempts, Gilligan said the PHIA plans to go "full steam ahead" with its appeal of last year's court decision. PHIA has appealed the decision on the grounds that an area with a population of more than 7,500 doesn't need the permission of surrounding municipalities to incorporate. Gilligan expects a court date to be set within 30 days.

Gilligan said both Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect officials are amenable to incorporation if certain boundary changes are made. He said Wheeling village officials still refuse to meet with PHIA representatives.

Area School Suit Awaits U.S. Ruling

A class action suit challenging alleged underassessments at Cook County racetracks is pending a ruling on a similar but broader suit filed in U. S. Federal Court.

Ten Chicago area school districts affected by alleged racetrack underassessments have joined the Joint Service Program, a subgroup of the Illinois Association of School Boards, (IASB), to file a class action suit against Cook County Assessor P. J. Cullerton.

Ron Booth, director of IASB, said the Joint Service Program was ready to file the suit but was awaiting the outcome of a similar suit filed in Federal Court on behalf of Donald Page Moore, an unsuccessful candidate for the democratic nomination for Cook County State's Attorney.

The Moore suit also alleges misassessments of properties but does not stop at the racetracks. The Moore suit asks the court to appoint an assessor to correct misassessments throughout Cook County.

Thomas Meites, one of Moore's attorneys, said a hearing in the case is scheduled for the first week in September.

"WHEN THE hearing takes place we will file our own suit or intervene on behalf of the districts," said Booth. "If the suit (Moore's) is successful and an immediate reassessment of property is called for, we will have avoided the cost of a separate suit and be able to return fees to the districts involved."

The class action suit was prompted when the Citizens Action Program (CAP) released figures they had compiled on alleged underassessments at the racetracks last fall.

Four local school districts encompassing Arlington Park Race Track have allocated funds to join the suit. They are Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15, High School Dist. 211 and 214 and Harper College Dist. 512.

2 Michigan Men Charged In Illegal Bookie Phone Line

Two Michigan men have been arrested by Arlington Heights police and charged with illegally transmitting betting information on races at Arlington Park Race Track to a Detroit bookmaker.

Police detectives said that walkie-talkie radios were used by the pair to relay betting odds and early race results from inside the race track to one of the men who would be stationed at a pay telephone near the Arlington Park Shell service station at the corner of Wilke Road and Euclid Avenue.

The telephone was used to relay the racing information to a Detroit bookmaker, police say.

John Patrick McGee, 22, of Detroit, was apprehended by officers of the Illinois Bureau of Race Track Police Tuesday after they observed him with the walkie-talkie inside the track.

McGee later was turned over to Arlington Heights police.

A SECOND MAN, James Riggio, of Grosse Pointe Woods, Mich., who allegedly worked with McGee in the information relay network, was arrested by Arlington Heights police a short time later as he was leaving the track grandstand.

Detectives say they had been observing the pair several days prior to their arrest.

Both men also were charged with possession of amphetamines after a police search of their car reportedly turned up a bottle of pills later identified as amphetamines.

Bond for the men was set at $5,000 each with a preliminary court date scheduled June 23.

Summer School Students May Arrange Busing

Students enrolled in High School Dist. 214's summer school program may still arrange for busing to the school in their attendance area.

Busing arrangements should be made by calling the high school attendance office. Busing is being provided at a cost of $7.50 for one semester and $15 for two semesters. A student attending a summer program outside of his attendance area is not eligible for busing.

The first regular six-week summer session runs from June 22 to July 14. The second semester will begin July 17 and end Aug. 4. Special eight-week sessions for science classes June 19 to July 14 and July 17 to Aug. 9.

Administration of the summer program has been switched this year from the central office to each individual school said Roderick McLennan, assistant superintendent for instruction. "This way each school will be responsible for its own program. Low incidence programs will be shared between three schools."

rector of the Academy. Variety Clubs International is a brotherhood of more than 10,000 show business people who raised more than $12 million last year for handicapped and needy children throughout the world.

Our Man On Operation Vandalism Road

police car and Doney continues their patrol. In the Chicago and North Western Rwy. lot, they spot a youth who had been hanging around for some time. When told by the youth he was waiting for friends, the police advised him to wait in a nearby donut shop.

A short time later, his two friends apparently turn up — staggering along Maine Street. They are stopped and they begin swearing at Doney and Kotch. Brought into the station, they are booked for curfew violation and disorderly conduct.

About a half hour later, another squad stopped three youths in a car for curfew violation and charged one with possession of marijuana. He had thrown a plastic bag with the drug out the car window while police were following the car, police said.

In all, there was only one case of vandalism reported that weekend. Paint had been thrown against the garage of S. D. Holbrook, 1201 Glenn Lane.

Algonquin, Seymour To Get Traffic Signals

The Des Plaines City Council has authorized use of $35,000 in the city's share of state motor fuel taxes to pay for traffic control signals at Algonquin Road and Seymour Avenue, near the scene of a recent auto accident which injured a 14-year-old Des Plaines girl.

The city received permission to install the traffic lights last week from the Illinois Division of Highways. The lights will be installed as soon as possible, according to city officials.

Off To Scotland

The University of Illinois semester-abroad program offered recreation majors a spring semester in Edinburgh, Scotland. Marilyn Coombs of 109 Princeton, Des Plaines, will study and work in recreation centers throughout England after eight weeks of classroom study in Edinburgh.
